From the website of Paul Craig Roberts, former Undersecretary of the United States Treasury:

“The entire foreign policy of the United States in the 21st century is based on an orchestrated “Muslim threat.” The orchestrated threat was also used for a practice exercise in closing down one of America’s largest cities in order to manhunt with intent to kill a young man chosen as the villain for the orchestrated event.

“American citizens were forced at gunpoint out of their homes while Homeland Security disrupted the life of an entire city. The entire exercise was based on a lie.

“Attorney John Remington Graham has brought the case to the justice authorities, but the US Department of Justice (sic) has no interest whatsoever in justice.

Now comes forward Mary Maxwell with a book. I read the first eight chapters, which was sufficient to confirm me in my independent conclusion that there was no Boston Marathon bombing by terrorists.

“I recommend to you Mary Maxwell’s account. ... and we must respect a person prepared to stand up to the murderous American establishment and to challenge one of the founding myths of the American Police State and Washington’s wars against the world.

“Any US citizen that believes the falsified case of the Boston Marathon bombing is a dangerous and direct threat to American civil liberty and to the lives of millions of people on planet Earth.”

PREFACE

I am a Bostonian watching this Marathon business from Australia. It is completely past my ability to fathom how the whole city of Boston can go along with a trial – a murder trial – that does not pass the guffaw test.

Just think: if my view is correct, all sorts of people are in on a wicked deal – cops, lawyers, judges, The Globe, doctors, and others. There is so much at stake here! We're in huge trouble if those many persons are willing to act in bad faith.

Numerous kind souls are working hard to help Jahar Tsarnaev. I am not working to help Jahar. I am working to help me. I am sure I can see what's in store for society if we play along with all the false statements in this case. I don't want to be there!

Further, I want vengeance on them for doing it and for mocking us. Hey, my parentals are buried in Forest Hills Cemetery in Jamaica Plain and I'll not stand by and see them denigrated, thank you very much.

Look at this letter from Thomas Jefferson to Joseph Cabell:

“I felt the foundations of the government shaken under my feet by the New England townships. There was not an individual... whose body was not thrown with all its momentum into action.... God bless you, and all our rulers, and give them the wisdom, as I am sure they have the will to fortify us against the degeneracy of our government.”

Oops, that was dated 1816.

Plan of This Book

For the last few years I have been writing articles at GumshoeNews.com in Melbourne. The owner of that website, Dee McLachlan, intends the word “gumshoe” to mean a private investigator. I am not an investigator in the sense of prowling around the neighborhood looking for clues. I am mainly looking at court cases.

Let me start you off into the legal side of the matter by pointing to an egregious act by Jahar Tsarnaev’s defense lawyer, Judy Clarke: We see that in Motion 1101-1, Clarke asked the judge NOT to say, in his Instructions to the Jury, that her client has pleaded Not Guilty to all charges.

So widespread is the belief that Jahar pleaded guilty, that I, an observer, was unaware for along time that he has in fact consistently pleaded not guilty.

Did you read in The Boston Globe about that trick that Clarke pulled on her client? No. You will never read anything in The Globe that would contradict the official propaganda about “the terrorists from Chechnya.” They just go on and on.

Several chapters below are about legal concepts– e.g., gag orders, tampering with evidence, proper instructions to a jury, the crime of cover-up, judicial notice, the Brady rule of exculpatory evidence, and – my personal fave – the Writ of Error Coram Nobis.

I want to persuade my fellow legal scholars that it is not in their interest to let the Marathon Trial travesty pass by unnoticed. And in fact it’s the legal profession that should clean it up.

Note: there’s also mention of Gitmo-style interrogations occurring in Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center. Yes. Do you really want this to be happening in Bostoniensesis, doctors?

If you are already well up on the dishonesty of the Marathon case, there may still be something for you in this book. I try to suggest as many solutions as I can think of for our current predicament. Solution-ing is my thing.

Be warned: I tend to lean on the treasures of the past. I don't see any reason why it would be impossible to restore the trust we once had in law and justice. It's normal to trust leaders, and perfectly normal for them to "behave themselves."

There's some conspiracy theory here, too, but I have kept it to a minimum, in Chapter 28. The court case itself gives conspiracy theorists all the evidence they could wish – it shows how many pieces of the story needed to be lied about.

Please shop around this book. There's good stuff at the back, including five of the court documents. Appendix A contains four diary pages from someone called "the zoologist" who was listening to radio chatter on the night of the murder of Sean Collier.

With an eye to other scripted terrorist incidents, please see H by Irish journalist Rory O'Connor, telling of the nonsense about a shooting inside Canada's Parliament. In Appendix K, Felicity Hingston, a teacher in Australia, writes about an event in Berlin where a truck plowed into a shopping mart. Two pieces by Elias Davidsson appear as appendices. Elias is the definitive scholar objecting to the false reporting of Muslim "terrorists" and their "radicalization."

Montse Alarcón Flix, a Catalanian, provides a devastating piece -- says her career as a fiction writer is faltering because media have taken over the role of making things up! I also added Appendix F about the so-called Boston Strangler. It was as much a set-up as anyone could wish for. The rest of the world is laughing at Boston over it, and I hear that Boston police consider Albert DeSalvo's conviction a standing joke.

Acknowledgements

This book would not have been possible without material sent to me by Josée Lépine, a francophone Canadian who sharpened up her English for Jahar's sake. Ms Lépine spent a fortune buying court transcripts, scrutinized them to the nth degree, and then shared them with all, at weebly.com.

Just goes to show that you never know where salvation is going to spring from! It took many geniuses to render the trial of Jahar Tsarnaev obtuse. They had to anticipate possible interference from many quarters and try to build-in all the necessary snares and barriers. Well, too bad. They did not foresee la Canadienne.

I must also give credit to Heather Frizzell who writes the blog USvTsarnaev.org. She and she alone tracked down the alleged weapon (a Ruger gun), and what I consider the relevant sting operation. Ms Frizzell then burned the midnight oil scrutinizing records of the Tsarnaevs' cellphone contacts.

I got technical help from Craig, Ian, Jason, Elizabeth, Heidi, Mairu, Sarah, Mal, and Cousin Steve. At Watertown Library, Hummux of 911Tv.org live-streamed my lecture.

Trish, Dee, and Deb yelled encouraging words, and Gumshoe commenters let me have it right between the eyeballs. Nico cooked for me in Concord NH. I thank them all. I thank God I'm still allowed to hang around for a while.

Greetings to Latin American Readers!

Good day, persons in Massachusetts whose first language is Spanish! What I wouldn't give to be able to speak Spanish and write it! But I am boringly monolingual and so have asked a friend to do the translating here for me.

I want to lure you into my book. I am trying to get Bostonians interested in the Tsarnaev case, and I fully understand that you are an important part of this dear city – both today and in the future.

At the end of the book, Document 3 is in Spanish. It was written by Maret Tsarnaeva who is the aunt of the late Tamerlan Tsarnaev and his brother Dzhokhar, nicknamed Jahar. The document was translated into Español by Montse Alarcón Flix. That document helps prove the falseness of the whole Marathon incident of April 15, 2013.

Maret tells how the US government sent people to Russia to intimidate the family of the convicted criminal Jahar (he is now on Death Row in Colorado). This is shocking and many will choose not to believe it. Well, even barring that episode, there are many proofs that the bombing was not done by the Tsarnaev brothers, ages 26 and 19 at the time.

Since I can't provide all the information in Spanish, I will print in the next two pages a summary. If you like it, then please look on Youtube for the many Spanish-language videos about the Marathon – but most are “mainstream.”

I may tell you that my late Dad, John Whalen, was fluent in Spanish and Portuguese and spent many an evening in the 1960s and 1970s teaching English to new immigrants in Boston. He did so as a free-lance volunteer, using such venues as the Mission Church.

I send you his best wishes!

Buenos días especialmente a las personas de Masachusets cuya primera lengua es el castellano! Qué no daría yo por ser capaz de hablar en español y escribirlo! Pero soy aburridamente monolingüe y por eso he tenido que pedir a una amiga que me haga estatraducción.

Quisiera engancharos a mi libro. Estoy intentando mantener a los bostonianos interesados en el caso Tsarnaev, y entiendo plenamente que vosotros sois una parte importante de esta querida ciudad – tanto ahora como en el futuro. Al final del libro, entre los appendices hay uno traducido al castellano.

El original fue escrito por Maret Tsarnaev que es la tía de Tamerlan Tsarnaev y Dzhokhar Tsarnaev, más conocido como Jahar. Creo yo que es la mejor prueba de la falsedad del incidente de la Maratón April 15, 2013 en su integridad. Véase Document 3.

En él Maret nos explica cómo el gobierno de los Estados Unidos envió gente a las repúblicas de la Federación Rusa para intimidar a la familia de Jahar (él se encuentra ahora en el corredor de la muerte en Colorado).

Tales hechos resultan chocantes y muchos elegirán no creérselos. Bien, incluso prescindiendo de ello, hay muchas evidencias de que el atentado no fue perpetrado por los hermanos Tsarnaev, que tenían en aquel momento 26 y 19 años respectivamente.

Como no puedo proporcionar toda la información en español, voy a añadir en la página siguiente un resumen. Si veis que os interesa, por favor buscad en Youtube los muchos vídeos en castellano sobre la Maratón - aunque la mayoría de ellos son “mainstream.”

Os podría contar que mi difunto padre John Whalen tenía cierto nivel de español y portugués y pasó muchas veladas en las décadas de los 1960s y 1970s enseñando inglés a nuevos inmigrantes. Lo hacía por su cuenta como un voluntariado, entregando los ingresos a la misión de la parroquia. Os envío sus mejores deseos.

Resumen de las “Main Theme” De Este Libro

Me gustaria demostrar que no hay caso contra Jahar Tsarnaev. Todas las pruebas de culpabilidad son endebles. El asesinato de Collier se ve en un vídeo tomado desde lejos, la ridícula fábula del secuestro de Danny, La radicalización de Jahar probada según sus “descargas” de Internet, su no-negra mochila, su floreada confesión en la pared de una embarcación.

Un vídeo del arresto de Tamerlán, desnudo, y el vídeo de Podstava demuestran que la historia de un tiroteo con la policía no sucedió. Juzgando por otros casos de terrorismo, el atentado de la Maratón fue probablemente un montaje del gobierno. Ni siquiera necesitamos escuadrñar sobre el uso de actores en crisis pagados por la acusación para mentir sobre los hechos; de tantísimas evidencias que hay en las ultrajantes acciones judiciales.

Otros asuntos en discusión son la destitución de los jueces, órdenes de silencio, SAM's (medidas penitenciarias especiales), los medios de comunicación como accesorio al crimen de atentado. Son enumeradas las faltas de los abogados: la impresionante ausencia de examen a los testigos, la inexistencia de cadena de custodia de la supuesta arma asesina, el no apercibimiento de un conflicto de intereses en el FBI en el asesinato del testigo potencial Todashev, e increíblemente el pronunciamiento por Clarke de que “él lo hizo” a pesar de que Jahar siempre se declaró no culpable.

Paul Craig Roberts:

“Cualquier ciudadano estadounidense que cree que el caso falsificado de los bombardeos de la maratón de Boston es una amenaza directa y peligrosa libertad civil americana y en las vidas de millones de personas en el planeta tierra”.

PART ONE:
THROWING DOWN THE GAUNTLET

1. J'Accuse (published January 6, 2017)

Abu Ghraib – this is how we end up as a lawless culture.

See the photo of that female American soldier humiliating a prisoner? She did not invent the practice. She was trained to do that. If you are American, you participated in her training.

You say you had nothing to do with it? Hrmph! That means you think there is no such thing as a society – that it's all just a bunch of individuals running amok. Oh – you claim that you live your own good life and are self-sufficient? Nice try, but nobody is self-sufficient in a population of 320 million. How did the tap water in your kitchen get into the tap? How did you learn to read? Will you call the fire department if your house starts to burn down?

I'm satisfied that Jahar Tsarnaev had nothing to do with bombing the Marathon, killing MIT Officer Sean Collier, carjacking Danny's car, stealing from an ATM, shooting at cops, throwing IEDs at anyone, or running over his brother. I feel sure this report in Wikipedia, retrieved February 28, 2018, is a lie:

“During questioning, Dzhokhar alleged that he and his brother were motivated by extremist Islamist beliefs and the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan, that they were self-radicalized and that he was following his brother's lead. He said they learned to build explosive devices from an online magazine, and that they had intended to travel to New York City to bomb Times Sq .”

Today, five years after the 2013 Marathon, we should look for the actual perpetrators of the crimes. It is the citizen's duty to deal with this as we are being drowned in lies by the authorities. I'll now nominate 6 crime scenes, that is, physical locations. Then I'll attempt to find the relevant law for charging someone. There will be a special section on the crimes of the FBI. (Note: the FBI is dealt with in more detail in Chapter 18 and Appendix J.)

Crime Scene 1: The Marathon Finish Line on April 15, 2013. Someone detonated a bomb. It allegedly killed three persons: Martin Richard, age 8, Krystle Campbell, age 29, and Lu Lingzi, age 23; it purportedly injured 264 people, and damaged property.

Crime Scene 2: The MIT campus on April 18th at 10.24 pm. Officer Sean Collier was allegedly shot dead in his cruiser car.

Crime Scene 3: The custody of police or FBI (wherever that happened to be located). After he was captured, unhurt, on Mt Auburn St, Tamerlan Tsarnaev died.

Crime Scene 4: The yard of the late David Henneberry's house 62 Franklin St, Watertown, which contained his boat. Some combination of local and state police, FBI, and perhaps military, shot 228 bullets at the boat. Someone should be charged with that shooting. It was seen from a helicopter, using thermal imagery, that there was little movement. Possibly the boy was unconscious. It is amazing the bullets didn't kill the suspect.

Crime Scene 5: Boston's Moakley Courthouse, where persons knowingly arranged to have an innocent person convicted. The trial in 2015 was just 800 years after the Magna Charta promised:

“No bailiff for the future shall, upon his own unsupported complaint, put anyone to his ‘law,’ without credible witnesses brought for this purpose.” [Emphasis added]

Of course, when I call the Moakley a “crime scene,” I include any other physical locations where legal preparation for the Tsarnaev trial took place -- including the Washington, D.C. office of Attorney-General, the prison at Fort Devens, and perhaps the Beth Israel Deaconess hospital in which the accused was interrogated -- and any place where perjury was suborned, or where evidence was fabricated.

Crime Scene 6: Offices of media and/or psy-op planners who helped Wikipedia create the above story that Jahar confessed, in Beth Israel, that he was planning to bomb Times Square. By the way, even carjackee Danny never testified to that! He only said the brothers asked if his car could travel out of state.

Looking for the Applicable Law and Punishment

Massachusetts General Law, the MGL, is divided into five parts. Part IV is about crime. You can easily look up any crime, its definition and the applicable fine or imprisonment term.

So what charges can be brought against those who bombed the Marathon? Easy! We only have to copy the charges laid against Tsarnaev. These are found in the grand jury indictment and the jury's verdict. For example, these state that Jahar murdered Krystle Campbell by bombing, and Collier by shooting.

The MGL stipulates the punishment for murder as life imprisonment -- there is no death penalty in Massachusetts. (But but this is a "federal case.") As for the alleged 264 other persons who were hurt by shrapnel or blast on Boylston St, the person setting the bombs can be charged with grievous bodily harm. I'll let you look up the punishment for that.

The bombs caused property damage. MGL Chapter 266, section 126A, specifies 2 years imprisonment for that, and loss of driver's license for 1 year.

Regarding the killing of Tamerlan, this would be found to be a murder, unless information is brought forth to show accidental death. (Note: perhaps the story of Tamerlan being run-over accidentally was used so that it would not get analyzed by a court.)

Katherine Russell, the widow of Tamerlan, can bring a federal lawsuit for police brutality under the civil rights law. In 1966 Congress passed civil rights laws that covers “racism,” but they protects everyone in the US against brutality committed “under color of law” (see 18 USC 242) and against blocking of their constitutional rights (see 42 USC 1983).

As described in Chapter 17, Jahar’s elderly aunts were put into ankle bracelets when they arrived for the trial. They were visitors, not suspects. The aforementioned civil rights law is federal, but there’s a similar Massachusetts civil rights law that extends to visitors. I quote the website of the state’s Attorney-General:

The Attorney General’s Civil Rights Division enforces and safeguards Constitutional and statutory civil rights and liberties on behalf of Massachusetts residents and visitors and “may bring enforcement action.”

That means the AG, Maura Healey, can prosecute someone for what was done to the aunts. The aunts also have a right to sue. That would lead to an interesting state-federal turf war. Love it!

The Crimes of Obstruction of Justice

So I argue that the very crimes that landed Jahar in jail, e.g, murder and property damage, ought to be laid at the doorstep of persons who actually did them. If someone bombed the 2013 Marathon we need to charge that person. But what about the crimes committed in connection with the trial itself? There are excellent laws to cover “crimes against justice.” Yes.

In 1769 Sir William Blackstone compiled a list of them in his Commentaries on the Laws of England. You may be surprised to hear how severe were the punishments for court personnel. For instance, he noted that a conspiracy to falsely accuse an innocent man was considered so heinous that it could bring a “villainous judgment.” The aggrieved party was allowed to go to the property of his harmers and have “their lands wasted, their houses razed, and their trees rooted up.”

Most of what Blackstone catalogued is still with us. Our nation inherited, wholesale, the common law that had been accumulated through court cases in England over centuries. Modern legislatures have modified it, repealed some of it, and added new statutes, but much common law remains.

My Accusations

I accuse US Attorney-General Loretta Lynch of arranging for potential defense witnesses, Dias Kadybayev and Robel Philippos, to be imprisoned so the public could not communicate with them as to Jahar’s innocence. Intimidating a witness is a crime. Lynch committed further crimes of obstruction of justice by setting Stephen Silva up for drug crimes. I accuse Lynch also of imposing Special Administrative Measures – SAM’s -- on Jahar to render him incommunicado. That is the crime of cover-up, is it not?

I accuse the visitors to Russia from the defense team, known only as Charlene, Olga, Jane, who had the unmitigated cheek to instruct the Tsarnaev family to go along with the conviction despite innocence. (Blackstone would faint.) Is Public Defender William Fick guilty of that same Blackstonian crime? If so, he wants disbarment. Perhaps every member of the legal profession who worked on this show trial is asking to be “let go.”

In Chapter 17 we’ll see that Dzhamaly Maazovich, an uncle of Jahar, was prevented from offering exculpatory evidence. Dzhamaly told “Alicia” he had documents proving Jahar’s innocence and would bring them to court himself. She asked, “How do you intend to bring them into the USA?” He reports:

“US visas were supposedly being arranged. Alicia on the previous visit in February 2015 had collected from us the information, passport details and photos of me and my sister, Roza Tsarnaeva. Later, Alicia repeatedly consulted with us, saying “You will be able to travel.” After my conversation with Alicia held on April 14, 2015 in Moscow, the Tsarnaevs were refused entry visas.” I recommend prosecuting Alicia for this.

General Law of Massachusetts, Chapter 268, section 13 E:
(b) Whoever alters, destroys, mutilates, or conceals a record, document, or other object, or attempts to ... shall be punished, by a fine or imprisonment for not more than 5 years...

The theme of MGL Chapter 268 is in line with the law maxim “Contra spoliatorum, omnia praesumuntur.” Everything can be held against the person who destroys (or hides) evidence.

See? The law contains all that is needed to sort things out. The law is our friend -- as long as we bother to employ it.

Now What about Crimes Regarding Fraud?

This year, 2018, the Department of Justice, the DoJ, arranged indictments of 13 Russian individuals and entities for “defrauding the United States” by their interference in the 2016 presidential election. I hadn’t previously been aware of this law:

“If two or more persons conspire either to commit any offense against the United States or to defraud the United States, or any agency thereof in any manner or for any purpose, and one or more of such persons do any act to effect the object of the conspiracy, each shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than five years, or both.” – 18 USC 371

Usually we find the law of fraud being used where someone has lost money thanks to the fraud. Do you recall that a woman was charged with crime for pretending she was a Marathon victim and taking donations? Quite possibly her case was fictitious, intended to convey to us that someone somewhere is guarding the truth. Other species of lying are not so easy to criminalize.

The First Amendment allows you to say what you please, including telling whoppers. However, my discussion of The Boston Globe, in Chapter 20 below, notes that if Globe personnel helped plan the terror event, they are accomplices to murder.

Ask: who penned that confession on the boat? Isn't it odd that the MSM (mainstream media) accepted that a wounded boy could do such a neat job – writing with a pencil, on fiberglass? And how did Jahar know that his brother had died (as the boat-note mentions)?

Trial Exhibit 824: The offending pencil, still sharp! Any fingerprints?

Consider the role of Wikipedia in claiming that Jahar “admitted” he learned bomb-making, and was an extreme Islamist. Although Wikipedia covers itself by pretending to quote “facts” (the interrogators said that this is what Jahar said), how can all that go uncritically into an encyclopedia? Is it a crime? Treason?

The Crime of Treason

“Whoever, owing allegiance to the United States, levies war against them or adheres to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort within the United States or elsewhere, is guilty of treason and shall suffer death, or shall be imprisoned not less than five years....” -- 18 USC 2381

The phrase “levying war” should include any act of violence committed against the government or against the population. In my 2011 book, Prosecution for Treason, I argue additionally that any Congressperson who signs legislation that violates the Constitution thereby commits treason, as the people are left without their normal protection, i.e., the parchment.

I say in my 2015 book, Fraud Upon the Court, that a judge who knowingly condemns an innocent person to death commits treason. This is supported by Article III, section 3 of the Constitution. The relevant state law, as I note in my letter to Governor Baker, in Chapter 16, is in Massachusetts Chapter 264, section 2: “Whoever commits treason against the commonwealth shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for life.”

Should a judge’s rulings be included in the law against using color of law to deprive a person of rights? (42 USC 1983)? Normally no, but consider the case of Cronin v Town of Amesbury. It was a Massachusetts case where the judge held that a cop acting for personal interest – not in the line of duty – is NOT acting under color of law. Think about that – he doesn’t get the normal immunity as a cop, as his dastardly doings were not in his job description. Excellent.

One more thing about treason – it’s so terrible that if you know about it and fail to report it, you are a felon! Per 18 USC 2382:

“Whoever, owing allegiance to the United States and having knowledge of the commission of any treason against them, conceals and does not, as soon as may be, disclose and make known the same to the President or to some judge of the United States, or to the governor or to some judge or justice of a particular State, is guilty of misprision of treason and shall be fined or imprisoned not more than seven years, or both.” [Emphasis added]

The Crimes Apparently Committed by the FBI

Allow me to demonstrate how pathetic is our intellectual barrier on recognizing crime when it is committed by “coverts.” They even boast about the “plausible deniability” that disguises their performing of illegal acts – and we don’t object! And how did we tolerate such an open “crime” as the FBI chief Richard DesLauriers, saying on TV about Suspects One and Two:

“We are enlisting the public’s help to identify the two suspects. ... Other photos should not be deemed credible.”

That is truly embarrassing. Or consider this, retrieved from fbi.archives.gov in 2017, long after it was proven that Tamerlan was a “regular” to the FBI. Special Agent in Charge of the Boston Division Vincent Lisi, Colonel Timothy Alben of the Massachusetts State Police, and Commissioner Edward Davis of the Boston Police [stated]:

“Members of the Joint Terrorism Task Force did not know their identities until shortly after Tamerlan Tsarnaev’s death when they fingerprinted his corpse. Nor did [they] have the Tsarnaevs under surveillance at any time after the assessment of Tamerlan Tsarnaev was closed in 2011. The Joint Terrorism Task Force was at M.I.T., located in Cambridge, Massachusetts, on April 18, 2013, on a matter unrelated to the Tsarnaev brothers.” [Liars!]

And what of the rounding up of Jahar’s friends, in order that they be prevented from defending the accused? As the cops were in uniform, their rough behavior to intimidate the lads could well fit under “1983” color of law. Thank you, Congress.

I believe the real bomber of the Marathon was the FBI, or its hireling. I ask anyone who could assist in proving that, to do so by way of a Truth Commission, a citizen-led grand jury, a private lawsuit, a RICO civil action, a citizen’s arrest, an attempt to become a legislator, a move to disqualify bad lawyers, judges, and doctors, a civil rights lawsuit, and an inquest. Please at least “raise the hue and cry.”

Why not write to Boston’s sister cities for advice or solidarity: Barcelona, Hangzhou, Belfast, Sekondi-Takoradi (Ghana), Kyoto, Taipei, Strasbourg, Padua, or Melbourne!

2. Surprises at the 2018 Watertown Lecture

Anyone can apply to give a lecture at a public library. Happily, in Watertown (“scene of the manhunt”) I was welcomed to lecture at the Public Library on January 23, 2018, at 6pm.

I decided to play-act “Jahar’s new lawyer” in an imaginary re-trial. Note: he may yet get a re-trial. Alternatively, he could get an affirmation of his conviction or conceivably an overturning of the case at the appeal level. At any time, the President of the United States could pardon him.

The Prosecution’s Points

As my lecture was a one-man show, I also had to play the prosecutor, at least to the extent of listing the items the prosecutor would show in a re-trial. I assumed she’d make a case from the same points Prosecutor Carmen Ortiz used at the 2015 trial. Here are 20 of those original points:

1. On Monday April 15, 2013, Jahar Tsarnaev was near the Marathon Finish Line, wearing a backpack.
2. It contained a pressure cooker, purchased by his brother Tamerlan, containing explosives.
3. Jahar laid a backpack down near a tree in front of the Forum Restaurant, at 755 Boylston St.
4. Jahar detonated a bomb, by remote, at 2:50pm,

5. He and his brother Tamerlan then departed the scene.
6. At 3:14pm, Jahar purchased milk at Whole Foods grocery store in Cambridge, as is shown in a store surveillance video.
7. On Thursday, at 5pm, the FBI released photos of two suspects, without names, causing the brothers to flee.
8. Jahar had a gun, but he and Tamerlan went to the MIT campus to steal a second gun.
9. Around 10:24pm Jahar went to Officer Sean Collier's car, and killed him (but failed to steal the gun, it was locked in a holster).
10. The brothers drove their Honda to Brighton Rd in Allston, and carjacked a Mercedes SUV.
11. Around 11pm, Jahar participated in the crime of kidnapping the driver, Dun Meng – also known as Danny.
12. During the ride, the brothers asked Dun Meng if the rented SUV could be taken out of state.
13. They stopped at an ATM, where Jahar pilfered $800 from Dun Meng's bank account.
14. They then stopped, for gas and to buy snacks, at a Shell station, at which point Meng ran to a nearby Mobil station.
15. The brothers went to Laurel St, Watertown; around 12.30am Friday and threw explosives, and shot at police, close-up.
16. They caused Officer Ric Donohue of the MBTA Transit Police to be seriously injured (even if this was "friendly fire" from the gun of a colleague during the fray).
17. To escape from the shootout, Jahar jumped into Meng's car and accidentally ran over his brother. Jahar then disappeared.
18. Tamerlan arrived at hospital with gunshot wounds and died.
19. Friday April 19, 2013 after 7pm Jahar was apprehended in a boat. There he had written a confession on the wall; it refers to Tamerlan's death. (It was not found till many days after).
20. In hospital, Jahar admitted to interrogators, who ordinarily handle high-value prisoners, that he bombed the Marathon.

Demolishing the Prosecution's Case

At this "moot court re-trial," I claimed that only one of those 20 items is supportable -- #6, the buying of milk at 3:14pm. All other prosecution claims are easily disposed of. This book shows my case against each point – for example, Chapter 10 claims the shootout on Laurel St did not even take place. A Watertown police supervisor, John MacLellan, attended my lecture and spoke at the Open Mic. He says he is sure it did take place and that he was in the thick of it.

He seemed honest to me – so maybe the “players” were not Tamerlan and Jahar as advertised, but some other poor blokes, one of whom died from it. (MacLellan said he saw the man bleeding to death.) See Chapter 27, where I ask state coroner, Dr Mindy Hull, to hold an inquest into Tamerlan’s death. Later I asked her for an inquest into the death of this “John Doe.”

I Lay the Blame on the Most Obvious Suspects. To me it looks like the FBI did the bombing of the Marathon. Or maybe some “private company” was hired to do it. There have been many terrorism incidents that were later shown to have been arranged by governments. Three come to mind:

First, the 1980 bombing of Bologna’s railway station. It was later blamed on Gladio, which is an offshoot of NATO. Its purpose was to make it seem that leftists did it – to build up the threat of communist takeover. Or maybe it was the “strategy of tension” (same as was used in Argentina) – to keep folks off balance.

Second, the (aborted) bombing of the Legislative building in Victoria, BC, Canada. Appellate judge Catherine Bruce halted the case against the suspects Amanda Kolody and John Nuttall, drug addicts who had converted to Islam. She blamed entrapment, in a Royal Canadian Mounted Police sting operation.

Third, the 1993 bombing of the basement of New York’s World Trade Center building (not to be confused with the 2001 event known as 9-11). Six died. While it’s true that some Muslims are still in jail for it, the FBI admits to it having started as a “sting.”

The FBI had to acknowledge guilt, as one of the “terrorists” had recorded the FBI agent’s conversation. No punishment ensued for FBI – but we may note: murder has no statute of limitations.

Am I Paranoid?

In the US, if the government prosecutors (who work for the Executive Branch, in the Department of Justice) offer a patently dishonest presentation of the case against the accused, isn't that an indicator that the government did the crime in the first place?

If the judge acts funny, favoring the prosecution, or deprives the accused of his due-process rights, such as by giving misleading Instructions to the Jury, doesn't that suggest that he wants the accused to be convicted. (If so, please ask Why?)

If the Public Defender (who receives pay from government) absolutely fails to defend the client, well, come on, Folks, there really cannot be any doubt that the whole thing is fixed.

This book shows many ways that the prosecution lied, the judge acted funny, and the defense team opposed its own client. I think you will deduce that "the Marathon" was an Inside Job.

I admit, though, that I suspected government as soon as I heard the bombing happened. We're used to false flags as ways for governments to get a war started. The Gulf of Tonkin torpedoing of a ship, to increase the Vietnam war, was later recognized as fake. Hence Congress repealed its 1964 War Resolution.

Anyway, this book does NOT try to prove who did it. Instead it shows that Mr Tsarnaev did not commit the four crimes for which he has now been convicted: bombing the Marathon, killing Sean Collier at MIT, kidnapping and carjacking Dun Men, and throwing explosives at cops in a Watertown shootout.

I say Boston had better lift its game and be sure Jahar does not get wrongly executed.

But lifting its game is not nearly enough. We need to do a lot more to get our society back on track. Let's think of the Marathon bombing as a blessing in disguise – the episode that pushed us to the limit and made us rethink our life.

3. Fear, Creativity, and Our Legacy

The Public Garden -- Look at all our forebears did for us!

Everybody is scared now. It's natural – you couldn't avoid feeling insecure when one of our greatest protections – the Rule of Law – is disappearing at a fast rate. You could not avoid worrying that the current level of crimes-in-high-places will soon give way to sheer thuggery.

As it stands, whistle blowers get killed, occupants of desired offices get knocked off by competitors, and the big bosses arrange for cockfights, as it were, among the lesser people. No one in a responsible position comes to our aid.

And whose fault is that may I ask? It is your fault and my fault. One of the most visible changes in our culture is the accepting attitude we take to those crimes-in-high-places.

In the 1980s, when I doing a PhD in political science, it was becoming “sophisticated” to view realpolitik as a sort of given. The brazenness of the powerful is just “there,” you know, like the flora and fauna. Anyone who would talk instead about the goodness of humanity would look the fool. And nobody wants to look the fool.

Today there is an additional cultural change -- many citizens have gone into denial about realpolitik. They say governments couldn't possibly be doing deliberate harm.

I can see how folks don't want to believe scary things about their leaders. One way out is to ridicule conspiracy theorists – the “tin-foil-hat” set (meaning people who make a hat out of tin-foil as protection against electronic hits from the air, or something). If it's painful to accept reality, why not just “go on vacation” for a few hours and wait it out.

In this book I don't go on vacation. I'd rather face the facts.

Good Fears and Bad Fears

All mammal animal species have an efficient system of emotions – the feeling of fear comes up when the animal needs it for guidance. It may guide him to run away. It may dissuade her from taking on a fight that she had earlier tried and lost. Animals need their fear system.

No doubt humans, too, have a healthy, protective set of fears. We curtail much of our desired behavior by simple inhibition. Embarrassment is a huge mechanism of control. Just the mere thought of “sticking out” is a worry. And that's good, generally, since it keeps us more or less willing to follow the society's routine. Everyone ought to fit in.

But I say try to eschew that today. At least stop thinking that sticking out will somehow kill you. There are plenty of people who will support your stick-outery, you know. In fact they are dying for your company. I'm dying for your company.

Creativity. We are nothing if not creative. In the past, humans managed to overcome the woolly mammoth, crocodiles, and the Roman Legion. Here in the 21st century we can think of the jerks who are running the government as a cross between the wooly mammoth and crocodiles. It shouldn't take too much to plan our attack.

Even if they're more like the Roman Legion, we have a lot to work with that the multitudes, sweating under the Legion's rule, didn't have. To wit, we've got Roman history. The passage of time matters – it lets you catch up on the mistakes of others and learn from them. Ah, the study of history. So vital, so exciting.

Boston's Legacy

Is there a Bostonian with soul so dead that he never to his child has read "Make Way for Ducklings"? Is there a Catholic in the lot who never visited the big Christmas crib on Park St, crunching along in the snow?

The big thing about Boston is that it is not overwhelming. Everyone owns it and everyone can absorb its proud history, just as everyone can relate to "Charlie on the MTA."

I lived in Boston for the first 23 years of my life, though for the last 48 years I've been elsewhere. Gee, just think of all the poor sods who never has the chance to do all that we could do in such a marvellous city.

OK, it's time to pay back for those pleasures and all that stimulation. And here's the perfect opportunity to do it.

A really stupid thing happened in April 2013. We did not know what hit us. But in the five subsequent years there has been enough research and commentary that even the least-skilled citizen can join in the task of setting it right.

I can meet you at Cambridge Common, or on the steps of the State House, or wherever, to have a chat. The appeal brief was filed in January 2019 and may be looked at in June, by Judge Juan Torruella. He once competed in the Olympics in the sport of sailing. We wonder if he could help the case sail through.

4. Dun Meng's Unbelievable Carjacking Story

(published January 12, 2016)

Dun Meng asks manager of Mobil station to call 911 for him

At Jahar's trial the owner of the gas station gave testimony. The significance of the gas station is that it figures in the narrative of the carjacking. This took place after the FBI showed pictures on "Suspect One" and "Suspect Two" in a TV press conference.

It is vital to note that the carjacking story was used to give the public a way to link the bomb blasts at the 2013 Marathon with the accused persons, the Tsarnaevs.

This chapter discusses important data from Russ Baker's website WhoWhatWhy.org. He and colleagues did excellent investigatory work on the Marathon case and they took a very skeptical approach to the carjackee, Dun Meng.

WhoWhatWhy recounts how there were several different police narratives as to the way in which Tamerlan Tsarnaev "admitted" to Dun Meng, aka "Danny," that he was a fugitive criminal.

Thanks to the very number of variations, we know they don't add up to a reliable account of the actual event. I'll emphasize one of Russ Baker's main points. It concerns a radio station, WMUR, that initially interviewed Danny a mere four days after the "carjacking." (Carjacking was late Thursday night; radio show was the next Monday.) WMUR operates out of New Hampshire.

Blame WMUR

Nick Spinetto at WMUR asked Dun Meng key questions. (Note: Dun Meng revealed his name only as ‘Danny’ to the public until close to the trial date. This was an understandable precaution.) Danny told Spinetto that Tamerlan had boasted about having done the April 15th Marathon bombing. Yet Danny did not say anything to Spinetto about the killing of MIT campus sop, Sean Collier.

How do you interpret that? Could it be that the organizers of the Danny element had not yet told him that he was supposed to say that Tamerlan mentioned killing a cop?

By now, Danny must know that his carjack story has put Jahar on Death Row. He testified in court to Tamerlan’s supposed admission of the bombing and the killing of Collier. (Note: it was Jahar, not his older brother, who got convicted for the death of Collier!). Danny ought to get a pang of conscience.

But here I’m criticizing Alisha McDevitt, the station manager of WMUR, an ABC station. Come on, Alisha, you have to take responsibility. If your radio station helped to terrify Massachusetts, you owe us some Valium. You must do your best to sort this stuff out. You can’t just say “No, thanks.”

The Logic of the “But For” Test

I learned in law school that we can’t use a “but for” test in a lawsuit. Say you gave me a birthday cake and I decided to bring a piece to my neighbor’s house and fell down on her front stairs. I can’t say “But for the cake I wouldn’t have sprained my ankle” (and sue you for donating that cake to me). Even though it’s true. But this is not court of law. We are a community, and we use logic. We can “but for” all we like.

I say the interview with Danny led everybody to think that the Tsarnaevs were fugitives from justice and so were guilty. “BUT FOR” the false narrative on radio stations such as WMUR, the jury may have acquitted Jahar. Like Barbara Olson’s call on 9-11 that “told us” there were hijackers on Flight 77, it was a key piece of data conveyed by media. “But for” her call, Americans hadn’t any notion of Muslims misbehaving in the sky.

But for Danny, we’d have no tie-in of the Chechen Muslims either to the Marathon bombing or Collier’s death. In Chapter 6, we will see that evidence of Collier’s murder is nil. Therefore, WMUR needs to do the right thing. You know, Ms McDevitt, it won’t kill you to announce that you think Dun Meng misled your employee, Spinetto. You couldn’t have known it back then, nor could Spinetto. It’s not your fault.

Time To Get a Second Spinetto Interview

I mean the original problem – broadcasting Danny – was not your fault. But putting the Seal of the Confessional on things is your fault. You must let Mr Spinetto do another interview.

Danny won’t agree to it? No prob. Spinetto can go on radio and read out what Russ Baker gathered up by way of analysis of the whole situation, at his WhoWhatWhy website. Baker compared numerous ever-changing statements by police officials and also by newspapers. He bothered to show us what the NY Times, said on April 20, 2013, naming the source as a “senior law official”:

“It was only after the suspects decided not to kill the owner of a sport utility vehicle [SUV] that had been carjacked and instead threw him out of his car around 1 a.m. — a decision that ultimately undid their plans to elude the authorities — that they re-emerged on the authorities’ radar.”

The last sentence means that Danny, once out of the car, was able to tell police that his SUV was a rental, so it had the ability to be tracked to Watertown. “Let the chase begin!” Note: the “throwing out” of Danny from the car wasn’t mentioned again. Danny himself said he made a run for it. So shouldn’t the New York Times print a retraction? The Times must have misled many people, even if only accidentally. I am not saying you should be concerned with what the Times said, Ms McDevitt. But many of us, probably including you, have seen the Podstava video. So we know that at 1:05am Tamerlan was falling into the clutches of the authorities, not kicking Danny out of a car.

Danny Forgot To Say the Biggie That Night?

To repeat: the Nick Spinetto interview was broadcast on Monday, April 22, 2013, only 4 days after Danny had allegedly had the traumatic experience of a lifetime. In his WMUR interview, Danny does NOT mention Tamerlan's confessing to the killing of MIT cop Collier.

Yet (as Russ Baker discovered), the Associated Press – which I believe is run by the CIA – had already announced that bit on the afternoon of April 19th, two days before the WMUR broadcast. Yikes! Seems like Danny did not even hear that. Associated Press referred to Watertown's police chief Ed Deveau saying that Tamerlan told Danny of both of his major crimes "I did the Marathon bombing and I killed a cop." (Did Deveau have a secret pipeline to a planned narrative? I imagine he did.)

Now let's look at what came forward from police. The official Criminal Complaint was filed by Officer Genck on Sunday night, April 21st, 2013 – the day before the Spinetto interview. As Russ Baker points out, the Complaint states that Tamerlan told Danny about his role in the bombing – but it says nothing about an admission to having killed Collier." Oh my.

Conclusion. As every American knows, a charge gets thrown out (or never even makes it to the indictment stage) if the evidence is flimsy. Guilt must be proved beyond reasonable doubt. Laying aside the charge of bombing, I show in this book that the other charges are "hopeless." Danny wasn't cross-examined and no fingerprints were sought. Why did a jury of 12 say yes to each of the 30 charges? Why did they agree to frame Jahar up?

5. McCoy's Case Spares Jahar, but SAM's Get in the Way

(published June 14, 2018)

Jahar at the boat

William Fick

In my Watertown lecture I had no trouble showing how the evidence against Jahar was so flimsy that his conviction was a disgrace. I also noted that his Public Defender, Judy Clarke, had said, in her opening speech, in 2015, “It was him.” This made every Bostonian, including myself, assume that Jahar had admitted guilt. Wrong-o. Jahar never deviated from pleading Not Guilty to each of the 30 charges.

In my lecture, I mentioned that there was a case pending in the US Supreme Court, of a Louisiana state prisoner, Robert McCoy, who was convicted of murder in 2008. McCoy appealed on the grounds that his attorney had insisted on “conceding guilt” – supposedly to win a sentence less than the death penalty. But the court turned down his appeal.

During the break between my lecture and the Open Mic session, an audience member brought me his cell phone, and said that the Supreme Court denied McCoy. I was truly shocked. The right to plead innocent has been in business for eight centuries with no one challenging that basic right.

Anyway, good news -- the guy with the cell phone was mistakenly reading from the earlier denial in Louisiana. Whew!

Subsequently, on May 14, 2018, the US Supreme Court, handed down its ruling. Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg wrote the opinion:

Held: The Sixth Amendment guarantees a defendant the right to choose the objective of his defense and to insist that his counsel refrain from admitting guilt, even when counsel's experienced-based view is that confessing guilt offers the defendant the best chance to avoid the death penalty."

That does not mean Mr McCoy walks free. He walks back to the district court and gets a new trial. But I say Jahar will walk out the door. His case will at the very least fall under the McCoy ruling, that is, Jahar has to be entitled to a new trial. But once the appellate judges – en banc, three of them – get a load of what has gone on they will surely see that this was a false trial and the accused was a classic patsy.

Strategy Is As Strategy Does

Did Judy Clarke and her team really intend that the “strategy” of conceding guilt would spare Jahar from the death penalty? As widely discussed in the media, the strategy was for the Defense Team (budget for the defending of this case: $5 million) to say Jahar was pushed into it by his older brother, the late Tamerlan.

Note: Judge O’Toole did not allow the defense to go into any aspect of Tamerlan’s activities. He granted the prosecution’s Motion in Limine to preclude any mention of Tamerlan. This is unheard of -- Jahar’s indictment included counts for aiding and abetting. And what possible justification for it was there?

Why choose this path anyway? It is known that strategies don’t usually impress a jury. Of course, when you have a “strategy,” you’re happy to let a Dun Meng tell extraordinary tale. Meng said he had pulled over to read a text message and Tamerlan’s car just happened to pull up behind his. Out of that car steps a perfectly confident carjacker, Tamerlan. By “confident” I mean he did not worry that the driver might dial 911, or might not let him in the car. Clarke didn't even raise an eyebrow.

The Mind-Boggling Affidavit

Back to the affidavit that Jahar's aunt Maret wrote – assisted by attorney Jack Graham. A copy of it is incorporated into the amicus brief. See Document 2 at end of this book.

You really need to get angry, and scared, at the “stand-over” tactics seen in the home of Jahar's parents in Russia. (Technically, the Russian Federation.) The aforementioned defense team in the case, spending wildly their taxpayer-funded budget, made 13 trips from Boston to Russia!

William Fick, known as Bill Fick, had lived in Moscow in the 1990s. His job? “He designed and managed an array of projects to develop access to the Internet,” after the collapse of Communism. (I recall that no sooner had the Berlin Wall fallen in 1989 than Rupert Murdoch was in Poland, under an assumed name, modernizing the telephone system. I guess he foresaw it.)

On April 17, 2015 Maret Tsarnaeva signed the following affidavit. Like all affidavits, it carries a penalty for perjury:

On or about June 20-21, 2013, during their first trip to Russia, which lasted about ten days... Judy Clarke and William Fick... visited my brother Anzor Tsarnaev, and his wife Zubeidat, respectively the father and mother of Dzhokhar [Jahar]. My mother, my sister and I were present at this meeting. Zubeidat speaks acceptable English. Mr. Fick is fluent in Russian. The lawyers from Boston strongly advised that Anzor and Zubeidat refrain from saying in public that Dzhokhar and his brother Tamerlan were not guilty. They warned that, if their advice were not followed, Dzhokhar's life in custody near Boston would be more difficult...

Mme Clarke and Mr. Fick also requested of Anzor and Zubeidat that they assist in influencing Dzhokhar to accept the legal representation of the federal public defender's office Mr. Fick revealed that Dzhokhar was refusing the services of the federal public defender's office in Boston, and sending lawyers and staff away when they visited him in custody.

... Dzhokhar's parents expressed willingness to engage independent counsel, since Dzhokhar did not trust his government-appointed lawyers. Mr. Fick reacted by saying that the government agents would obstruct independent counsel.

In any event, I [Maret] am aware that, following the meeting on June 20-21, 2013, Mme Clarke and Mr. Fick continued to spend time with Anzor and Zubeidat, and eventually persuaded Zubeidat to sign a typed letter in Russian to Dzhokhar, urging him to cooperate wholeheartedly with the federal public defender's office in Boston. [Emphasis added]

In Australia, Martin Bryant, who was falsely accused of shooting 35 people to death (see my book Port Arthur: Enough Is Enough), eventually changed his Not Guilty plea to Guilty, after Carleen Bryant, his mother, told him she could not visit him again if he pleaded guilty. The defense lawyer had instructed her to say that.

I phoned Aunt Maret last week. She reports that at the Mahachkala meeting she suggested "We hear there is another suspect for the Marathon bombing. Why don't you talk about him as a way of defending Jahar?" In response, Judy Clarke, God bless her, said "That's a good idea. We could do this, Bill." Whereupon, Maret says, Bill Fick got red in the face and angry and said "We are not going to do that."

According to Fick's website fickmarx.com:

"Bill has tried multiple federal cases and has obtained acquittals or dismissals of charges involving fraud, regulatory crimes, computer crimes, firearms, narcotics, immigration, bank robbery, child exploitation, and sex offender ... and fought for fair sentences on behalf of clients who elected to plead guilty or were convicted at trial."

Sounds like he could have done a better job defending Jahar.

Why haven't these people been struck off the rolls? Partly it is because citizens are unaware of how easy it is to get a state board to call an attorney on the carpet. If you complain of unethical practice, the board must hold a hearing. The Massachusetts board must discipline William Fick. How could they do otherwise now that we know what transpired in Russia?

Special Administrative Measures, SAMs

Can we now ask Jahar if he wants to name a new lawyer for his appeal? No, he is gagged by SAM's. In 1996, Congress passed its first anti-terrorism law: The Anti-terrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act -- the AEDPA.

You can see that the government was gearing up for 9-11. I'd guess they were gearing up for ways to screw Muslims, or at least that's been the effect of the law. Soon after 9-11, Muslims were rounded up, or asked to come forward to register as aliens.

That rounding up did not need AEDPA. It was possible thanks to a 1793 law, The Material Witness Act, which is used to hold any person in detention who might have information and might run away. It does not accuse them of any crime. "We think any Muslim in October 2011 may be up to no good" type thing.

Anyway these items are now in 18 USC 32:

- (a) Whoever willfully— (1) sets fire to, damages, destroys, disables, or wrecks any aircraft ... or any civil aircraft used, operated, in interstate, overseas, or foreign air commerce;
- (2) places or causes to be placed a destructive device or substance in, upon, or in proximity to ... any such aircraft, ...

So, Do SAMs Really Exist?

The AEDPA also invented an Alien Terrorist Removal Court for deportations that lacks some of the fine nuances of due process, shall we say. But it DID NOT INVENT SAMs. I think SAM's do not exist in law, only in regulations.

So what is the apparent justification for Jahar to have to stay incommunicado? We can see something about it in the Code of Federal Regulations at 28 CFR 501. The website of the US Department of Justice gives the following summary:

Pursuant to 28 C.F.R. § 501.3, which became effective on May 17, 1996, the Attorney General may authorize the Director of the Bureau of Prisons (BOP) to implement “special administrative measures” upon written notification to BOP “that there is a substantial risk that a prisoner's communications or contacts with persons could result in death or serious bodily injury to persons, or substantial damage to property that would entail the risk of death or serious bodily injury to persons.” [Emphasis added]

Hold on. Hold on there! What has this got to do with Jahar Tsarnaev? There is no substantial risk that his communications could result in death or serious bodily injury. Above, I said there is no law inventing SAMs, yet now I am quoting the DoJ. Right. They are not using a law, they are using a regulation.

I think there is a big loophole here. Does Congress approve of this power grab by the Executive Branch? Hint: they seem to go along with nearly every power grab the president wants, a few Congresspersons excepted notably Representative Barbara Lee and Senator Rand Paul.

You must tell your legislator that this won't do. And of all the parties to be given a right to regulate behavior, the last one we should want to be given it is the BoP. Also, handing legislative power to the Executive branch ruins the balance of powers.

Will the Third Branch, the judiciary, come to the rescue? So far they have not upended anyone's SAM's. If Jahar's case were to reach the Supreme Court, the McCoy v Louisiana ruling would act to free him. That would be a great day for Beantown, in many ways. But it can't happen thanks to the current bag of tricks.

6. The Not-Proven Murder of Sean Collier

(published January 31, 2016, updated November 18, 2017)

Can you see two men near that car? Are they identifiable?

The jurors must have been in a trance when Sean Collier's murder was being discussed. They managed to convict Jahar of that killing "beyond a reasonable doubt" – with no meaningful evidence at all.

You may have read that a witness cycled past the MIT cop and saw the cop get shot? I'm pretty sure I read that. But, nope, the witness, Nathan Harman, never said he did that! For one thing it was dark. For another thing, he did not pause as he passed by Collier's cruiser; he cycled on past. He did not witness any shooting or even hear people talking or hear gunshots.

Here is a bit of Nathan's testimony, with bolding by me:

Mr Weinreb: Q. Mr. Harman, How old are you?

A. Twenty-four. Q. What do you do?

A. I'm a graduate student at MIT.

Q. Were you in your office on the night of April 18, 2013?

A. Yes.... I was there working on a problem set that was due the next day.

Q. Approximately what time did you leave?

A. After ten. Maybe 10:20. Once I noticed it was after ten, that's how I knew it was time for me to give it up ...

Q: Can you just, by using your finger, show us the route you took when you left on your bicycle? [on exhibit 638]...

A. Sure. I would have come right up here and then up that way ... There was a parked police cruiser, like, right here...

Q. Was there anything unusual about the cruiser...?

A. When I went by ... the front door was open, and there was someone leaning into the driver's side door. ... I mean, they were sort of bent around the waist with their head and sort of the upper part of their torso inside the car as I was coming up, and then they sort of stood up, startled, when I rode my bike by them. [But after this, Nathan said it was "he" not "they"]:

Q. And what happened exactly as you drove by them?

A. He sort of snapped up, stood up and turned around, and he looked startled, and then I just, you know, didn't think anything of it and rode off. Q. Did he look at you? ...

A. Yes. We made eye contact. [Emphasis added]

That was accompanied by the video that jurors could watch. It shows a cyclist from a great distance. An expert, Mr Matt Isgur, who runs the surveillance cameras at MIT, said there are 1200 cameras. Surely a few of these could have got closer look? Why have a camera perched so high that it can't read licence plates or identify faces? Isn't there some fabulous equipment in MIT labs whose theft would be a calamity?

Recently MIT gave an "unsung hero award" to Isgur. It says:

Matt Isgur has designed a mobile platform that allows for the rapid deployment of video surveillance in any environment. He helped install video surveillance technology around campus for undercover police cases... On the night of April 18th Matt helped the police and FBI use video to place the marathon bombers at the scene of Sean Collier's death.

(Is Isgur proud that he "placed the marathon bombers" there?)

Testimony was also given by patrolman David Sacco and Sgt Clarence Henniger of the MIT police. Since the alleged time of death is 10:24pm, that's the moment to concentrate on. But there is an unexplained gap in the videotape (Court Exhibit 724 and 725) at that time. Do you recall President Nixon's secretary Rosemary Wood during the Watergate affair? She claimed she inadvertently erased 5 minutes of a crucial tape when she stretched from her desk to a table.

Rosemary Wood demonstrating what happened

No one in court asked to have the MIT gap explained! Three problems exist as to the moment of Sean Collier's death. First, as Nathan said, he rode past and did not observe any noises, as of gunshot or quarrelling, and saw no flash of a gun.

Second, the patrolman David Sacco was in his office. He testified that he got a call from a male on campus, on the internal 911 line at 10:20pm. The caller said he heard loud noises, possibly of trash cans. But he did not say exactly when this occurred. Neither Sacco nor the caller was asked to comment.

Third, Sgt Clarence Henniger of the MIT police said that at 10:20pm he drove his patrol car past the place at which the death occurred, but did not see or hear anything amiss!

Also, at Watertown lecture, Sgt MacLellan brought in the idea that there is another witness, but she hasn't been sought out:

“Girl was at a night class at MIT. Saw the officer get assassinated [!] She was so scared, she ran. Got on the bus. When she got home, told her father. Father called the police station, told what the daughter had just seen. And we sent a police car...[for her] to be interviewed, and as our officer was taking her we got the call about the shoot-out [in Watertown].”

-- As if that inconvenience would end such a valuable lead!

Tom Fontaine's Research, Based on Police Scans

I only lately found the excellent work done by Tom Fontaine, compiling the police scans relevant to the 10:20pm event.

Key: I will put the voice of the dispatcher is in italics; if it's officers in the field talking I will underline.

10:28 pm We just got a call from a concerned resident. They heard some (trash) cans banging or something there in the [inaudible], in the north courtside there. They said they seen an officer "sitting out there" and they were just curious what the noises were.

10:29 pm Car 3 4r, car 18 4r, receiving a call for an armed robbery at 711, 589 Mass Ave, standby. We have a Hispanic male, black coat, cowboy hat, displayed a small silver firearm.

10:30 pm [inaudible] ...location, officer down, officer down.

10:32 pm ...what we heard was some kind of gunshots.

10:32 pm Car 1 and 2 if you can respond to 32 Vassar Street. Receiving reports of an MIT officer down at that location.

10:33 pm Shots fired at 32 Vassar, at Main. Clear the air.

10:33 pm Yeah, the officer is down on Main, CPR in progress, gunshot wounds confirmed

10:34 pm Officer down. Come right now. PLEASE NOW!

10:36 pm I want this area cordoned off. It's a crime scene.

10:40 pm Station 52 HP -- also please be advised, officer is missing his weapon.

10:41 pm Any updates on suspects? Any description?

10:41 pm 18, we have no suspect description at this time - nothing.

10:41 pm All right, we're on the move. 18 going to 711.

10:42 pm Right, just before this call, there was an armed robbery at 711 and Central. White male, about 200 lbs., 5'11", cowboy hat, dark jacket, silver handgun shown. ...That is not the suspect in this, as far as we can tell.

10:43 pm MIT officer has been shot, suspect supposedly has his weapon. Occurred on Vassar and Main - unknown direction of flight.

10:49 pm The MIT officers are going to go back and check the surveillance cameras. MIT has two very good cameras and they are going to get a quick look at them and give us a good description. [Wow, lies in court!]

10:57 pm What I am getting is that the suspect should have blood on him. The officer is not in great shape, so if anyone sees anyone with blood on them, all units apprehend.

11:12 pm Sir, request for SWAT to deploy with two canines.

11:25 pm Control? There is a photo floating around of our possible shooter. BU gave it to one of our officers.

Dear Reader, the Hispanic man turned out to be Anglo, not Hispanic. His name is Daniel Morley. His dad works at MIT. I speculate that the robbery of a 7-11 store was cooked up to offer confusion or corroboration of the killing of Collier.

Please note what I'm saying here, O Cops. I'm saying your mate Collier may have been killed as a "side show" – by police. Even if Morley pulled the trigger (which is a wild guess) he was no doubt put up to it. I hear the 7-11 shop had a good picture of him -- yet no theft charges were laid.

And what of the fact that FBI men were reported by many members of the public to have been seen swarming around the MIT campus hours earlier that afternoon? Sgt Henniger has only said that that was "unrelated"? How can he not feel obliged to say more, as many people think there's a connection between the FBI's presence and the death of Collier. I do.

A zoologist made diary entries in real time on that occasion. Please see Appendix A, at end of this book.

7. Judy Clarke's Other Clients/Patients

Eric Rudolph

Susan Smith

Ted Kaczinski

I do not believe that Jahar Tsarnaev, or his late brother, thought up the idea of bombing the Boston Marathon. I also can't accept that Eric Rudolph thought up the idea of bombing the Atlanta Olympics. He had allegedly bombed an abortion clinic and a lesbian bar – I don't believe that either!

Let me float here the conjecture that all abortion-clinic violence, all serial murders, all attention-grabbing murders, such as a Mom drowning her kids, come from Tavistock in UK, the HQ of mind-control. They're part of a media-related effort to set the tone for our culture, shock us, and distract us.

Wikipedia says that the judge liked the way Judy Clarke acted as Public Defender of Susan Smith, a Mom who drowned her kids, so he raised her fee to $83K. Judy seems to be 'on call' for the feds to defend anyone according to the feds' wishes.

If the Susan Smith case is for-real, my guess is that she did those murders (of her children, by drowning) under mind control. Production of Manchurian Candidates is big business in the CIA and is now also used by the mafia. And we know the Mafia and the CIA are wed, right?

Note: Another possibility is that it wasn't she who drowned her children. Just as it was not Jahar Tsarnaev who bombed, killed, and carjacked. It can all be pure fiction.

Mind Control Could Be the Key Here

Daniel McGowan's book Programmed To Kill shows that the courtroom goings-on for many famous murder cases were risible. Albert DeSalvo could not have been the Boston Strangler, given the way the Law dealt with him.

DeSalvo's Public Defender, F. Lee Bailey, cooked up a mean trick. He had Albert tried for a lesser crime [attempted rape], and during the case he, the defender, mentioned to the jury that Albert had told a prison inmate that he was the Strangler.

There was no cross-examination to challenge any aspect of Albert's having done those murders. (It may pay to look up all Bailey's cases – the famous ones were probably scripted.)

One of Judy Clarke's clients was Eric Rudolph. Did he really do the exploding shrapnel violence at the 1996 Olympics? Highly unlikely. And consider his role as 'religious devotee' in the matter of bombing an abortion clinic. If he wanted to protect fetuses from abortion, would he be likely to become a killer in order to bring about that end? Nonsense.

Note, too, that Eric was said to have hid for five years in the hills while on the FBI's Most Wanted List. Are you able to believe that? Isn't it more likely that he was in custody of his mind-controllers? I wager he did some other killings or robberies during that time. And had he been caught, the police could say "Voilà! We've found our escapee."

It is a fact from the MK-Ultra program that sometimes a whole family is mind-controlled. If so, you'll have built-in commentators when the crime is committed. In the case of Ted Kaczynski, it was a brother who turned him in. The newspaper had displayed Ted's handwriting in a note, and the Bro 'recognized' it, and said (I paraphrase) "Gee I'll bet my brother is the Unabomber. Tsk tsk."

A Broad-brush Statement on Mind Control

There are persons who do criminal acts under hypnosis. Many of the MK-Ultra survivors admit that they carried out murders, beyond their rational control. They are called Manchurian Candidates, named after a fictional story -- not to be confused with patsies (who do not do the deed at all).

But what of the many “middle managers” who helped out in the Port Arthur massacre, or the Boston Marathon, or 9-11? Could it be that some of them are mind-controlled yet lead apparently normal lives? It seems likely to me that Judy Clarke did not grow up as a free citizen. How about George W Bush who played a role in 9-11? He was definitely tortured as a child. As was, certainly, his father. Please read Brice Taylor’s book, Thanks for the Memories, for an introduction to the torture methods available to the military and the CIA. Some of this was declassified in 1975.

Pizzagate

It looks as though we may be entering a new era, thanks to exposé of John Podesta’s emails when he worked for Hillary Clinton. He was also a White House Chief of Staff for Bill Clinton. Podesta refers casually to trafficking of children for VIP sex parties. Meanwhile in Australia, Fiona Barnett has told of her life of horror as a child torture victim. She claims that top government people are all in this. I believe her.

Are you wondering how so many elected officials could be persuaded to change their way of life to take up such practices? The likelihood is that they grew up inside the game. They were then placed into important offices. Please read Wendy Hoffman’s book Enslaved Queen, Kathleen Sullivan’s Unshackled, or see Trish Fotheringham on Youtube, and Fiona Barnett’s website pedophilesdownunder.com. It is easy for the powerful to control election results. My book, Deliverance, about Pizzagate, covers these matters.

What Sgt MacLellan Said about Mind Control

Sgt MacLellan also gave unexpected comments about Tamerlan. He asked me “While we’re wrestling with him, his brother ran him over -- how does he get there physically if this is just a big theatrical show?” Sergeant continued: “I had my hands on [him]. I watched Tamerlan bleeding to death...I was the patrol supervisor that night of the shooting and the [IED] bombing.”

Sgt MacLellan sort of congratulated me. He said: “You have a lot of gall for getting up and doing this. But I can tell you unless the government is mind-controlling me and taking control of my whole life that’s not what’s going on here, guys” [referring to my claim that the Tsarnaevs were not present on Laurel St].

It does seem to me that MacLellan is having a bit of doubt. Of course there is a solution: he may have encountered two boys shooting at him who were not the Tsarnaevs. Sorry to say, I am suggesting that this ‘theatric’ is so big that they could have hired an unwitting boy to die (imitating Tamerlan) and another to run away. The CIA has been known to hire body doubles.

(It is peculiar that Sgt St Onge who last saw “Jahar” on foot, after he abandoned the vehicle yet again, could not catch him. And why not just shoot him? That seems to be all the rage.)

I feel confident that the real Jahar did not suffer any gunshot wounds from a putative Laurel St encounter. The man who discovered Jahar on Friday evening, David Henneberry, did not claim to see blood on the outside of his boat, only on the inside. I find his testimony suspicious, as I think all of Jahar’s wounds were delivered after Henneberry saw him. And there was no ladder for Jahar to use to climb into that boat!

Finally I wish to emphasize that although this chapter says Judy Clarke had mind-controlled clients, I do not count Jahar as mind-controlled. He was a typical teenager; he was normal.

8. Parallel Universes, and How to Unpack a News Quote

(published October 18, 2017)

ABC's Brian Ross shows Terry Moran an irrelevant pressure cooker

My editor at GumshoeNews in Australia, Dee McLachlan, never stops talking about cross-ownership of press and TV. Today almost all media belong to one of six corporations. Their ability to control the minds of all of us is phenomenal.

In 2017, when Jeff Sessions got appointed Attorney General, twenty people decided to run for his senate seat in a special election in Alabama. Myself included. You might think a carpetbagger from Australia would be eye-catching enough to get media coverage (and I was the only female, too), but no.

At candidate forums I gave some nifty speeches, but the media guys, sitting in the front row, filmed only the three big guys. Next morning their speeches would appear on CNN. Truly the press's silence on subjects is just as controlling as its noise.

Parallel Universes

Brian Ross, above, holding something allegedly germane to "Marathon," prompts me to discuss the important concept of parallel universes. It's not about outer space; it means that people can perceive the same event in two parallel ways. On the next pages, credentialed persons (I have underlined them) discuss the bombing. But everything they say is Greek to me. I wonder why it isn't Greek to them also!

Pretend that this was written months in advance; it probably was!
“ABC, April 17, 2013: In a major breakthrough, federal investigators have recovered the mangled remains of one of the bombs planted along the route of the Boston Marathon Monday, according to two counter-terrorism officials briefed on the case.

“The officials told ABC News the remains show a medium-sized pressure cooker, packed with wires, a circuit board, nails and ball bearings. Michael Sullivan, former director of the ATF [Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms], told ABC News such clues are “critically important” to the investigation. It could be that one piece that could show them how that device detonated and that might be the only piece that’s left.’ [Surely, surely he jests.]

“Rep. Dutch Ruppersberger, member of the House Intelligence Committee, told ABC News [not Congress] the bomb analysis could lead to a break for law enforcement. “They’ll trace that and get information,” he said. ‘Whoever did it, we’re going to find them.’ [That would be great! Obama said ‘We will get to the bottom of this.’ – I hope they do!]

“Earlier today doctors caring for the 170-plus victims of the deadly bombing reported [to whom?] that they have been pulling nail-like objects from those struck by the explosions – likely shrapnel from inside the bombs. ‘Nails or sharp objects,’ Dr. George Velmahos, chief of trauma at MGH [and Harvard Medical], said. [They’re] numerous... 10, 20, 30, 40 in their bodies, maybe more.’

“A spokesperson [really? who?] for Brigham and Women’s Hospital, reported similar injuries, apparently caused by carpenter nails and small ball bearings. Others were hurt by environmental shrapnel -- objects close to the blast -- and still more were injured just by the blast of air that slammed them against walls [not shown on video]. Law enforcement officials ... revealed that the marathon route had been swept twice by bomb detection units and declared clear. ‘[But] people can come and go and bring items in and out’ after the races started,

Boston Police Commissioner Ed Davis said. ATF special agent in charge Gene Marquez said the only devices involved in the bombing were the two that detonated and there were no additional threats. [How can he be sure?] Davis and several other local and federal officials implored the public to provide any evidence, including observations, by calling the FBI Tipline. FBI special agent in charge Richard DesLauriers said they had already received ‘voluminous’ tips.

“Today on ‘Good Morning America,’ former White House counter-terrorism advisor Richard Clarke said he believed this would be a case broken either very quickly or one that could require a much longer forensic effort. Officials today appeared to be preparing the public for the latter.

At trial, the prosecution showed this as Jabar’s backpack!

“This is the most complex crime scene we’ve ever dealt with in the history of our department,” Commissioner Davis said. Late Monday a tip about possible explosives led federal agents to search an apartment on the fifth floor of a building in Revere, but agents later told residents there was nothing to worry about. The overwhelming law enforcement response [was] to track and stop the people responsible.

“Authorities said the white smoke seen shortly after one of the detonations indicates small bombs with a simple, low-velocity, explosive mixture -- not military grade.”

“They knew how to make the bomb go BOOM,” said Nick Casale, security expert and former NYPD officer.” [Jeepers] ABC News’ Lee Ferran, Angela M. Hill, Cindy Galli and Matthew Mosk contributed to this report. [In particular, what did they contribute?]

Since I think the FBI, not Jahar, did the bombing, it seems that all those remarks are specious, including the one from a trauma doctor. Without doubt the MSM (mainstream media) were in on the event, as they are likely the scriptors in advance of the many scripted terrorist events (See Appendices C, E, and H.)

Pretending That a Major Newspaper Is Independent

In the colonial days of New England, any interested citizen might put out a pamphlet with his preferred thesis. Chronicling of events also became popular, without the writer trying to be all things to all men. I would say that a library is all things to all men as the library itself holds no position.

Recently 37-year-old Arthur Shulzberg took over as boss of the New York Times from his same-name father. He wrote:

“In 1896 my great-great-grandfather [Adolph Ochs] left his hometown, Chattanooga, and traveled north to purchase a small, fading newspaper in New York. He saw the need for a different kind of newspaper.... He vowed that The Times would be fiercely independent, dedicated to journalism of the highest integrity and devoted to the public welfare [no less!]. His vision for the opinion report was “to invite intelligent discussion from all shades of opinion.”

“The free exchange of ideas and the ability to hold power to account were prerequisites for a successful democracy. But a dangerous confluence of forces is threatening the press’s central role in helping people understand and engage with the world around them.... Misinformation is rising and trust in the media is declining as technology platforms elevate rumor and propaganda over real journalism.... [WHAT!]

Like our predecessors at The Times, my colleagues and I will not give in to these forces.”

That’s untrue. The MSM is on the front lines of an effort to change our culture in a particular direction. Media work for world government and oppose our popular input. Period.

How To Unpack a Quote

Consider ABC's May 1, 2013 headline by Ross and Karetsky - a fortnight after the Marathon: "Boston Suspect Month Before Attack: I Know How to Build a Bomb."

If you had only glanced at that headline – and many people do only notice the headlines, you'd go away thinking that Jahar did say "I know how to make a bomb," right? Read on:

"Just a month before three people were killed and more than 260 others injured when a pair of bombs ripped through the crowd near the finish line at the Boston Marathon, bombing suspect Dzhokhar Tsarnaev bragged to his friends that he knew how to build explosives, criminal complaints against three new suspects revealed today." [Em[phasis added]

Hello? The statement that Dzhokhar pronounced about his bomb-making ability came from police? It says the source is a "criminal complaint." That's usually written by police.

Let's continue: "Buried in the footnotes of court documents filed against three friends of Dzhokhar's is a reference to a chilling statement one of the friends, Azamat Tazhayakov, made to investigators in the days after the deadly attack."

So Azmat told this to the reporters, did he? No. We continue:

"Tazhayakov also informed the FBI agents that while eating a meal with Dzhokhar and [friend Dias] Kadyrbayev approximately one month prior to the Marathon bombing, Dzhokhar had explained to Kadyrbayev and Tazhayakov that he knew how to make a bomb," the court documents say."

Please re-read that. It's all in quotes, and attributed by the two journalists to "court documents." I guess that means that we could find those exact words in the relevant court documents, eh? In fact, it almost sounds like Azamat has spoken those very words to a judge or at least signed a written statement.

Wait. Inspect it more closely, please. It says “[Azmat] Tazhayakov informed the FBI agents.” Ah. I think that means that the FBI is the source for this media publication.

See? It says They say Azmat said that -- to them. Well, fine. We can chase after the proof of the FBI's claim, right? Wrong. You will never be able to track down any recording of an interview that an FBI agent conducts with any person, as there are none. FBI policy is to listen and then write it up on a Form 302. You have to depend on the FBI agent to write the 302 honestly.

A Word about Todashev, and Elena Teyer

In the current appeal of Jahar's case it is said that there is an FBI video of Ibraghim Todashev! Not from the FBI visit that proved fatal, but one made weeks before he died.

Todashev was a boxer and friend of Tamerlan. The FBI admits to killing him in May 2013 in his home. He had supposedly been writing a confession when he allegedly – very allegedly – threw a coffee table at FBI agent McFarlane.

Todashev had been married to Reniya Menukyan, the daughter of Elena Teyer. Elena is the person who shouted to Jahar as he was leaving the courtroom “We support you.” Now they have INDICTED Reniya. Wait till you hear why:

“[She] falsely stated to agents of the FBI's Joint Terrorism Task Force that a named individual with whom she associated had returned to Atlanta, Georgia, on a bus after his employment in Massachusetts ended in or about August 2011 when in fact and as the defendant well knew, the defendant met that individual in the State of New York on or about September 13, 2011, and drove him to Atlanta, Georgia.”

God, please help us.

9. I Was in Prison and You Visited Me

(published April, 2015)

Martin Bryant, in prison since 1996, Jahar Tsarnaev, since 2013

Headline: “Lawyer’s Trying To Explain Rude Gesture.” Can you believe they mean Jahar is giving the finger, as above? One newspaper said that the jurors were “stunned” when they saw it.

That is not humanly possible. I suggest that the people of Boston would be stunned if a lad of that age did NOT give somebody the finger after being bullet-wounded (totally illegally, and totally unprovoked) by a team of cops.

I want a properly convicted person to get what he deserves. That is, a loss of liberty. For every crime, the law specifies the punishments – a fine or prison term. No punishments can be added on. If a prisoner acts unruly, she might lose some “privileges,” such as phone calls or exercise time. But other than loss of liberty, no further punishing is legal. If it’s assault or torture, or theft from the prisoner, then of course it is criminal on the part of the person who does it.

Why doesn’t “the Church” speak out against the evils? In catechism class we heard this: “I was hungry and you fed me; I was thirsty and you gave me to drink. I was sick and imprisoned and you visited me.” It’s at Matthew 25:36. It led to rules of the Church, in which we became obliged, I repeat obliged, to do such things as visit the sick and the imprisoned. Parishes should have organized buses to jails.

Update: On October 29, 2108 I attended the Federalist Society lunch at Omni Parker House on Tremont St. The speaker was US Attorney General Jeff Sessions. Funnily enough, a priest jumped up to protest Session's talk. He said in a loud voice "I was hungry and you fed me; I was thirsty and you gave me to drink. I was imprisoned and you visited me."

Boston police escorted him out, politely, and the AG thanked him for his constitutionally appropriate contribution, as it were.

SAM's. Jahar Tsarnaev is under restrictions known as Special Administrative Measures, as discussed in Chapter 5. The ACLU in Boston wrote to Judge O'Toole asking to be allowed to argue against subjecting Jahar to the onerous SAM's:

"The attorney-client provisions of SAMs are no trifling matter. They threaten Tsarnaev's Sixth Amendment rights they limit the information that Tsarnaev's attorneys can pass on from Tsarnaev to other people; and they give the Bureau of Prisons apparent authority to decide which documents defense attorneys can show Tsarnaev himself." Judge O'Toole, however, denied the request.

Jahar's is being kept incommunicado is a blatant indication of the government's wish that he not be able to tell people what he did on Marathon Day. You may think this can only last a while, but Martin Bryant, the patsy in Australia, has been kept incommunicado for 22 years. Please assist both parties!

Judge O'Toole slapped a Restitution fee of a million dollars onto Jahar, that he must pay back to the victims. Perhaps this indebtedness is used against him such that friends sending money for Jahar's commissary account (e.g., to buy toothpaste) will find that their gift is instead donated to the Restitution fund.

In Chapter 5 we saw that the legality of SAM's is questionable, as it is a president-made law, and under the Constitution presidents can't make law. Article I, sec 8 lists 17 powers that the states granted to the new federal entity in 1787 (power to coin money, power to raise an army, etc) and then an 18th clause says that any law that is needed for the running of any Executive department must nevertheless be passed by the Legislator. Don't believe me? See:

"The Congress shall have Power To make all Laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into Execution the foregoing [seventeen] Powers and all other Powers vested by this Constitution in the Government of the United States, or in any Department or Office thereof."

Trouble Down by Plymouth Rock

Now we look at Matanov, a friend of Tamerlan whom we'll meet in Chapter 12. He complains about prison cruelty.

Hello.
Beautiful? I don't see myself like beautiful anymore they mess up my face.
After you had a problem with eye, now I come to you too. Ok, here is what happened.
They harass me so much I couldn't take it anymore, and I flood out my cell again, This time I didn't cuff out, so that's why they ~~split~~ split up and came with the team of like 7 people, First they spray the pepper spray, Left me in the cell for couple minutes I couldn't take a breath, ~~my~~ hands I try to take breath from under the door, LT spray that thing right on my face, than I put my hand out so they could handcuff me, they handcuffed me, I fell down my hands are on my back with the cuffs, then those people came into my cell. When I was like half dead no moving at all they jump on me so badly one of them stick his finger to my right eye (it's swollen right now full of blood) after the same person start sayin "you... muslim, terrorist" and kick my head (I have a concussion

It's safe to say that prisons are run by 'parties unknown.' Whitey Bulger was recently beaten to death shortly after being transferred from Florida to a prison in Virginia. The authorities are supposedly trying to figure out if a former enemy did it. A better guess is that he was taken out because he knew too much. He had earlier been an LSD experimentee in prison, by the way.

Whitey, at age 89 had been punished in prison for masturbating. He said he was just rubbing ointment to his genitals. Surely the prison's decision to punish him was pure harassment. I googled for "masturbation in prison" and was appalled to learn that it is punishable all over the place.

The family suffers. Prisons extremely overcharge for phone calls that the prisoner makes to his family. The late Martina Correia, sister of the judicially murdered Troy Davis, said that a family often makes a long trip to the prison and is then told that the visiting day has been changed, and they just missed it.

Matanov Deported

On his Facebook page, Matanov, now home in Uzbekistan, appears to be living well. He may have agreed to a payoff in exchange for silence. If so, I believe he does not have to adhere to that contract, as a contract based on crime is not enforceable. Also, he should look at codified federal law 18 USC 242:

“Whoever, under color of any law [or] regulation, willfully subjects any person ...to the deprivation of any rights, privileges, or immunities secured or protected by the Constitution or laws of the United States, or to different punishments, pains, or penalties, “on account of such person being an alien, ... than are prescribed for the punishment of citizens, shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than one year, or both; and if bodily injury results from the acts committed in violation of this section ... shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than ten years, or both.” [Emphasis added]

Isn't law wonderful? It is the great equalizer, if you but use it.

10. Shoot-out on Laurel St? Pick the Best Liar

(published January 27, 2016)

At 1:05am, Tamerlan was face down on Mt Auburn St sidewalk being frisked. We hear him yell “Podstava” – Russian for “I’ve been set up”

Then he was arrested, un wounded, stripped and taken away

In what condition did Tamerlan arrive at hospital? I’ve been curious about this, as I know he didn’t die from gun wounds. He was arrested un wounded, on the sidewalk at 586 Mt Auburn St, Watertown at 1:05am. The “Podstava video” shows him yelling Podstava – Russian for “I’ve been set up.” Soon after, he was put in a cop car naked; we saw it on CNN with Gabe Ramirez reporting. But officials ignore both those good videos.

As for Tamerlan being elsewhere -- on Laurel St -- at 12:30am, whose witnessing do you want to hear? I offer you four sources:

- the cop who fought with the apprehended Tamerlan
- an ambulance attendant who saw the wounds,
- a hospital director or similarly titled medical boss, or
- the lady who saw it all from her second-floor window.

Most of the quotes below appeared at WhoWhatWhy.org. We are talking about the Laurel St scenario in Watertown. That is the place where the official story claims the Tsarnaev brothers shot at cops and threw pipe bombs or IED's. An additional part of the story "that everybody knows" is that Jahar escaped by jumping into the SUV and ran over his brother. The timing of all this is just after midnight, the wee hours of Friday, April 19th. Four days after Monday's Marathon.

The Cop. I think the following was taken from a District Attorney's investigation (investigation? hello?). It says there was concern that the criminal could be wearing an explosive vest, endangering the life of any cop who touched him.

"Boston Police Superintendent-in-Chief Dan Linskey saw another ... officer holding Tamerlan on the ground and he ran over, worried that the suspect might be wearing an explosive vest -- worried that he might blow up the cop. The pair began to strip the suspect's clothes. An ambulance arrived for the officer. And cops called for an ambulance for the suspect...."

The Ambulance Driver. From trial transcripts provided by Josée Lépine at: thebostonmarathonbombing.weebly.com:

"Michael Sullivan, a Boston paramedic ... was qualified to work in any of the 3 ALS ambulances fielded every evening by the City of Boston. Prior to an equipment breakdown, Sullivan's ALS ambulance had been directed to the Watertown area to be 'ready' after reports of the Laurel street gunfire exchange went out over the police scanners.

"Testifying for the defense on Trial Day 52, April 29th, Sullivan described the wounds of the unidentified injured man he found already strapped down in the BLS A14 ambulance: "When I first got in the truck, I noticed that he had multiple trauma, and he had some -- and road rash." [That is what your skin gets if you are dragged by a car.]

"The two police, in the ambulance, corrected the paramedic with 26+ years of experience. 'No, no, no. It was a blast-type injury from an errant explosive device,' he was told. "He elaborates:

‘Some looked like they were apparent gunshot wounds, and others looked like shrapnel-type-appearing wounds.’ [Grammatically I think it should be ‘shrapnel-type’ or ‘shrapnel-appearing.’ ‘Shrapnel-type-appearing’ is hedging too much.]

“Sullivan described the patient, handcuffed and on his back, as combative, growling, rearing up, sweaty, pale, and resisting efforts to treat him. The man was suffering from shock and would allow only very limited medical intervention.” [But recall that Sgt MacLellan told me he saw the guy bleeding to death.]

The Big Cheese at the Hospital. This source is actually a twofer: Richard Wolfe, MD, Chief of Emergency Medicine at Beth Israel Deaconess Hospital in Brookline and a Dr Schoenfeld of that hospital’s Trauma Team.

“The trauma team immediately put a breathing tube in Tsarnaev’s throat, Dr. Schoenfeld said, then cut open his chest [with anesthesia?] to see if blood or other fluid was collecting around his heart. The technical term is a thoracotomy, releasing blood from the chest cavity and possibly massaging his stopped heart. He was also apparently given massive amounts of blood to replace what he had lost.”

Frankly I don’t know how a hospital would “apparently” give massive amounts of blood. Isn’t there a written record? Don’t nurses have to sign for something like that? How else would one get reimbursement from Blue Cross? As for Wolfe, the boss, I have seen him on Youtube. A more self-confident person does not walk the earth. Dr Wolfe is bearded and grandfatherly. He testifies:

“This was a trauma arrest, multiple injuries, probably, we believe, a combination of blast, potentially gunshot wounds.” Asked how many wounds, he said: ‘Unable to count.... The person arrived at the hospital in (cardiac) arrest.’”

The Lady at the Window. Finally – please remember I am preparing to tell you my method for picking out liars – there was a local who saw it all. Jean McDonald said “He was on his belly; he was moving.” She was watching from her second-floor bathroom window on Laurel Street. “I saw him [Tamerlan] trying to lift up his head.”

Another boy was shown on CNN that night (as below). I’m guessing he “posed” in order that we be confused. CNN won’t explain it. Note: this boy lacks the curly hair of a Chechen.

Deceit and Self-Deceiving

Dear Reader, how are you going with these sources of the case against Jahar? Did you feel comfortable with Dan the cop, Michael the ambulance driver, the two docs at Beth Israel Deaconess, and/or Jean the second-story lady? Ever since I heard that 9-11 was not dinki di, rolled gold, true blue, I’ve figured that when they put on a show – Port Arthur, OK City, Virginia Tech, Sydney siege -- they have to have, at the ready, a bevy of liars. I mentioned that Dr Wolfe is very persuasive. Could sell you the Sydney Harbor Bridge, no problem.

The ability to lie is an important part of human nature. And, as Randolph Nesse, MD, a leading sociobiologist says, we evolved the ability to self-deceive, as an adaptation to being better deceivers. That is, it helps if you believe what you are peddling.

So, naturally I’m not going to accept any of these observer’s reports of the criminal’s wounds. When the facts range widely - - road rash, blunt hit on the head, countless bullet wounds, a blast, the cut from a thoracotomy -- did I miss something, perhaps a pregnancy? -- I know they must all be wrong.

A big game of lying is involved here. I think there's no point trying to compare the likelihood of the blast, the cut, etc. If even one person says the boy ran over his brother (the road rash symptom), and other members of the group did not see the marks from that, we have to treat it all as fiction, don't we?

You will read in Appendix A that Watertown Police Commissioner Deveau said on radio that a car dragged Tamerlan 40 feet. As Gilbert & Sullivan once said, detail gives verisimilitude to an otherwise unconvincing narrative.

The Watertown Library Again

This chapter was not an attempt to give the reader a good glimpse of the 12:35am Laurel St shootout. I say the 1:05am Podstava video from Mt Auburn St proves there was no Laurel St shootout, or none with any Tsarnaevs. Still it's unfair to the reader for me not to pursue a few more details about Laurel St.

At the 7pm Open Mic session that followed my Library lecture on January 23, 2018, I was pleased that Sgt John MacLellan assisted. I asked him to clarify the identity of "the other naked man" who was photographed up against a wall with a Feeb standing next to him.

MacLellan said: "I was there at that scene. I went up to that scene and I told them to release him. We tried to contact this gentleman from that night, we put it out on social media. We tried to contact him because it was an outside agency who stripped him... and wanted to apologize to him."

Yours Truly interjected with horror "An outside agency?"

The sergeant replied:

“It was Boston police or state police; it was not Watertown police. Apparently the story that was told to us is that he did not speak English, they were telling him to show his hands, he wouldn’t. Whether he was under the influence of alcohol or didn’t understand, he might have had bombs so they told him ‘Keep taking things off, keep taking things off.’ -- I didn’t see that, but that’s the story we were told.”

All very suspicious. I’ve given him a name: Billy. If he no spicka the English, how would he understand “Take things off”?

Sgt John MacLellan’s Testimony at Jahar’s Trial

A. The older brother. Q. What happened? A. I was standing in the middle of the street. I had an empty weapon at the time but the suspect didn’t know that. I was giving him commands, “Get on the ground.” He had nothing in his hands. My thought was he was strapped with explosives. I was telling him to get on the ground; I didn’t want him to get near me. He was coming closer. Sergeant Pugliese put his hand on his shoulder, and he collapsed in the middle of the ground -- in the middle of the street.

...[Pugliese] said “We have got to cuff him. We have got to cuff him.” And I jumped on top and tried to help him. Q. Did he turn out to be strapped with any explosives? A. No. Q. What happened to prevent you from cuffing? A. As we were trying to ascertain if he had anything on him and trying to get his hands, I was yelling out, “You still got someone down range. Watch down range. Watch down range.” And almost immediately I heard, “Sarge, here he comes. Here he comes.” Q. Who are you referring to? A. The defendant. [Jahar] Q. What was he doing?

A. He was in the Mercedes now. You could hear the grinding of gears. You could hear that the vehicle was turning around. I looked up and it was coming towards us. Q. How fast was it coming? A. Very fast. Q. What happened? A. I told Sergeant Pugliese to disengage. I told him, "Get off him [Tamerlan]. Get off him. Here he comes." I pushed off and the vehicle struck the suspect and what I thought struck Sergeant Pugliese. It was a very violent -- the car was jumping back and forth. [Tamerlan] got stuck up under the wheels. And as it passed, I saw Sergeant Pugliese there, I asked him, "Are you all right?" He said,

"I'm okay." The vehicle continued on...it was bouncing back and forth. It struck the front of Officer Reynolds' vehicle. Q. What happened to -- the suspect who was caught up under the Mercedes, was that Tamerlan Tsarnaev? A. Yes, it was. [Notice the Defense didn't ask "Hey, how did you know that?"]

I do not think MacLellan is making the whole thing up. So please try to imagine that the guy being discussed here is not Tamerlan or Billy but 'anonymous.' Chapter 27 below, which requests the coroner to hold an inquest into the death of Tamerlan, will provide more trial testimony about the shoot-out.

In Chapter 2, I reported Sgt MacLellan's preposterous claim that a frightened woman went into a Cambridge police station saying she saw Collier's murder, and they did not pursue the matter! MacLellan also claims he released "Billy" without getting his ID. Nowadays even a jaywalker has to show ID. But the identity of the man who allegedly got run over deserves more investigation.

The FBI says it fingerprinted the person who arrived in the ambulance from Laurel St and it was Tamerlan. I say NO. Another witness, Mr Floyd, testified that he was watching the scene from his third-floor apartment. He said, when the car ran over Tamerlan you could see the taillights bounce up. That implies that Tamerlan was not just caught under the car but suffered being squashed by it. And yet, after this, according to MacLellan and Pugliese, Tamerlan was combative. (They also said that about Rodney King in 1992, and I took that to be a lie.)

I do not trust the story about the taillights

PART TWO

YOU WILL FIND THE LAW EMPOWERING

11. Martial Law – The End of the Republic?

Warrantless searches – was it really to locate the “missing” Jahar?

After the alleged Watertown shoot-out allegedly ended around 12.35am, April 19, 2013, the police began a manhunt for the person who had escaped after allegedly running over his co-shooter. At 6am the governor of Massachusetts, Deval Patrick, himself a former US Attorney, sent a message to all residents, by robo-call, asking them to “shelter in place.”

He didn’t order them, he asked them. So in strict legal terms one cannot say that the Boston area underwent martial law. If you had gone outside you’d purportedly not have been arrested. But no one dared. And in the presence of tanks the atmosphere was such that you would have felt like you were interfering with a vital military operation if your presence on the street so much as distracted the soldiers from their task.

It is my guess that the Iraq-like house to-house searches were intended to make people fearful. The government pretended that an enemy was on the loose, in order to command obedience. But let’s look back for a minute at how neighbors behaved when a real enemy was coming. The colonists in 1776 had declared independence from Britain which inevitably brought the “redcoats” to action. Please read the following poem out loud. (Note: I abridged it):

Paul Revere's Ride, by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow

....One, if by land, and two, if by sea;
And I on the opposite shore will be,
Ready to ride and spread the alarm
Through every Middlesex village and farm,
For the country folk to be up and to arm.

Then he climbed the tower of the Old North Church,
By the wooden stairs, with stealthy tread,
To the belfry-chamber overhead....
Beneath, in the churchyard, lay the dead,
In their night-encampment on the hill,
Wrapped in silence so deep and still
That he could hear, like a sentinel's tread,
The watchful night-wind, as it went
And seeming to whisper, "All is well!"
A moment only he feels the spell
Of the place and the hour, and the secret dread.
Meanwhile, impatient to mount and ride,
Booted and spurred, with a heavy stride

On the opposite shore walked Paul Revere.
Now he patted his horse's side,
Now gazed at the landscape far and near,
But mostly he watched with eager search
The belfry-tower of the Old North Church,
And lo! as he looks, on the belfry's height
A glimmer, and then a gleam of light!
He springs to the saddle, the bridle he turns,
A second lamp in the belfry burns! ...

That was all! And yet, through the gloom and the light,
The fate of a nation was riding that night;
And the spark struck out by that steed, in his flight,
Kindled the land into flame with its heat.
He has left the village and mounted the steep,
And beneath him, tranquil and broad and deep,

Is the Mystic, meeting the ocean tides;
It was twelve by the village clock,
When he crossed the bridge into Medford town.

It was one by the village clock,
When he galloped into Lexington.
And the meeting-house windows, blank and bare,
Gaze at him with a spectral glare,
As if they already stood aghast
At the bloody work they would look upon.

You know the rest. In the books you have read,
How the British Regulars fired and fled, —
How the farmers gave them ball for ball,
From behind each fence and farm-yard wall,
Chasing the red-coats down the lane,
Then crossing the fields to emerge again
Under the trees at the turn of the road,
And only pausing to fire and load.

So through the night rode Paul Revere;
And so through the night went his cry of alarm
To every Middlesex village and farm, —
A cry of defiance and not of fear,
A voice in the darkness, a knock at the door,
And a word that shall echo forevermore!

For, borne on the night-wind of the Past,
Through all our history, to the last,
In the hour of darkness and peril and need,
The people will waken and listen to hear.

It should be noted, however, that we don't always recognize an enemy:

“Although world government had been plainly coming for some years, although it had been endlessly feared and murmured against, it found no opposition prepared anywhere.” -- HG Wells, The Shape of Things To Come (1933)

Cui Bono?

We must ask Cui bono? Who gained? Did anyone come out better after the Marathon bombing? The fact that the Tsarnaevs have Islam as their religion gives US military action in the Middle East renewed justification. And the fact that there was great violence calls for stricter laws -- and better surveillance to avoid similar occurrences.

I propose that the main purpose of the Marathon bombing, was like that of several other scripted terror incidents. (See the appendices for events in Paris, Ottawa, Berlin, and don't forget 9-11.) That purpose is to making people feel scared and helpless. It also makes you distrustful and obedient.

Tavistock

The leaders in the field of cultural engineering were based, in the early 20th century, at a charity called Tavistock in London. Of course their website doesn't explicitly say "cultural engineering" but by their fruits ye shall know them.

"Tavi" connected with Stanford Research and with Allen Dulles' OSS group (which transformed into CIA in 1947.)

Tavi adherents included Aldous Huxley who wrote Brave New World, Timothy Leary who promoted LSD, and John Bowlby a psychologist who wrote Attachment and Loss. It is fairly well-established that the Top Bosses in our world employ scientists who know how to change culture by changing minds, and change minds by changing culture. Many people fail to face up to this stuff (by labeling it "conspiracy theory" or doubting that it is possible).

Is There a Law against Martial Law?

A perfect example of martial law is what happened that day in Watertown. Never mind the claim that it was voluntary. Troops with guns drawn kicked people out of their homes. And did not let them back in for hours. Did this breach the US Constitution.

Per the Fourth Amendment, a police person cannot search your home unless he has a warrant signed by a judge based on reasonable suspicion that you have committed a crime, and the warrant specifies what is to be searched for. But if police and judges are actually working for someone other than the people, it's up to us to make good on the law.

The Way an Emergency Can Bully

The word “emergency” brings out emotions that make you want to participate in a short-term extra-effort to help someone. That is, if the need arises from the group. But if a boss is running it you may still want to “participate” but you’ll also feel belittled. And it will be hard for you to signal to your neighbors that the boss may be wrong.

The Framers of the Constitution prepared us not to be fooled by sudden emergency. Thus SCOTUS ruled in 1931:

“Emergency does not create power. Emergency does not increase granted power or remove or diminish the restrictions imposed upon power granted or reserved. The Constitution was adopted in a period of grave emergency. Its grants of power to the Federal Government and its limitations of the powers of the States were determined in the light of emergency” Home Builders v Blaisdell

Congress nevertheless has “legitimized” some powers:

1953: Internat’l Economic Emergency Act – re Korean War

1974: Stafford Disaster Relief Act –states get federal funding

1976: National Emergency Act – prez can decide for 6 mos

1994: Violent Crimes Control Act – army can fight drug crimes

1994: Defense against Weapons of Mass Destruction Act

2002: Homeland Security Act – mandatory vaccinations, yes!

When Is Martial Law Acceptable?

The Constitution provides for martial law by saying that Congress can revoke the right of habeas corpus in emergency. (To pursue the fine points I recommend you check out what Louis Fisher has to say, e.g. in his The Constitution and 9-11.)

FEMA came about by Executive Order 12148. It is thus illegal per US Constitution Article I, sec 8, Clause 18. (as the executive can never make law – that’s for the legislature). Then Jimmy Carter in 1979 transferred presidential power to FEMA illegally. Of course that means FEMA is void.

States have FEMA-like organizations. Boston has an Emergency Management Agency. Its leader, Richard Serino, gave a presentation in 2008 showing the Marathon Finish Line as a sample location for a terrorist attack. In it he says “Develop good relations with media so they get the story right.” If it’s real, how would they get it “wrong”?

SWAT (special weapons and tactics) teams are part of the illegal FBI. Sgt MacLellan said the shooters at the boat were not his. Folks, this is a warning that what happened to Jahar can will happen to you. Who authorized the 228 bullets to be shot at the boat. ? We were wrongly told they were cops. You need to crack down on “secret police in America.”

Massachusetts’ Original Constitution in 1780:

The governor can repel, resist, expel, and pursue, by force of arms, as by sea as by land, and also to kill, slay, and destroy, if necessary, and conquer, by all fitting ways whatsoever, all and every such person and persons as shall, at any time hereafter, in a hostile manner, attempt or enterprise the destruction, invasion, or annoyance of this commonwealth.

Please see my Youtube video “Massachusetts Governor, please arrest the FBI,” in which I urge use of the state constitution:
Note: I am not an advocate of revolution, but of rule of law.

What Is the Legality of Military Tribunals?

Martial law is sometimes associated with military tribunals. In 1942 President Roosevelt decided that German enemy saboteurs in the US could be tried and executed without due process of law. In ex parte Quirin, the US Supreme Court OK'd this.

FDR got Congress's permission to intern US citizens of Japanese descent in West coast states. That, too, was upheld by SCOTUS. Later, a Writ of Error Coram Nobis was used to acquit Fred Korematsu from breaking a curfew, and in 1988 Congress paid compensation to the Japanese Americans.

On September 14, a mere three days after the 9-11 attacks, Congress signed an Emergency, and has renewed it every year since. (This discussion is an aside to the Marathon manhunt! Governor Patrick used state powers to shut down transport, etc.)

Should we worry that due process can officially be skipped if martial law is declared? (Remember: only Congress can bring martial law into effect, by suspending habeas corpus:

Article I section 9 of the Constitution: "The Privilege of the Writ of Habeas Corpus shall not be suspended unless when in Cases of Rebellion or Invasion the public Safety may require it."

In 2006, Congress passed a Military Commissions Act, "to authorize trial by military commission for violations of the law of war, and for other purposes." It was updated in 2009. In Hamdi v Rumsfeld in 2004, SCOTUS had said that a US citizen can be deemed an enemy combatant – but has rights to a trial. Jose Padilla was included in the Hamdi case for threatening to bomb.

The DOJ can prosecute Americans per the 1996 War Crimes Act. It has all the domestic law it needs, per 18 USC 2441: "Whoever, whether inside or outside the United States, commits a war crime..." In sum, "the end of the Republic" has not come yet, but the militarization seen in Watertown on April 19, 2013 is a worry.

12. Gagging the Friends of a “Terrorist”

Tom Paine (born 1738)

Robel Phillipos (born 1994)

Robel was Jahar's classmate at Cambridge Rindge and Latin

This chapter is about the gagging and censoring of people who try to reject the lies, and propaganda and tell the truth.

Dishonesty is natural. All people are wired to look out for their survival and advantage. The liar attempts to better his situation by deceiving others. Even animals deceive to better their position, for example by puffing up to look bigger.

Societies have overcome the problem through their religions or other ideals that promote the value of truth. I think this is also a way of counteracting the powerful. One of the main uses of deception by the powerful is to hide their plundering deeds. The concept of freedom of speech is a resisting of the powerful's ability to keep everyone in the dark.

Why aren't all decent Bostonians protesting the gagging?? Isn't it 1776 part of our tourism appeal? Battle on Lexington Green, anyone? Or the fact that John Adams penned a Massachusetts Bill of Rights that led to the big US one?

Have a look at some of the rights Adams named for the state constitution. The bolding has been added by moi to suit the immediate complaint about the gagging of Jahar's friends. And note the key word: covenant.

Constitution of Massachusetts of 1780

Preamble: The body politic is formed by a voluntary association of individuals; it is a social compact by which the whole people covenants with each citizen and each citizen with the whole people that all shall be governed for the common good.

PART THE FIRST ... A DECLARATION OF RIGHTS

Art. V. All power residing originally in the people, and being derived from them, the several magistrates and officers of government vested with authority, whether legislative, executive, or judicial, are the substitutes and agents, and are at all times accountable to them.

Art. VII. Government is instituted for the common good, for the protection, safety, prosperity, and happiness of the people, and not for the profit, honor, or private interest of any one man, family, or class of men; therefore the people alone have an incontestable ... right to institute government, and to reform, alter, or totally change the same when their protection, safety, prosperity, and happiness require it.

Art. VIII. In order to prevent those who are vested with authority from becoming oppressors, the people have a right to cause their public officers to return to private life.

Art. XI. Every subject of the commonwealth ought to find a certain remedy, by having recourse to the laws, for all injuries or wrongs which he may receive in his person, property, or character. He ought to obtain right and justice.

Art. XII. No subject shall be held to answer for any crimes or no offence until the same is fully and plainly, substantially and formally, described to him; or be compelled to accuse, or furnish evidence against himself; and every subject shall have a right to produce all proofs that may be favorable to him; to meet the witnesses against him

Art. XIII. In criminal prosecutions, the verification of facts, in the vicinity where they happen, is one of the greatest securities of the life, liberty, and property of the citizen.

Art. XIV. Every subject has a right to be secure from all unreasonable searches and seizures of his person, his house....

Tom Paine was the great champion of free speech, best known for his writings: Common Sense (imagine that: common sense!) and The Rights of Man. He was constantly on the street, waking people up both in revolutionary America and France.

I grew up in the Paine tradition. His ideals were taught in schools. Yup. They inspired Supreme Court rulings. Americans highly prized the right of each person to criticize government. That's why I was able to pen Chapter 1's accusations against the FBI with nary a qualm.

(I do realize, though, that Paine was imprisoned in Paris under Robespierre and came very close to being guillotined.)

Gagging the Relatives and Friends of Jahar

Robel Phillipos is a UMass/Dartmouth mate of Jahar who was interrogated by the FBI, charged, and convicted. Of what? Of "lying to the FBI." The whole set-up is fraudulent. Some FBI officials knew about the Marathon event before it ever happened. Their purpose in arresting Jahar's friends must have been to gag them against providing any interviews. And a side benefit would be to magnify society's "terror."

Robel's lie was that he said he was asleep (weeded up, actually) when the two other boys plotted to throw Jahar's goods in the dumpster. One of the boys testified against Robel. Oddly, part of Robel's punishment was house arrest for a year – complete with ankle bracelet. (Isn't that rich?) Robel, a US citizen, did his time and now is on probation until 2021.

Former Massachusetts Governor Michael Dukakis, age 81, appeared at Robel's trial in 2014 as a character witness for the accused. Not that it had any effect!

Three of the boys have finished jail and been deported: Matanov, Azmat Tazhayakov and Dias Kadybayev. Plus we will meet Stephen Silva in Chapter 19, who was "coaxed" by a plea bargain to pretend that he had lent a gun to the young Chechen.

Dias and Jabar

"Cabbie" Matanov

Khairullozhon Matanov the Cab Driver ("Cabbie")

Matanov's pepper-spraying in Plymouth prison was described in Chapter 9. A cab driver, age 22, Khairullozhon sent most of his pay home to relatives. After the Marathon, in 2013, he dined that night at Satwas Restaurant with none other than the two Tsarnaev brothers. He observed that Tamerlan was in full beard, as usual. Yet when the FBI released the photos of the suspected bombers, Cabbie saw that in the photo, Tamerlan was clean-shaven.

Naturally he started to tell everyone that something was wrong and that Tam could not have done a bombing clean-shaven, and a few hours later have a beard. Even a heavy dose of testosterone can't make you hirsute that fast.

The FBI wanted to nab Matanov but they had no cause, so had to wait more than a year. Then they got him for lying to the FBI. (Thank God I have never done that!) During the year of wait, the FBI harassed the daylights out of him, including by surveilling him while he was driving. This is from his trial:

Q. Did he exhibit any other behavior that suggested that he was aware that he was being followed? A. Yes... on May 19, 2013, Mr. Matanov was under surveillance again, and the surveillance team noticed that on several different occasions throughout the day that he was making some evasive driving styles. He was making sharp turns, traveling in an erratic manner on the Expressway, going through different lanes of traffic quickly.... [to evade the FBI's dangerous stalking!]. (See Document 5 below.)

Sympathetic Cheryl Dean wrote to Matanov in jail: She says: "He replied, saying the feds had deployed a big drone to follow his every move until they arrested him. He said 'It was like huge hawks circling a tiny sparrow just waiting for the perfect time to swoop down and devour that little sparrow for no reason at all just to be cruel.'"

The Manipulation of Culture

So what's going on now? How did the high ideals of free speech in America lose their vigor? There were two methods. One was simply that a corrupt Congress passed outrageous laws such as the Patriot Act – six weeks after 9-11.

The other method was by cultural change. Yuri Bezmenov explains, in a valuable 1983 interview with Ed Griffin, now on Youtube, how he was assigned by his Soviet leaders to ruin American culture. "You start with the three-year-old's. A complete cultural change takes only 15 years."

As Daniel Estulin says in his book Tavistock Institute, Sesame Street was part of a controlled change. He points out that the children's fascination with the Sesame Street characters was the way of getting their attention and then messages could be sent to them. Estulin says Sesame St money came from the Rockefeller-controlled Carnegie Foundation. There is also the matter of omission from the textbooks. Kids today are not shown the rules about honesty. One can assume they would not "get" the Pinocchio fable.

High school students aren't taught history and the technique of applying the lessons of history to the present. A phrase such as "Greece's Golden Age" would not ring any bells. I doubt if kids know about putting history "down the memory hole" as was Big Brother's policy in Orwell's 1984.

Orwell (who must surely have had insider knowledge) spoke of twisting the meaning of words entirely such as “war is peace” and “slavery is freedom.” In Jahar’s case we had a white backpack being called black, by lawyers!

Tightening the Noose

Legislatures around the world, supposedly guided by UN Security Council Resolution 2253, have passed laws to criminalize free speech. A full turning back of the Tom Paine clock! Germany and other European countries got a jump on this law by making “Holocaust denial” and “Holocaust minimization” criminal. The alleged justification is that denial hurts the feelings of families whose loved one’s died in the Nazi concentration camps (a familiar excuse by those who don’t want investigation). Many Germans are arrested every year for this free-speech crime. In Tasmania, Australia there has been a taboo for 20 years on discussing the Port Arthur massacre. You can guess there’s a reason for that.

The Fixated Persons Act

You may recall that in the Soviet Union, people who made trouble by telling the truth or bucking the system were sent not to jail but to psychiatric hospitals where they could be drugged into submission. The Australian state of New South Wales is “pioneering” a similar technique.

The law is called – are you sitting down? – The Fixated Persons Act. You can be arrested and taken away for 14 days. Your fixation may be on a grievance (taxes too high?) about which you post comments on the Internet. Or maybe you made too many Freedom of Information Act requests.

Happily this can’t happen in the US; it’s unconstitutional, But as I said, rights exist because we have covenanted with each other. Don’t depend on authorities – depend on each other!

13. Photo Gallery

A typical batch of groomsmen. Red-vested Jahar seems to be best man

I think all the Tamerlan shots related to Marathon were either inserted by photo-shop into still pictures, or, if they are videos, then the man was an actor, not the real Tamerlan. As for Jahar, maybe he was at the 2013 Marathon, but maybe not. Some pictures of him below may be from the 2012 Marathon.

If you've never done any photo-shopping you should try it; it's ridiculously easy. Let's check out some of the key pix. Jurors were shown images intended to support 11 claims:

1. that both boys walked on Boylston St at the 2013 Marathon
2. that Jahar stood near 8-year-old Martin Richard
3. that Jahar put a backpack on the ground with a bomb
4. that Jahar talked on his cell phone at the crucial time
5. that the boys walked away, not panicking like the others
6. that the boys killed MIT cop Sean Collier, to get his gun
7. that Jahar used Dun Meng's ATM card to steal $800
8. that the Mercedes parked near the pumps at Shell station
9. that Jahar bought snacks at the Shell convenience store
10. that the brothers shot at cops on Laurel St.

We can divide this chapter into “the time before or during the Marathon” and “later that week” (regarding alleged carjacking, killing Collier, and being in a shoot-out in Watertown.)

Before and During the Marathon

Consider the above picture. The child furthest to the left is Denise Richard in green and her brother Martin is next to her, then her mom, Denise. In back of Denise, the woman with blond hair and an aqua jersey is me, Mary Maxwell. No, I did not attend the Marathon; my friend Ian made it happen -- and he isn't even particularly skilled at photo-shop.

Now look to the right of me and see Jahar in a white hat and then President Trump. About three persons to the right of Trump is Josef Stalin, applauding. He died in 1953. Prime Minister Turnbull of Australia is at far right. Jahar was NOT inserted by my friend Ian. He is part of this famous photo. But was he inserted by someone else into the famous photo?

Note Tamerlan's lack of a beard. His family insists that he grew a beard for religious reasons in 2012 and never shaved it off. I think Jahar, too, is looking a bit young there. The facial features seem OK. As for why he is posing in a silly way (above)? We don't know. In this similar shot the brothers look normal:

Now for a picture of Tamerlan supposedly taken at the Marathon, which was shown in court. I can't see the face well enough to judge but the body does not seem heavy enough.

As for this next one, it's probably too jowly to be Jahar.

Below is a genuine photo of Jahar, as was used on the front cover of Rolling Stone magazine. He is not jowly.

Jahar and sister Ailina have a resemblance. Both siblings have a similar chin, but it doesn't stick out as much as the chin of the "Coram Boy" or "Dorito boy" – names made up by me. (Talk about body doubles – Jahar may have had body triples!)

"Coram boy" -- Court Exhibit 22K

This picture appears in my petition for a writ of Corn Nobis, which you can find at the end of this book as Document 4. My friend Dee McLachlan, a professional filmmaker, had discovered when inspecting that Court exhibit 22K, which is a video, that one of the frames was not part of the video but had been inserted, and also cropped. So I made a stink to the Court. On later reflection, however, I believe it is not Jahar at all. It is a stand-in for Jahar. Wrong nose and his chin flips out too much. Is he touching the chin to disguise it? At the Shell station, the one I call “Dorito boy” also touches his chin (see below).

Admittedly, I’m stymied on this next one. Yet I don’t know how a filmmaker can photoshop such things. I also don’t see why the boys have so much space in which to walk by themselves at a crowded sports event. And what’s with the single-file?

Recall that in Chapter 12 I argued that Tamerlan was bearded on April 15, so how can he be only stubble material in this photo? Now let’s move to Thursday night during the carjacking. Guy at the left, at an ATM, is not Jahar, not even in the ballpark! Guy on right, we’re told, is Tamerlan, near the Shell gas pumps.

I think it is an actor. And no need for that photograph to have been made on the exact night, if it's all dished up by Quantico.

At Shell Station

Well, I can now show you the actor whom I call "Dorito boy." Part of Dun Meng's narrative about the carjacking is that the brothers wanted to get gas and buy snacks for further travel that night. So they stopped at a Shell. Jahar went in and bought Dorito's. I now claim that the lad in the Shell shop is not Jahar, but a stand-in: "Dorito boy." Does not even match ATM boy!

I display the chin-grabber again, below. A point of real interest above is that the shopper reaches for cold food with left hand, but in the Wholefoods video, the real Jahar uses his right.

On the right is an unidentifiable Dun Meng, allegedly making a run for it when he escaped from his captor, Tamerlan. (Do you see or hear a bullet whizzing past? So implied The Boston Globe.)

Above, as Dorito/Jahar exits the store, we can see brother Tamerlan waiting outside. Someone has circled him in black.

One can try to theorize from the clothing. Tamerlan as shown earlier near the pumps is in black pants, but wears khaki in the Podstava arrest on Mt Auburn. I think the Podstava photo is 100% genuine, I assume the shot at Shell pumps is of an actor.

And here are personal pix so you can study the nose in profile:

Regarding the naked man video that Gabe Ramirez of CNN narrated in a live broadcast in the wee hours of April 19, it is Tamerlan. (See the Zoologist's real-time notes of what was being said on radio that night -- in Appendix A.)

There's a surveillance video of brothers coming down stairs at their gym, which the voice-over says was shortly before the day of Marathon. I doubt it. In it Jahar looks only age 17 or so. I'm so sick of lies and lying and liars.

14. Show Trials -- Judith Shklar's Five Criteria

(published September 9, 2015)

Judith Shklar (1928-1992), professor of Government

Some political scientists understand law better than law professors. This is because they are in the habit of seeing legal events and ideas in a broad context of life.

The late Judith Shklar is one such political scientist. She had a way of seeing law as it related to personal psychology and culture, in her magnificent 1968 book, Ordinary Vices, and as it relates to politics in The Liberalism of Fear (1978).

Her 1964 book, Legalism, reflects her thinking about Stalinist Russia, and perhaps Nazi Germany. In part of that book she discusses “political trials.” Soviet leader Josef Stalin famously held political trials known as “show trials.” These helped him remove any challengers, and set an example to all persons as to what the dictator might do to them if they did not conform.

Shklar wrote, in Legalism, page 149:

“What distinguishes most, though not all, political trials is that they scorn the principle of legality, which, ideally, renders criminal law just. To some degree most political trials follow Goebbels’s famous dictum that trials should not begin with the idea of law but with the idea that this man must go. The judge will be subservient to the prosecution, the evidence false, the accused bullied, the witnesses perjured, and the rules of law and procedure ignored.” (1964: 149)

The onlookers to such a case need not be concerned with “what really happened.” The real happening is the dispatching of the accused person to his or her fate, or, more generally, the asserting of the right of the rulers to do whatever they please.

The Boston Marathon Bombings

We do not know who planted the bombs that caused injuries at the Finish Line of the 2013 Boston Marathon. The jury verdict against Dzhokhar Tsarnaev does not clinch it. For, while the jurors were shown some evidence, they had been deprived of key relevant evidence, and heard much false testimony, some of which deserves the adjective “fantastic.”

Let’s map out whether Tsarnaev’s trial, in the US, was a show trial, according to the five characteristics named above by Judith Shklar. I’ll deal with each of the five, reversing the order in which she listed them.

1. (Shklar): “The rules of law and procedure ignored”

The initial police complaint was laid by Officer Daniel Genck. The purpose of a complaint is to establish that there’s a case to answer. Genck stated that he compared the faces of two men as shown on an ATM video with their Massachusetts Registry of Motor Vehicles (RMV) mug shots.

“I have reviewed images of two men taken at approximately 12:17 a.m. by a security camera at the ATM and the gas station convenience store where the two carjackers drove with the victim in his car. [Both cameras show 12.17?]

Based on the men’s close physical resemblance to RMV photos of Tamerlan and Dzhokhar, I believe the two men who carjacked, kidnapped, and robbed the victim are Tamerlan and Dzhokhar Tsarnaev....”

Genck was entitled to claim that he had found a match. But I say he should only have said “the two men who Dun Meng alleges to have carjacked him.” I say he ignored the rules.

There is also the strange deviation from the norm by FBI. The, Federal Bureau of Investigation has no police power and no authority to tell the citizens what to do. (It is a bureau of investigation, see?) Yet in the wake of the Boston Marathon bombing, an FBI agent went on television to instruct the public not to use any photographs except “authorized” ones in the search for the suspects. Amazing! FBI agent DesLauriers said:

[These are the only photos] the public should view to assist us. Other photos should not be deemed credible, and they unnecessarily divert the public’s attention in the wrong direction and create undue work for vital law enforcement resources....”

Also, the mother of the boys stated, as soon as the manhunt for her sons began, that the FBI and CIA had often been in touch with him – and herself -- over a few years. This refutes the FBI’s proclaimed ignorance about the two Tsarnaev brothers.

2. (Shklar): “The witnesses perjured”

Watertown police officer Sergeant John MacLellan testified at the trial of Dzhokhar Tsarnaev that the accused had hurled a pressure cooker bomb at him, on Laurel Street, during confrontation with police, on April 19, 2013.

This cannot be true. No such confrontation, at which the Tsarnaevs were free to shoot at police, could have taken place. The Podstava video was posted on Youtube on May 11, 2013. It shows Tamerlan, age 26, lying face down on the sidewalk, being frisked and then escorted to a police car. So he must have been in custody from that moment onward.

Is the Podstava video genuine? The Tsarnaev family members in Russia have confirmed that the appearance and the voice are that of Tamerlan. The photographer of that video nicknamed Big Headphones, seems from the text of the video, to be a resident of Watertown living on Mt Auburn Street from which some of the video was shot – not Laurel St. And recall that the family also agrees that the naked man being led to a cop car is Tamerlan. He shows no signs of having been wounded.

3. (Shklar): “The accused bullied”

Before his trial, Jahar was in hospital. Despite his being very injured – and very bereaved – he was interrogated by a Gitmo team as a “high value” detainee, injured from gunshot. Also, it is not clear why law enforcement would send bullets into a boat rather than find other ways to apprehend the suspect. He was, only a suspect, not a fugitive.

Next, we look at the period of imprisonment to identify any bullying. The public has hardly seen Jahar, so we can’t know what he may have endured. However, it’s reported officially that he is in solitary confinement most of the time. That is known to lead to mental derangement and is considered torture. Update: Howie Carr of Boston.com says Jahar is in luxury with cable TV. Unlikely.

As for the accused being bullied in court, this did not happen as he did not take the stand. Perhaps he wanted to take the stand, and may have been bullied out of it.

4. (Shklar): “The evidence false”

A piece of false evidence is the text of Jahar’s “confession,” allegedly written by him on the wall of the boat. It included this:

“I do not mourn because his [Tamerlan’s] soul is very much alive. God has a plan for each person. Mine was to hide in this boat and shed some light on our actions.... The U.S. Government is killing our innocent civilians but most of you already know that. As a M (bullet hole) I can’t stand to see such evil go unpunished, we Muslims are one body, you hurt one you hurt us all. ...Now I don’t like killing innocent people it is forbidden in Islam but due to said (bullet hole) it is allowed.”

How would he have known that Bro was dead?

How did so many bullets get inside the boat without killing Jabar?

5. (Shklar): “The judge will be subservient to the prosecution”

American courts run on an adversarial system, with each of the two private parties expected to “do its worst.” The judge is neutral and adjudicates the matter by applying law. In a criminal case, one of the two parties is usually the state prosecutor. The judge should treat the two sides equally but “equality” is hard to achieve.

Here we note Judith Shklar’s fifth criterion for a show trial, that “the judge will be subservient to the prosecution.” There always exists a tendency for a judge to be more state-friendly than accused-friendly. That can be deduced from the fact that legislatures have at times recognized a need to make specific enactments to protect accused persons from the judge!

Also, jurors see only what the judge determines to be admissible evidence. What if someone is leaning on the judge?

In the strange behavior of Tsarnaev’s defense team we see the biggest hint of “subservience of the judge to the prosecution.” That is to say, if the defense acts against its own client we suspect the prosecutor to be the cause of that. (Why else would it happen?) If the prosecution is thus “in charge” of the defense, it probably controls the judge as well.

Judge O’Toole, in this trial, did not noticeably rise above the fray and curtail any of the prosecutor’s moves. The following are some of the items, other than those mentioned earlier, that may cause one to see this judge as subservient to the prosecution:

- He allowed every manner of emotional pitch to be made by the victims of the bombing, including references to patriotism.
- He allowed the pre-trial holding of Dzhohkar in solitary.
- He never alluded to the state of bereavement (and physical injury) the accused was in.
- He did not take judicial notice of many issues that members of the public were talking about, such as the occurrence of a drill that day or the FBI afternoon visit to MIT.
- His instructions to the jury did not warn of the pressures the jury would be under in such a public case.
- He acted as if he did not notice the discrepancy between the color of the accused backpack (white or grey) and the color of the backpack that exploded (black).

Most startling is Judge O’Toole’s refusal to take judicial notice of relevant side events. One is the death of Tamerlan’s friend Ibragim Todashev. His murder looks to many people as a way of getting rid of a person who could have pointed to the real bombers and thus helped Jahar. Suppression of evidence in a big way! Many friends of the brothers, were taken out of circulation by arrest, deportation, or harassment.

Finally, my answer to the question posed above: Does the Tsarnaev trial appear to be a show trial in the sense in which Judith Shklar described political trials? is: No, not strictly speaking. Jahar was probably meant to die in the boat, via 228 bullets. They never would have wanted to show off his trial.

Shklar’s Understanding of Unbridled Power

Recall the words from Judith Shklar in her book Legalism:

“What distinguishes most, though not all, political trials is that they scorn the principle of legality, which, ideally, renders criminal law just. To some degree most political trials follow Goebbels’s famous dictum that trials should not begin with the idea of law but with the idea that this man must go.”
[Emphasis added]

That is where we stand today. The power of the Executive branch of government, which houses the DoJ and hence the FBI, is unbridled. The US Attorneys appear to be puppets of someone above them – perhaps a consortium of the mega-corporations? The Framers of the Constitution didn't envision that economic power. Also, they made no place for "US Attorney Prosecutors" as there was no federal criminal law.

They placed checks and balances in the Constitution by having the interests of one branch of government control the other two. The Constitution also sets two additional players against the accumulation of power – the states and the people.

By contrast, I see three layers of power today: the (Secret) Top Dogs, the Members of Government, and Us. The Top Dogs are in control of the layer immediately under them, the government.

But this need not continue. We at the bottom can control the government. Take heart from the Preamble to the Massachusetts Constitution:

The end of the institution, maintenance, and administration of government, is to secure the existence of the body politic, to protect it, and to furnish the individuals who compose it with the power of enjoying in safety and tranquillity their natural rights, and the blessings of life: and whenever these great objects are not obtained, the people have a right to alter the government, and to take measures necessary for their safety, prosperity and happiness.

UPDATE: As of 2019, the people of France are having a lot to say about their safety, versus government. Thousands of citizens, wearing yellow vests, earnestly parade through the streets of Paris finding out from one another how leaders commit crimes against them. Amazingly, the only reaction coming from the top, so far has been violent attacks on the protestors.

15. Cheryl Dean's Devastating Questions

Defense team: David Bruck, Miriam Conrad, Wm Fick, Judy Clarke

These 17 questions are posed by Cheryl Dean to persons that figured in the trial.

1. To Judy Clarke, Dzhokhar's "death penalty lawyer":

When the remnant of a black backpack was shown in court and said to be Dzhokhar's backpack, why didn't you mention that Dzhokhar's backpack was white? This was the only piece of evidence linking Dzhokhar to the bombing site, yet no one on the defense team seemed to think it was important.

2. To David Bruck of the Defense Team:

Before the trial started, during a status conference, you stated to the prosecution: "We all know that this case is all about sentencing". Why would you say this? Were you just an extended member of the prosecution? Isn't there a professional obligation, never mind a moral obligation, to defend your client?

3. To Officer St. Onge:

You are the one who reportedly came face to face with Dzhokhar on Spruce St. after he fled in the SUV, then jumped out of the SUV and got away on foot. He was wounded and bleeding -- why didn't you run after him? Surely you could have caught him. It then took law enforcement 19 hours to find him.

4. To Matthew Isgur, the man who manages the cameras on the MIT campus:

When you took the stand, the prosecutor played a video, Exhibit 724, made of excerpts from a one-hour video you put together, covering 10pm to 11p.m. on the night of April 18, 2013. You said there are 1200 cameras on campus. Why did you show only a very far-away picture?

5. To Carmen Ortiz, the Prosecutor in this case:

Why did you edit that video, omitting the actual time when Collier was killed?

US Attorney Carmen Ortiz

6. To Sgt Clarence Henniger of campus police:

As a member of the MIT campus police for 40 years, you knew the scene intimately. On April 18 you told media that the FBI had been on campus that afternoon (hours before Sean Collier was killed). Why were they there?

Sgt Clarence Henniger

7. To Richard DesLauriers, Boston Head of FBI:

Why did you allow officer Sean Collier's cruiser to be completely destroyed barely 3 weeks after the bombing? It had not crashed or had any chemical contamination. Isn't that destroying evidence? The defense had not even seen the cruiser before it was destroyed. What is your excuse?

8. To Marian Ryan, District Attorney Middlesex County:
At your press conference you were asked the question, “Why weren’t trained dogs brought in to find an allegedly wounded Dzhokhar, as he fled and hid from the Watertown ‘shootout’”? You couldn’t answer that then. Why not? Please answer now.

9. To George A O’Toole, judge in the case:
Why did you put hundreds of documents under seal?

Judge George A O’Toole

10. To Jeff Bauman, the man whose legs were blown off:
You say that you locked eyes with Tamerlan Tsarnaev while he was standing beside you at Bomb Scene One. How can you lock eyes with someone who is wearing very dark type sunglasses?

11. To Judy Clarke:
Why did defense staff in Russia, in 2015 -- after the trial had started -- beg family members to ask Dzhokhar to plead guilty?

12. To Carmen Ortiz:
Where is the receipt for the gas allegedly purchased at the gas station, while Dun Meng, the carjackee was in his SUV with both Tsarnaev brothers, just before he bravely “escaped”? It was testified to in court that gas was pumped into the car and purchased, that is, paid for. You managed to find Tamerlan’s high school diploma (in his own car!), but no gas receipt, to prove the whole carjacking story. And how about fingerprints?

13. To Dun Meng Why didn’t you provide the key information in your first interview, about Tamerlan confessing that he killed Collier? And that while you were in the witness box you kept your gaze at a teacher from Northeastern Professor James Fox. Were you depending on him to guide your answers?

14. To Loretta Lynch, US Attorney-General:

Why did you allow the cruel and unusual and unwarranted Special Administrative Measures to be imposed? Muslim “terrorists” are all under SAM’s, all to “protect” National Security. However, the flimsy 5 reasons given by Carmen Ortiz who asked for the SAM’s did not include “to protect National Security” as one of the reasons. Tell us the real reason.

15. To Nathan Harman, MIT student:

Heather Frizzell has done a test run, on a bike, at the relevant stretch of the MIT campus. She found that to turn her head and look at Collier’s car would have occupied about one second and that this would not have given her a chance to notice that Dzhokhar’s clothing had writing on it. Did you slow down?

16. To Judy Clarke:

Why did you say in your opening statement, “It was him” pointing to your client. How did you know this? Since Dzhokhar never changed his plea to guilty, what legal right did you have to announce on the first day of trial that “It was him”?

17. To Carmen Ortiz:

We saw a surveillance video of Dun Meng inside the gas station to which he “escaped” after being carjacked by the Tsarnaevs. In the video we see his keys hanging from his back pocket. (Shouldn’t they still be in the ignition?) Why weren’t Dun Meng’s car keys tested for Tamerlan’s fingerprints? Were the door handles tested?

Conclusion

Cheryl Dean concluded her list by saying: “Dzhokhar Tsarnaev should be safe and warm, at home, right now, never having stepped foot into the Supermax solitary H Unit in Florence, Colorado, which is where he is today.”

16. What the Massachusetts Governor Can Do:

Open Letter to Charlie Baker (published September 10, 2015)

Your Excellency, Dear Governor,

Greetings from the Antipodes. I write to you to propose a few interesting solutions to the Dzhokhar Tsarnaev problem.

It has recently come to the notice of many citizens that the Marathon bombing was done by the FBI, the mafia, a Security contractor, or some seemingly official group.

It must be awkward for you, Governor, that a Massachusetts citizen, Dzhokhar ("Jahar"), is in a federal prison, whilst the folks of Boston have caught on to the above-mentioned issue re the Marathon. How to relieve the situation? I have a few suggestions having to do with your control over Citizen Jahar.

It was an error that the murder of Sean Collier was treated by the feds as a federal crime. Massachusetts should have tried him for that. We all would have seen that there is no evidence. And Sgt Henniger of MIT seems to know of other things going on that day at MIT -- these may have brought about Sean Collier's death. Please have a chat with him at the Cambridge Police.

Jahar can't be tried for the killing of that cop. But you can still file a new charge against Jahar, such as "attempted robbery." He attempted to steal Collier's gun, and failed.

The name of the game is extradition. We all need to speak to Jahar and the feds have made it impossible, by putting him under SAMs – Special Administrative Measures. Any crime you name is OK as long as it gets him back to Massachusetts.

Treason

I am the author of Prosecution for Treason, published in 2011. Oddly I'm one of only a few scholars interested in the topic. Back in 1994 Anthony Chaitkin published the wonderful study, Treason in America from Aaron Burr to Averill Harriman. I now suggest that you charge Jahar Tsarnaev with treason.

The killing of a policeman accords well with the classic concept of treason. The Whiskey Rebellion of 1794 involved farmers who harmed the federal tax collectors in Pennsylvania. For this, two men were convicted of treason against the United States.

If Sean Collier was killed while on duty, this could (I think) be treason against the state. I have not located any Massachusetts statute to define this crime, so I presume the common law applies. There is, however, a statute to specify the punishment, viz., Massachusetts Chapter 264, section 2:

"Whoever commits treason against the commonwealth shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for life."

Knowing what I know about the 'podstava' to which the Tsarnaev brothers were subject, I feel sure they did not kill, or even go near, Sean Collier. So, I'll grant it would be slightly an abuse of process to use the law to prove a point. But it would make people think, and we certainly need that. Let them learn the particulars of the law of treason. Of course that crime is spelled out in Article III sec 3 of the US Constitution as follows:

Treason against the United States shall consist only of levying War against them, or in adhering to their Enemies, giving them Aid and Comfort. No person shall be convicted of Treason except on Testimony of two Witnesses to the same overt Act.

US Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia recommended in the case of Jose Padilla, who was said to have been planning to bomb a building in Chicago, that the proper charge would be treason. That is based on Padilla's "levying war."

I wish Padilla had come up for treason charge and then the public could see how that differs from the very amorphous charge of terrorism. In Tsarnaev's case, the federal charge about exploding a bomb was "use of a weapon of mass destruction."

State Sovereignty

Your Excellency, I am, like you, a Republican. My devotion to states rights is solid. I applaud the decisions in Lopez 1995 and Morrison 2000. The expansion of the commerce clause has, in my opinion, been ultra vires, and ultra vires things have the same effect on me as the tines of a fork screeching on a plate.

Yes, I am about to offer a state-sovereignty solution. On April 19, 2013. There we saw (and I mean the whole world saw, to its great consternation) an unwarranted imposition of martial law on the people of Watertown. Quite the visual it was, with house-to-house searches, Humvees, and machine guns on the streets. All ordered by your predecessor, Governor Deval Patrick.

Announcing That the Emperor Is Unclad

The hour grows late. Maybe we should get it over with. This would entail confronting the strange developments that have been going in the US since the 1980s. We now have huge police forces, generously budgeted private "security" companies, foreign troops stationed in every state under the National Guard Partnerships for Peace program, and who knows what else.

Ever since an FBI informant, Emah Salem, audio-recorded the instructions from his FBI handler, proving that the 1993 bombing of the basement of the World Trade center was a ‘sting’ operation, Americans have had the chance to realize – if they care to – that for the FBI to carry out a bombing is not rare at all. It’s practically Standard Office Procedure.

Since we can now see that the Marathon event was this type of thing, it may be time to stop all pretense that it is anything else. The trial of Jahar can be just the ticket to straightening it all out. Oh how the Framers knew, in 1787, that dangers lurked.

What Can Be Done Legally, by the State of Massachusetts

The ability of one of the 50 states, or better yet, a combination of states, to correct the unconstitutional, nay criminal, takeover of the nation by the feds, is, of course, great. A Massachusetts governor has power to use force, as specified in Amendment LVII, of Chapter 2 of that state’s constitution as follows:

“Article VII. The general court shall provide by law for the recruitment, equipment, organization, training and discipline of the military and naval forces. The governor shall be the commander-in-chief thereof, and shall have power to assemble the whole or any part of them... to employ them for the suppression of rebellion, the repelling of invasion, and the enforcement of the laws.”

It is the ‘repelling of invasion’ that we are concerned with. I realize it goes against the grain to speak of one’s national government forces as invaders, but as Confucius said, it is the beginning of wisdom to call things by their right names.

The Framers gave Congress the authority to call forth the militias of the states to repel invasion, meaning invasion by foreign powers or Indian tribes. Article I, sec 8, clause 15 is clear on this. But the state also has the right. It was held that the president could call out the militias (as he did for the War of 1812) but that governors could call up their own militias when necessary.

In 1812, Massachusetts governor Caleb Strong had asked the State Supreme Judicial Court if it was his call, rather than the president's, to send Massachusetts militia men to war. The court said yes, but later, in Houston v Moore (1818), the US Supreme Court overrode that. As I understand it today, you, Sir, can call out the militia. (It is misleadingly named the National Guard, thanks to Elihu Root's chicanery -- but that's another story).

The fundamental basis for all of this is that the people are the militia. It is rooted in English law that the people are the best enforcers of law. The people, even when not organized, form the "posse comitatus," the group of able-bodied persons who can meet an emergency.

It remains only to ask if it would be legal for a state to act with armed force against an illegal incursion on its territory by national troops. I believe that merely to ask the question is to see the answer. However, I'll say no more, as I realize the very thought is almost unbearable.

Legal Tactics: Prosecutions and Civil Law Suits

If we are facing up to the criminality of the FBI as seen, possibly, on April 15, 2013 at the Finish Line of the Marathon, we might think of applying criminal law, and also civil action to seek damages. Were we advising people in another nation how to do it, it would seem easy, maybe even pleasant.

Various types of court action can be imagined that aim at unwanted incursions by the feds onto state territory. On the lowest rung we find the kind of simple lawsuit that asks for an injunction or restraining order. Presumably one can go to a local court to request that a judge write such an order. (I can picture it being filed at a federal court, too.) Of course, Governor, since you represent a state you go right to the top:

Per Article III, sec 2:

“In all Cases ... in which a State shall be a Party, the Supreme Court shall have Jurisdiction.”

As for prosecuting a violent crime that a federal agency may have committed against a state or its folks, your state attorney general, Maura Healey, can prosecute any party that commits a crime within the state’s territory.

Some people think there is a “sovereign immunity” involved. The US government does enjoy immunity from lawsuits, but in no case could sovereign immunity protect against criminal liability. No member of government is allowed to commit a crime. He has no immunity from prosecution.

(We may also wonder if a person in a government role who is acting criminally is in fact an impostor. Recall Cronin v Amesbury, a Massachusetts case decided at the First Circuit in 1996).

What crimes are we talking about? Any crime, from assault and battery to murder (as in the murder of Tamerlan Tsarnaev, age 26), and destruction of property. Those who are to be charged could be anyone from the top leaders to the smallest fry.

There is also the set of crimes known as accessory or accomplice. Clearly many media persons provided cover-up for the crimes connected to the Boston Marathon.

Even surrounding the trial of Tsarnaev in April 2015, there was unending deception pouring from the media that had the effect of making the wrong person look guilty. There are also crimes related to obstruction of justice, including by lawyers.

Normal lawsuits for damages are inhibited by sovereign immunity but of course the major exception is found in 42 USC 1983 and in Massachusetts civil rights law.

RICO Law

Your Excellency, if ever there were an underused law, it is the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organization Act of 1970, RICO, as codified at 18 USC 1961. It can be used for prosecuting criminal enterprises, and also for civil actions.

When an individual is the plaintiff, she has to show how the racketeers caused her some economic loss. Massachusetts could file a RICO suit against an organization such as the FBI, claiming major economic loss related to the 2013 Marathon!

There is a two-year statute of limitations in federal RICO, but this tolls from when the loss occurred. Let's say the deployment of local police outside the Moakley Courthouse in April and May 2015 was costly. You would have until May 2017 to file a claim, but RICO prosecutions have 10 years: till April 2025.

When citizens file civil RICO for damages as a tort, they can mention a hope that the judge will look at the relevant crimes.

In conclusion I thank you for listening. Don't worry, I do know it all sounds crazy. If it turns out that I am imagining things about the FBI and that they are not a criminal organization, that will be wonderful. No one will be more pleased than myself to admit to having misread the situation completely.

Yours respectfully,

Mary Maxwell, PhD, LLB

UPDATE: In regard to the media being accessory after the fact to the crime of murder, the new movie, Patriot's Day, looks like it may fill that bill.

17. The Uncle and the Ankle

(published December 20, 2015)

The Uncle

Here, slightly abridged, is an affidavit written by an elderly relative of the accused person Jahar (proper name Dzhokhar) Tsarnaev. All bolding was added by me:

I, Tsarnaev Dzhamaly Maazovich, born in 1954 year in the town of Tokmak, Kyrgyzstan.... Anzor's father, Zaindi Tsarnaev, now deceased, was my (first) cousin....

For two years, starting from June 2013 to April 2015, me personally and members of my family, brother Said-Hussein, sisters Roza and Taus, as well as family members of Anzor Tsarnaev repeatedly talked at the meetings that took place during the visits of defense lawyers appointed by the USA government to protect the legal interests of Dzhokhar Tsarnaev in criminal proceedings.

The lawyers and their invited experts to this case, as they introduced themselves to us, had visited Grozny (Chechnya) and Makhachkala (Dagestan), at the least, fourteen times.... For two years, our meetings and the contents of conversations were, it seemed to me, of a strange nature. Representatives of the defense team for Dzhokhar were collecting information about everything: our way of life, our lives, the origin of the Tsarnaev family tree, where we work, what contacts we have. They were interested in everything, except the facts proving the innocence of the Tsarnaev brothers, to which we had unsuccessfully tried to draw the attention of defense, because we were openly ignored.

Representatives of the defense team were confident in the innocence of the brothers, Tamerlan and Dzhokhar; in particular, the lead defense lawyer Judy Clarke herself agreed, adding in the conversation, “we know it – they are innocent.”

From the words of my brother, Said-Khussein Tsarnaev, I learned that on August 7, 2014 the meeting with representatives of the defense team, which took place at the hotel “Grozny City.”

Charlene, who presented herself as an independent investigator involved in the case by Dzhokhar’s lawyers; Jane, presented as a social worker and psychologist; and Olga (a translator from New Jersey, who arrived with the team), translating the conversation, openly admitted to my brother that they knew that Dzhokhar and Tamerlan were not guilty of the bombings, and with this they were apologizing that the Tsarnaevs have had to endure the tragedy involving criminal allegations.

My last personal conversation with the representative of Dzhokhar’s lawyers’ team, Alicia, introduced to me as assistant to the state-appointed defense attorney, during which I had to speak through an interpreter named Elena. I had met with Alicia and Elena on April 14, 2015 at noon in the hall of the “Ararat – Hyatt” hotel. Later we moved to a cafe on the second floor. Our conversation lasted around 40 minutes. And suddenly Alicia said to me, “Dzhokhar’s guilt has been proven by the prosecution in court, please convince Dzhokhar to take the blame for the bombings in the marathon so that he is not given the death penalty.”

I was shocked by her revelation and request and said, “what are you talking about, we and you both know that the boys are innocent and there is a lot of conclusive evidence of it, and representatives of the defense, who visited earlier in Dagestan and Chechnya, admitted to us that they had known themselves that Tamerlan and Dzhokhar were not involved in the Boston bombings.”

To this Alicia had stated, “If Dzhokhar does not accept the guilt and does not express remorse, then the court will issue him a death sentence, however Dzhokhar is insisting upon his own, that he is ready to die rather than allow for Tamerlan to be blamed for the bombings and to plead guilty for himself and his brother.”

I asked Alicia to explain why the defense was not using in the court proceedings the commonly known facts of the non-involvement and innocence of the Tsarnaev brothers. ...

I called on her of the necessity to involve all potential witnesses, whom under various pretexts the FBI had isolated, so that they are not allowed to testify in favor of the defendant Dzhokhar Tsarnaev.

At that same moment I had admitted to Alicia that we have collected many documents proving the complete innocence of Tamerlan and Dzhokhar and that we intended to present them to the court. Alicia asked if I could show her these documents. I categorically refused to show them, and said that I shall present them in the right place and at the right time.

After this she asked, “How do you intend to bring them into the USA?” At that time, US visas were supposedly being arranged for the Tsarnaevs, including myself, in any case, Alicia on the previous visit in February 2015 had collected from us the information, passport details and photos of me and my sister, Roza Tsarnaeva.

Later, Alicia repeatedly consulted with us, saying “you will be able to travel, your documents will soon be ready, do not refuse the trip.” We did not intend to abandon the trip, as we were determined to take part in the trial by presenting the evidence of the brothers’ innocence through Dzhokhar’s lawyers.

After my conversation with Alicia held on April 14, 2015 in Moscow, the Tsarnaevs were refused entry visas to the United States for participation in the court trial. It is exactly for this reason that not a single representative of the Tsarnaev family had been present at the court trial in Boston.

The Ankle

When Jahar's mother's relatives came to Boston in April 2015 to attend his sentencing hearing – to speak on his behalf -- they were forced to wear GPS ankle bracelets. I can think of two reasons – one, so the media could – and did — describe them in a mocking way. (“You know what troublemakers those auntie-terrorists are.”)

The other reason was a practical one. It was necessary to sequester these Russian ladies so they could not share their knowledge of Jahar's innocence. They also were not allowed to talk to the prisoner, despite making such a long trip to attend the trial. Ah, the ties that bind. But Jahar did break down and weep in court when he saw his elderly aunt, Patimat Suliamenov, in the witness box, saying that he was a good boy.

So now we hear that members of the immediate family were given the no-visa treatment. Add that to the abominable “SAMS – Special Administrative Measures” -- imposed on Prisoner Jahar. Note: they should be renamed SAMFMs – Special Administrative Measures for Muslims.

Jahar has been ordered by the Judge to pay $101 million (for restitution to victims) and thus, as Cheryl Dean has lamented, his ability to buy things in the prison commissary is impaired.

As for the grandaunts who did arrive, they were reportedly teased by “protestors” at their hotel. Hmm. I may be pretty disgusted with my fellow Bostonians, but I doubt any of them would go to the trouble of harassing elderly people.

Especially some ladies from Kyrgyzstan whose only sin is being related to a good boy who was made Patsy of the Year by whoever it is that runs the US government. Say, who is that anyway?

18. What on Earth Is the FBI?

Man on left (LaVoy) surrenders to FBI and then is killed

Please folks, please help out. None of us know where the FBI comes from, or to whom it answers. Its first director – J Edgar Hoover – was said to control many presidents by blackmail. Heck, we don't want anyone "controlling" our leaders. And why did he do it? Who was his real boss? In general terms it was the mafia. Or at least it was people who want to live lawlessly -- and yet be seen as the force of "law and order." Can you imagine.

Note: the next-longest serving FBI Director was Robert Mueller "serving" from just before 9-11 to just after Marathon. Please let's stop being spectators to the most outlandish things that are happening to our society. Let's say there is something radically wrong here. Just in regard to the Marathon case, we have several issues that need to be clearly acknowledged.

1. A bomb (or something) went off on Boylston St at 2:49pm on April 15, 2013. The person responsible has in no way been caught or even identified. We can say with confidence that the bombing has to have involved the media and the government, a patsy judging by their doggedly blaming in the face of opposite evidence.
2. A man named Tamerlan Tsarnaev apparently worked as an informant for the FBI, as is the case with many immigrants and also with small-time criminals. They are told to participate "or else."

3. Tamerlan was chosen to be a patsy and therefore, like all patsies, he was captured and killed. Perhaps by accident, CNN showed him, arrested, on TV (the naked-man video), and therefore many of us have been able to reject wholeheartedly the story that police had an exchange of gunfire with the Tsarnaevs.

4. That story should have been criticized anyway on the grounds of its foolishness. A man (Tamerlan) who is alleged to have a gun does not go to the MIT campus -- of all places -- to steal another gun from anyone, much less from a policeman. It is utterly preposterous. Likewise, a man (Tamerlan) who already has a car does not take the risk of carjacking someone. And needless to say, does not go around boasting that he has just killed a cop. It's basic; even a 12-year-old can comprehend this.

Many members of the public can be excused for not doubting, if they were conditioned to regard the nightly news as a source of truth. This is how all humans act when told the "facts" of religion. But most Bostonians are educated, and so must have at least a basic ideas about the ways they can be manipulated.

The FBI, or military, or DHS, or SWAT – does anyone know who these people are? – send a helicopter to observe a warm body in a boat. They figure it is the "suspect" so they shoot 228 bullets at him. When did it become policy to shoot-to-kill when there is a suspect on the loose? Don't we have inventions such as and teargas and Tasers to bring a man down?

During that day (Friday the 19th), the FBI had gone through elaborate "theatre" – of a manhunt for a terrorist, and the mayor and governor went along with it, including de facto martial law, with house-to-house combat-style searches in Watertown. It's alarming that not one upper-level Bostonian – a priest, a professor, a doctor – spoke out against this illegal carry-on "in real time," and I have not yet heard of any such person assessing, subsequently, what happened. All of the professions seem to support this new (imaginary) thing called the war on terror. That's a sign of the extreme trouble we are in.

Who Is Up There?

Dear Reader, you may not have known of this stuff until now. I am sorry to have delivered shocking news. But please turn your shock into action. And recall: the visitors to Russia, the “defenders,” said they were under pressure “from the highest level.” That is what we need to elucidate – who is up there at that highest level and how can we negotiate with them?

We need to know what is driving our society. If no members of the cultural “upper level” are helping us with this particular issue, it appears they are consciously supporting the harm-doers.

Many people are controlled by blackmail. J Edgar Hoover ran it in Washington. His very position, as an Investigator, meant he could snoop into private lives. Nowadays that’s even more possible, as we have – on the excuse of terrorism – created new laws to allow “the FBI’s of this world” to surveil everything.

Could It Be “the Jews”?

When one does not know who is doing something bad to society, one is happy to find a candidate to blame. The custom is to name a group that is united by nationality, language, or religion, as that is how we evolved, to band together against an enemy tribe. My guess is that today’s bosses do not share a nationality or a religion. “World government” is too complicated. I do not think it could be the Jews, the Chinese, or any “tribe.”

I am bringing up this subject in order to dispose of it. Many bloggers think they’ve got it all figured out – that Israel is running the world. If you are stuck on the theme of “the Jews” are to blame, would you please pursue it openly? Using innuendo creates a sense that we have figured out what’s going on and surely that’s not so. We need to do so. By the way, it would be great if some Jewish Americans would put the whole thing on the table. We need to do so. By the way, it would be great if some Jewish Americans would put the whole thing on the table. There are terrible accusations being made and no refutation is heard.

Note: UK is most likely the coordinator. In 2014, a physician and a schoolteacher in Scotland – Jim Macgregor and Gerry Docherty – came out with a book, Hidden History about World War I. They document how a mere two men – Lords Esher and Earl Grey – were able to bamboozle the House of Commons, and bamboozle France and Germany as well, to start that war.

FBI. We would be crazy to allow the FBI to continue along their present, unhampered course. Let the Marathon thing be the catalyst for change. There are plenty of Youtube videos of Watertown residents being interviewed on the street (and a word of thanks here to the interviewers!).

There is plenty of grounds for legal action against what the FBI did in Watertown. Allegedly, troops “asked permission” to enter each home. That’s foolish. We should talk reality not nonsense.

Note: the FBI has no law enforcement function, legally. When you read that So-and-So “was arrested by the FBI,” that means an FBI agent performed a citizen’s arrest (no joke). Or in some instances they were deputized to be a member of local police. But there you should not say the FBI made the arrest; rather the police made the arrest. The FBI’s power is largely bluff.

Consider how the 1971 COINTELPRO paper revealed an FBI policy of persecuting Blacks. They assassinated both Malcolm X and Martin Luther King. How did we let them get away with it? I think it is mainly that we can’t get our heads around the fact that a CIA or an FBI is mostly a criminal organization.

It was proven in the case of Jowers v King that a group of assassins, not lone-wolf James Earl Ray, shot MLK. Yet the patsy, Ray, served 39 years in prison and was killed in prison. It is very wrong of Americans to turn a blind eye to these things. And why don’t Bostonians make huge protest against Jahar-as-patsy?

After James Earl Ray died, his brother John told this to Lyndon Barsten, his co-author of the great 2008 book, Truth at Last:

“I have no specific information about the CIA, James’s handlers, military intelligence, or the FBI. I’ll just lump them together and call them “the feds.” This is also the term my brother James used, because I don’t think he knew who he was dealing with most of the time.... The feds were behind James’ lawyer, Hanes. They are all connected. Most of them are moved into positions like US Attorneys, state’s attorney, or other positions of power” (p. 81). [Emphasis added]

Our progeny will be really baffled as to how we let the FBI get away with anything and everything. And here’s another thought, especially if you want to save money. The Associated Press, Boston, reported in July, 2007:

“A federal judge Thursday ordered the government to pay more than $101 million in the case of four men who spent decades in prison for a 1965 murder they didn’t commit after the FBI withheld evidence of their innocence. The FBI encouraged perjury, helped frame the four men, and withheld for more than three decades information that could have cleared them, U.S. District Judge Nancy Gertner said in issuing her ruling Thursday. Four men convicted on Barboza’s lies were treated as “acceptable collateral damage” because the FBI’s priority at the time was taking down the Mafia, their attorneys said.” [Emphasis added]

It’s known that the FBI were involved in the 1995 Oklahoma bombing, which was blamed on Timothy McVeigh. Recall the talk about a homemade truck bomb having causing the destruction of that building? When local cop Terrance Yeakey reported, instead, that he had found explosives inside the building he was soon dead in his car, having “suicided.” Please.

Then there is the matter of the virtually accepted “right” of the FBI to tamper with evidence. I quote from John F Kelly and Phillip Wearne’s Tainting Evidence: Inside the FBI Crime Lab:

“Senator Grassley said the documents had arrived but were so heavily redacted as to be virtually useless, he said,. Grassley’s hearings took place in the wake of a damning 517-page report by the Inspector General’s Office of the DoJ. The investigators had included a panel of five internationally renowned forensic scientists, the first time in its sixty-five-year history that the FBI lab had been subject to any form of external scientific scrutiny. The findings were alarming.

“FBI examiners had given scientifically flawed, inaccurate, and overstated testimony under oath in court; had altered the lab reports of examiners to give them a pro-prosecutorial slant, and had failed to document tests and examinations from which they drew incriminating conclusions, thus ensuring that their work could never be properly checked.

“The IG had been mandated to look at allegations by Dr. F Whitehurst, a chemist and FBI agent who for eight years, until 1994, had worked solely on explosives-residue analysis. [He complained of] the possibly illegal withholding of exculpatory information; and the complete inability of the FBI management to investigate itself and correct the problems.

If innocent people were in jail for crimes they did not commit, how many guilty ones were walking the streets?” -- End of excerpt

Also see Kevin Ryan’s list of cover-ups by Robert Mueller of the FBI’s criminal activities, in Appendix J below. I believe the reason we haven’t acted against this illegality because we are scared. Also we waste time – decades, no less – thinking “It’ll be straightened out when enough journalists uncover enough evidence, or when a judge cracks the case.”

Please. No journalists have had the desired effect and no judge sufficiently throws his/her weight around. Sherman Skolnick, author of The Overthrow of the Republic (free download), says he has received phone calls from judges in tears, confiding in him that they are road-blocked when they try to do the right thing.

They need our help. Please help the judges, the good ones.

19. Hilarious Chain-of-Custody of a Gun

(published August 26, 2016)

The Ruger gun was found at the “crime scene” Laurel Street, Watertown

A Boston woman, Heather Frizzell, has been working hard on the Marathon bombing trial. In this article I summarize what she has learned about the gun allegedly used by the Tsarnaev brothers both on Laurel St and to kill the 28-year-old MIT campus cop, Sean Collier. Heather says:

“After months of pouring over the eyewitness testimony and studying the location in question, I am confident of one thing: the person who appeared at Collier’s [car] window with a gun wasn’t Tsarnaev.”

The research published by Ms Frizzell is lengthy so I will only recap it here. First, the dramatis personae of the gun story:

- Jahar, a student at UMass, Dartmouth (1 hr south of Boston)
- Stephen Silva, his close friend since eighth grade. At the time of these events he is about age 20. Silva lives in Cambridge, Massachusetts. Silva is the man who allegedly lent a gun – a Ruger handgun — to Jahar.
- Howie (real name :Merhawi Berhe) -- the man who allegedly lent that gun to Stephen.

— Dias, Jahar’s pal who was jailed for years for having “obstructed the investigation of Jahar’s terrorism” by dumping a backpack or a laptop in a dumpster.

— Steven Silva, the twin bro of Stephen Silva, no joke – doesn’t figure much in the story. Heather vouchsafes to say SILVA, no first name, when she means Stephen. OK?

— US Attorney Alope Chakravarty, the prosecutor (seconding Carmen Ortiz) in the 2015 trial of Jahar.

— Miriam Conrad, the defense attorney (along with Judy Clarke) in the 2015 trial of Jahar.

— Dad, a lawyer, Thomas Frizzell, father of Heather, whom she often mentions as giving technical advice to her.
The apple doesn’t fall far from the tree.

All data in this chapter was obtained by me from Frizzell’s “Who Killed Sean Collier: Part Two, the Gun.” (August 17, 2016, USvTsarnaev.org --“a study from an academic and humanitarian perspective”). The gun article abridged and paraphrased here was 40 pages long. Main Themes:

There is a need to trace chain of custody of the weapon.

After Jahar was imprisoned, Dias got imprisoned, so wasn’t contactable. Jahar himself may be the most uncontactable person in America today – and if he were contacted, chances are he would be loyal to his friend Silva and not upset the applecart. (Mary). Note: Heather does not speculate, so I will try to hold back. If it bursts out of me I will write “Mary” in parentheses.

Silva was arrested and charged with major drug dealing, and was threatened with more than a hundred years in jail. That’s a fairly long time for a 20-year-old. To anticipate the next bit, think what you would do if you were charged like that but your trial had not come up yet. Hint: it rhymes with flea bargain. (Mary) According to Silva’s testimony (highly perjured – Mary), Jahar had asked him in January 2013, if he could borrow the gun that Howie had lent to Silva. “Yup, sure.” And then Jahar failed to return it by the Marathon date of April 15, 2013. (Ah, sweet innuendo of life, at last I’ve found you.)

January is the same month the Tsarnaevs rode off to Saugus Mall to buy, without using a credit card or anything traceable, the 5 mythical pressure cookers. (Mary)

In a move that “Dad” calls “giving away the courthouse,” the government entity prosecuting Silva decides to forego the pleasure of catching a drug crim and lets him off, in exchange for pinning the gun on Jahar Tsarnaev. Natch.

Hence, Silva shows up as a witness for the prosecution at the trial of his dear buddy Jahar and does what we used to call in Catechism class “a Judas.” (Mary) Heather fine-tooth-combs the Silva case file and discovers that the evidence Silva presented was gossamer-like and the pretend-prosecutors did not ask the right questions. (Dad)

Gun laws in Massachusetts are unusually strict. You can go to jail, for example, for being in possession of a “dirty” gun, that is, one that has a history of having been used for violent crime even if you had nothing to do with that. Howie, of all people, got arrested at a stunningly significant moment.

The Gun. Heather says: “The murder weapon was a Ruger P95 handgun with the serial number filed off, recovered from the shootout in Watertown (Nooooooooooooo, noooooooooo -- Mary) -- the gun that was in Tamerlan’s possession.” This was established at trial through testimony, and Massachusetts State Police reports also match the ballistics from the Ruger to the bullets recovered from Collier’s body....

Now backtrack. Timeline: late 2012: “Near the end of 2012 (timestamp provided by Mr. Chakravarty, not Silva) an opportunity arose to get a gun.” Howie asks Silva to mind the offending object, as he was worried his mother would search his room. Granted, Moms have been known to do that.

Once Silva has it, he thinks, “I could have some fun with this.” So, he sits in a car when customers come to buy drugs off him, takes their money, does not hand over the drugs and then threatens to kill them if they don’t am-scray quick smart. (Heather notes that this is no way for a merchant to build up good will in the buying community.)

-- December, 2012: A man’s gotta show off, so Silva boasts at a party to having carried off that deed. A laugh is heard from Jahar, who is at the putative party – and wait till you see how putative Heather thinks it is; she almost loses her conservatism over this one.

When friends, including Jahar, were in Silva’s apartment, he showed them where he kept the gun, in a ceiling panel. Jahar does not at that moment say “I want to borrow it” -- he says it when there are no party-goers. i.e., no witnesses to hear him say it. (Cuz he never said it, see?)

-- January 23-ish, 2012: At some later time Jahar goes to Silva’s house, having made no phone call or text message to check that Silva is home (Recall Dartmouth is an hour’s drive) to pick up this new toy. Heather refers to Jahar and his cohort as “of the millennial generation that puts everything into a text, a tweet, a chat, etc.” Yet the court never sees confirmatory evidence.

Subsequent to Jahar’s borrowing the gun, and with nary a query from Silva as to whether the young Chechen has actually deployed the damn thing, Silva asks Jahar to return it “because Howie is wanting it again.” (The Mom coast is now clear.)

-- March, 2013: Jahar, in training for the Marathon as it were, is busy and puts Silva off as to when he can hand it over. So spake Silva to the prosecution team (or was it the defense team? In this trial they are more identical than Steve and Stephen).

As Heather Tells It

I will now state some of the above, quoting Heather and the various principals in the case. But if you are pressed for time, hop to the bottom where she springs quite the denouement. For now, just see the prosecutor eliciting the gulch from Silva, in 2015:

Q – Explain that opportunity.

A – Well, like I said, me and my brother and my friend [Nicholas Silva, who is a cousin whose sibling got beat up and so wanted a weapon type thing] had been talking about obtaining a gun.

Around the same time a friend of mine from my neighborhood [the elusive Howie], asked me if I could do him a favor and hold down a firearm for him because he needed to get it out of his house.

Q – What was his name?

A – Howie.

Frizzell writes:

“Nothing is given about the transfer of the gun from Howie to Silva – We also know nothing about who might have seen the gun change hands. However, from Silva’s testimony, he then “stored it away in my apartment, in a ceiling panel”, and states that the people who know about it are “my twin, my friend and a few close associates”. That means Steven, Nicholas, and “a few associates” could have all been called to corroborate.

Continuing with the Prosecution’s questioning of SILVA:

A – Yes.

Q – What was his reaction when you told him you had a gun?

A – It wasn't much of a reaction. He just acknowledged it.

A – When I got down to Florida I just hung out at a friend's house and continued selling weed.

Q – How long did you do that for?

A – From about the middle of August until the end of November.

Q – November 2012? ...

A – At that time I came back from Florida, my brother and friend had an apartment in Revere, Massachusetts.

Q – Did you take the gun out of your residence again?

A – Yes, one more time.

Q – When was that?

A – New Year's Eve 2012.

Q – And where did you take it?

A – To a friend's apartment in Medford, Massachusetts.

Q – What was happening there?

A – Nothing. We were just throwing a New Year's Eve party.

Q – Why did you take it there?

A – I was just being stupid. I wanted to show it off.

Q – And did you?

A – Yes.

Q – Did the defendant come to that house?

A – Yes.

Heather always looks into these things in detail: "It's happening on a specific date for a specific occasion, meaning many of the attendees would be likely to remember whether they were there and that someone might have shown off a gun."

Then Heather looks at the boys' tweets. "That's strange. Here Silva is saying he has the flu and isn't planning to go out for New Year's Eve, which directly contradicts the story he gave in court. Not only that, but their exchange seems to imply that Dzhokhar doesn't have plans to go out either. ...”

Q – When you talked to him about the gun, did he ask you for anything?

A – Yes.

Q – What did he ask you for?

A – He asked me to potentially borrow the gun....

Q – Did he tell you why he needed the gun?

A – Yes.

Q – What did he tell you?

A – He said he wanted to rip some kids from URI.

Q – When you say “rip,” what does that mean?

A – Rob.

“Silva has never seen an aggressive streak in Dzhokhar. On Miriam Conrad's cross, she points out”:

Q – And he [Jahar] wasn't violent, right?

A – No. I've never seen him violent.

Q – And he never picked on anybody?

A – No.

Q – He was kindhearted?

A – Yes, he was.

Q – Now, this robbery that you told us about, you — that you did?

A – Yes.

Q – You didn't tell the Feds about that the first, second, even fourth time that you sat down with them, did you?

A – Initially, no, I did not.

Q – And, in fact, you told them that you had never discussed a robbery with anyone before Jahar asked to borrow the gun, right?

A – Yes.

Q – Was he with anyone? A – Yes, he was.

Q – Who was he with?

A – Dias.

Frizzell writes: “At the time of Silva’s testimony, Dias was in custody awaiting sentencing, a perfect witness to corroborate Silva’s story....Then Silva arrives at the last time he saw Dzhokhar before the Marathon. By now, it’s early April and he has still not received the Ruger back, but has made no more statements about what Howie was doing during this time. In fact, according to Silva, this was a brief meeting in which Dzhokhar purchased some weed.”

“It’s difficult to track the prosecution’s view of Dzhokhar’s marijuana usage, because at different times during the trial they either used evidence that he had cut back on smoking as a sign of radicalization, or evidence that he dealt on campus as a symptom of bad character.” [See? Heather Frizzell picks up every nuance.]

A – When I got back I put the marijuana in the -- Dias’ car’s trunk, and then I talked to the defendant [best mate] very shortly. He wasn’t really talking to me much. I was trying to get into a deeper conversation with him but he said he was in a rush. And I asked him about the gun and he gave me another excuse on why he couldn’t — why he didn’t bring it that day.

And then I remember Dias saying, “Oh, we’re in a rush, we’re in a rush.” So I only talked to him for a little bit, told the defendant, you know, I loved him [!! That was before...], and then I got out of the car.

Heather Frizzell’s Big Find

“On March 25th I woke up and saw a Boston Globe article with the headline ‘Source of Gun [Howie] Used by Tsarnaevs to Kill Sean Collier Pleads Guilty.’ “I told my Dad and he wanted more: What was the plea agreement? Was there an indictment? What exactly were the charges? When did they take him in?”

Heather says: “I was able to log onto the district court’s website and pull a few relevant documents. The charge was very strange.

It was only one count of possession of the Ruger handgun. There was nothing about the transfer of the gun to Silva, which would be a separate charge.... Silva, in July 2014, was arrested for seven counts of heroin possession with intent to distribute, and one count of possessing a firearm with an obliterated serial number, also known as Sean Collier's murder weapon.

“And indeed, in December 2015, Silva was given a hearing, and received a sentence of time served. After seventeen months, he was free, despite multiple instances of heroin distribution, because he had ‘substantially assisted.’

“On the same day, at the same time, in the same courthouse, one floor apart, as Stephen Silva testified that he received the Ruger P95 ... from him, Merhawi Berhe was pleading not guilty to possessing the very same weapon.”

UPDATE: Ms Frizzell also performed a sleuthing service in regard to cell phone calls in the Marathon case and thus discovered that the government knew of persons other than Jahar that they could heap the charges on, but swept everything under the rug -- as will be explained in Chapter 26.

The Defense, in preparing the appeal, has now obtained the notes that Jahar supposedly wrote on April 20, during his hospital interrogation. I do not believe the notes are genuine. In them, Jahar admits to having a gun that he obtained from a car in a scrap yard (!) and says he had a brown (!) backpack.

I reject the notes on the basis that Jahar allegedly wrote “No one will be hurt” – an absurd comment coming from a man in a state of physical trauma from bullet wounds. I wager it was “planted” as justification for calling off any further search. Ahem, why should police believe a casual promise like that from a “terrorist”?

20. Is The Boston Globe an Accessory after the Fact?

Boston Globe reporter Eric Moscovitz. Headline: Marathon Terror

One hears that the media are “doing us in.” Or that the media control Congress. One hears, from writers, such as myself, that the media deliberately design our culture. Let’s ask -- if any of their operations break any laws.

Here in South Australia, Criminal Law Section 139 covers:

“A person who deceives another, and by doing so (a) dishonestly benefits himself or a third person, or (b) dishonestly causes a detriment to the person is guilty of an offense. Maximum penalty, imprisonment 10 years.”

Why don’t we hear much of that crime? Because there is also a tort of fraud: you can sue in a civil action if a person’s deceit has caused you a loss. As with medical malpractice, the doctor is much more likely to be sued than prosecuted, as the patient will be compensated monetarily.

What about the Crime of Assault?

Ransacking the criminal law for a possible charge here, I am thinking of assault. These lies about the Marathon led to a martial-law order by Massachusetts Governor Deval Patrick. That in itself was terrifying to many people. Of course the lies about two youths having done a bombing also caused terror.

Under common law, the crime of assault includes hurting a person by scaring them. No visible damage to the body is required. The physical damage is to one's physiology . TheFreeDictionary.com defines assault:

“an intentional act by one person that creates an apprehension in another of an imminent harmful or offensive contact. An assault is carried out by a threat of bodily harm coupled with an apparent, present ability to cause the harm. It is both a crime and a tort.”

Would you put up with a neighbor terrorizing you? You could sue him (a tort) or “press charges” to prosecute. I think we need to get serious about pressing charges.

Have a look at what The Boston Globe purveyed, in regard to the famous carjacking incident:

“Carjack Victim Recounts His Harrowing Night,”
by Eric Moskowitz, Globe Staff, April 25, 2013
The 26-year-old Chinese entrepreneur had just pulled his new Mercedes to the curb on Brighton Avenue to answer a text when an old sedan swerved behind him, slamming on the brakes. A man got out and approached the passenger window. It was nearly 11 p.m. last Thursday.

The man rapped on the glass. Danny [Dun Meng], unable to hear him, lowered the window — and the man reached an arm through, unlocked the door, and climbed in, brandishing a silver handgun. “Don’t be stupid,” he told Danny. He asked if he had followed the news about Monday’s bombings. Danny had. “I did that,” “And I just killed a policeman in Cambridge.” He ordered Danny to drive.

Danny described 90 harrowing minutes ... where they openly discussed driving to New York, though Danny could not make out if they were planning another attack. ... [Danny’s cell phone rang.] “If you say a single word in Chinese, I will kill you”

Tamerlan said. Danny understood. "I'm sleeping in my friend's home tonight," Danny replied in English. "I have to go."
"Good boy," Tamerlan said. "Good job."

No, seriously, can you imagine Tamerlan talking like that?

Globe reporter Eric Moscowitz continues: When the younger brother, Dzhokhar, was forced to go inside the Shell Food Mart to pay, older brother Tamerlan put his gun in the door pocket to fiddle with a navigation device -- letting his guard down briefly after a night on the run.

In a flash, [Danny] unbuckled his seat belt, opened the door, and sprinted off at an angle that would be a hard shot for any marksman. "F—!" he heard Tamerlan say, feeling the rush of a near-miss grab at his back (what?) ... Danny reached the haven of a Mobil station across the street ...

His quick-thinking escape, authorities say, allowed police to swiftly track down the Mercedes, abating a possible attack by the brothers on New York City [!] and precipitating a wild shootout in Watertown that would seriously wound one officer, kill Tamerlan, and leave a severely injured Dzhokhar hiding in the neighborhood.

Lies! Whoppers! So, did the writer of the false carjacking story, Eric Moscowitz, commit the crime of assaulting anyone? I doubt it, as the element of the crime necessary for a conviction is that the person intended to cause fear (and the threatened attack has to be 'imminent'). But the planners of the Marathon event did have in mind to cause fear. That must have been a main goal of the whole affair.

I think Kevin Cullen, editor of The Boston Globe, must have been involved in the planning of the Marathon bombing, judging by how quickly his newspaper played up "all the right" aspects of it. But even if he did not have prior knowledge, he must have been informed afterward of how to handle the "story."

Accessory after the Fact

Cover-up of a crime is a crime. It is also a crime to assist a murder by, say, providing a false alibi. Legally you would be called an accessory after the fact. In my opinion, The Globe was an accessory after the fact of the bombing. Its corporate officers can be charged.

All of that is nothing compared to the effort to stop the very process of clear thinking. A major effort is made by media to produce some things that are false -- and recognizably so. Julian Rose said, on December 22, 2106:

“The profession of MSM journalism has descended into truly toxic levels of printed and broadcast disinformation. One can now virtually count on the fact that what is being said on any topic of political significance, will be a carefully scripted trotting-out of government and corporate propaganda.”

Let's name two issues here. One is what Rose said: fake news. The other is the amazing fact that media people make the events happen. I consider myself sufficiently well versed in four false-flag operations to say that they were not as reported:

Nine-eleven: no Muslim hijackers; Sydney siege: no religious or political motivation; Paris Hebdo (“Je suis Charlie!”): no resentment over a cartoon. Port Arthur massacre: no presence of alleged killer Martin Bryant there.

Yet the four events did happen. The role of media in filling us with wrong reports is that of supporting the criminals. I say they are levying war on the people and thus the relevant crime is in those cases is treason. The federal crime is at 18 USC 2381:

“Whoever, owing allegiance to the United States, levies war against them or adheres to their enemies ... is guilty of treason and shall suffer death, or shall be imprisoned not less than five years and fined under this title but not less than $10,000

Let's see some bold lies, from a book by Globe writers:

Excerpt from Scott Helman, and Jenna Russell Long Mile Home, 2014, pp 41-246. [This book, by Boston Globe writers is utter fiction, aimed at promoting Jahar's guilt, pre-trial, so say I.]

The slayings had come at a turning point in Tamerlan's life, his isolation deepening, his views becoming more radical, his family falling apart... Had the killing of Teken, Weissman and Mess [a Waltham gang-style murder] been Tamerlan's first violent strike against America? Had it been a warm-up of sorts for the Marathon attack and for murdering Sean Collier -- the race and the cop both symbols of everything he wasn't? [Amazing!]

When they kidnapped Danny and commandeered his Mercedes the route they drove took them right past the street where the three men had been slain. The ritualistic array of the bodies suggested these were no ordinary killings. [That correct for sure.]

The authorities began to take a hard look at Ibraghim Todashev who had also trained with Tamerlan at the gym. On May 21 Todashev sat down in his Orlando apartment. The interrogation started at 7.30pm and lasted five hours. A court filing by federal prosecutors would later confirm [?] that Todashev had asserted Tamerlan's participation in the murders.

When the FBI agent looked away, according to a law enforcement official's account, Todashev picked up the table and threw it at the agent. The agent drew his gun and saw Todashev running at him with either a metal pole or a broomstick handle. The agent fired more shots, killing him.

On April 22, 2013 while in hospital Jahar communicated a lot by writing. He told the interrogators he and his brother considered setting off bombs at the Charles River celebration of the Fourth of July ... to the music of the Boson Pops. [If you want to know what Jahar really said in hospital, we could ask him today.] When the brothers assembled their bombs faster than expected they began looking for a place to strike. They had drawn motivation, Jahar said [“said’ means FBI says he said] from the US invasion of Iraq and Afghanistan and acted on their own without assistance from al-Qaeda.

In mining Jahar’s laptop, investigators had found books and a magazine promoting radical interpretations of Islam. The books included Defense of the Muslim Lands, The First Obligation after Iman, and Jihad and the Effects of Intention, which promotes martyrdom. [But they were going to go to New York?]

Jahar had – reportedly -- downloaded one book, with a forward by Anwar al-Awlaki, a New Mexico-born Muslim cleric. Jahar likely [!] watched Awlaki’s influential Internet videos. ... Youtube removed clips of Awlaki’s sermons in 2010, after a British student said that watching them inspired her to try to assassinate a member of Parliament – he survived the attack. By then, US officials viewed Awlaki as a major source of inspiration for militants trying to strike against the US.

Nidal Malik Hasan, a US Army major and psychiatrist, e-mailed extensively with Awlaki before shooting and killing thirteen people and injuring more than thirty at the Fort Hood military base in Texas in 2009. Umar Farouk Abdulmutallab, who confessed to trying to set off explosives hidden in his underwear while on an airliner stayed at Alawki’s house. -- End of excerpt

Please see Appendix E, which shows the US policy of planting evidence of jihadism in the homes of men who are not jihadists.

Note: my search for crimes committed by media should consider the crime of genocide. The great effort to make us want to kill Muslims might fit under this domestic US law:

United States law on genocide, still in force -- 18 USC 1091: Whoever, whether within times of peace or war, and with the specific intent to destroy in whole or in substantial part of a ... group, kills members of that group... shall be punished, where death results, by death or imprisonment for life....

The Kevin Cullen Disciplinary Suspension My Foot

On April 14, 2018, Globe editor Kevin Cullen wrote a piece for the 5th anniversary of the Marathon bombing. WEEI's Kirk Minihane then criticized him for telling untruths. Cullen had claimed to have been at the Marathon but was miles away.

“And so it was alternately poignant and horrifying to watch as first responders frantically pulled metal barriers and the flags of so many countries down into Boylston Street in a desperate rush to get to the dead and the injured on the sidewalk.”

So Cullen got suspended from Globe for that lack of ethics! Also he included 8-year-old Martin Richard in his column:

“When he [Dad] finished the race, his young son left the sidewalk. He went out into Boylston Street to hug his Dad and the bomb exploded. The boy was killed. His mother was severely injured, and the daughter—the girl—my friend the firefighter Sean picked her up, and he carried her to an ambulance. [But when he] put her down, he realized her leg was missing. And he went back to the scene and, he told me, and crawled on his hands and knees, trying to find her leg.”

Minihane, the new truth police, said Cullen and Sean aren't friends. I think it's all a response to my strong criticisms of The Globe. It creates a vague impression in the readers that something is being done.

Newsweek did a similar thing in 2018, using Michelle McPhee, disinfo artist, against Aunt Maret.

“... [Maret] makes an allegation that the FBI said the bomber had a “heavy-laden black backpack”. Of course the Feeds DID say that the bomber had “a heavy-laden black backpack.” Is this an IQ test or something? Unwary readers will only absorb that there is a bizarre aunt in the family.

PART THREE
SUGGESTED RESPONSE BY CITIZENS

21. Citizen's Arrest and Reviving Your Grand Jury

(published April 3, 2018)

George Washington and Marquis de Lafayette fighting the system

So what are you going to do about the Tsarnaev travesty? That's what it boils down to. It boils down to you. We've already established that the persons who are paid by us to deal with it aren't dealing with it -- and it's unwise to wait.

Let's first look at "citizen's arrest" and then consider other stronger, and weaker, options for your action.

Citizen's Arrest

It has always been legal for an individual to stop (i.e., arrest) someone who is visibly committing a crime. In fact, such policing had to be done by laypersons until 1820 when the London "bobbies" were established in England.

I will first overstate the case and then refine it, so please don't stop after this one paragraph. Generally, each of the 50 states says it is OK for you to arrest someone who you know has committed a felony. Your action isn't criminal!

Now for restrictions, or in some cases greater allowance:

One thing you should know is that you risk being sued by the person if you were mistaken about his guilt. The charge he might bring against you could be trespass or battery or false imprisonment (i.e., in your custody).

You are required to deliver your prisoner to authorities. In fact, once you have got him handcuffed you'd better phone the police and ask them to come and get him. You may think "Oh, they wouldn't help so I will incarcerate him in my shed." Not a good idea. Here I'm discussing what the law says you can do. Anything more revolutionary is out of my scope. Granted, I started with a picture of George Washington who revolted against British rule but I do not advocate revolution.

When effecting the capture you should touch the person and say he/she is being detained until the police arrive, and say "Please cooperate" and Miranda-ize him.

Canada's Supreme Court in R v Whitfield (1969) OK'd the use of reasonable force. R v Asante-Mensah (2003) confirmed that the common law of citizen's arrest is still good law in Canada.

The details that follow are taken from law professor Cherif Bassiouni's book, Citizen's Arrest: the law of arrest, search, and seizure for private citizens and private police.

He is now deceased, but he had 40 years to promote the book and did not do so. I take that to mean it's dangerous – well, in our police state today it sure is. Make a list of the lawless actions in the Marathon case and you will get a sense of the odds. Still, the alternative, doing nothing (think house-to-house searches in Watertown) is stupid.

Note that when making a citizen's arrest, if you meet the requirements and hold the person in a reasonable manner, I think a judge will not award damages to him if he sues you. The legislation was developed for merchants and hoteliers.

Bassiouni makes only one reference to Massachusetts law -- Chapter 231, Section 94B. See it at MAlegislature.gov:

False arrest; shoplifting; defrauding innkeepers; defenses:

In an action for false arrest or false imprisonment brought by any person by reason of having been detained for questioning on or in the immediate vicinity of the premises of a merchant or an innkeeper, if such person was detained in a reasonable manner and for not more than a reasonable length of time ...

and if there were reasonable grounds to believe that the person so detained was committing or attempting to commit a violation of section thirty [etc] or attempting to commit larceny of goods for sale on such premises [etc] it shall be a defense to such action.

Pretend the Police Force Is On Strike

Believe me I am aware that people don't want to do this citizen's-arrest thing now. It's very scary given that SWAT teams are known to have no training whatsoever in the Constitution of our dear land. But I want you to get a sense of how natural and legal it is for you to do this job.

Bassiouni's book is not an activist handbook; it is a law book that analyzes citizen's arrest. He compares this kind of arrest to the kind done by cops (they're nearly identical). So to get the feel of it, pretend that all your local police are on strike, or have come down with the flu, and you are being asked to do your duty. You'd need to know that you should act, upon receiving a warrant to arrest the person, or if you have reasonable grounds to suspect him.

Professor Cherif Bassiouni says, on page 13:

“An arrest made by a private citizen is as binding and valid as one made by a peace officer, provided that it arises under the authority of the common law or a statute. To constitute an arrest there must be an intent to arrest, under real or assumed authority, accompanied by a seizure, detention, or taking into custody of a person, which seizure is understood to be an arrest by the arrestee.”

OK, so here you are today, needing to arrest someone. As I said, pretend the “real” police – that is the paid ones, you are just as real – are in their homes and you are duty-bound to assist society. How? With luck you only have to say to the person “I’m arresting you for such-and-such” and he will be so impressed he will give himself over to your custody.

Be Good to the Arrestee. Before we proceed with the rights, protections, and duties of the arrestor (you), let’s discuss the rights of the suspect. He has a right to be told what you are doing, and in whose name you are doing it. Of course he has a right to be treated respectfully. He has a right to contact his family and his lawyer. He has a right to physical protection, for example against the elements. Bassiouni’s book doesn’t say that, but you may as well go overboard with kindness.

It seems silly to mention Miranda’s but you might as well cover yourself against having the case thrown out later for your failure to respect everyone’s Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination. Acceptable wording is: “You have a right to remain silent. Anything you say can and will be used against you in a court of law.” Note that telling the person what you are doing matters because he’s not allowed to kill you if you are arresting him.

Your Right To Use Violence

As for your rights, I say again they came from society’s natural set up. Members of society protect one another. Also it was in the past seen to be everyone’s duty to do so.

Bassiouni quotes Sir William Blackstone:

“Any private person who is present when any felony is committed, is bound by law to arrest the felon, on pain of fine or imprisonment, if he escapes through the negligence of the bystanders. And they may break open doors in following such felon, and if they kill him, provided he cannot otherwise be taken, it is justifiable.”

The key word above is “present” – you must see the crime happening. If you want to arrest someone merely on suspicion that he committed a crime, you can do it but are not justified in breaking doors, and if you kill the suspect it’s manslaughter.

Does it still hold true today? Yes. Blackstone wrote in 1769. The common law under which he wrote still holds in any US state, unless a statute has abolished a particular bit of it.

Note: many state courts have had occasion to rule on the justifiability of killing an intruder. However, that topic is the legality of self-defense, not the role of policing. All people are allowed to attack someone who is about to harm them. Wouldn’t it be crazy to be restricted?

Back to what you must be careful of. The word felony above is distinguished from misdemeanor. One way to tell the difference is by the mandated punishment. If the offense calls for imprisonment greater than 6 months it is safe to assume the deed is felonious.

Note: See Kevin Annett’s method in a Canadian resistance movement, for forming a citizen tribunal to churn out the arrests warrants, where a government refuses to do so.

Posse Comitatus, Deputizing, Warrants from a Judge

Just to be clear, an arrest is not a citizen’s arrest if the authorities have asked the able-bodied citizens to assist. You would be a public agent in those circumstances.

As mentioned, the FBI, when it makes an arrest, does so as a citizen's arrest. Feeb persons have no police power. Frequently, however, they ask the police to deputize them -- and then they do act as public agents. mPolice sometimes require an arrest warrant from a judge to carry out the arrest. You, too, can attempt to secure warrants from a judge. This will make your job easier.

Grand Juries

Now to a crucial matter – your control over your state or county grand jury. Running around to catch criminals is a hard job for individuals. So, in the old days there were grand juries. Grand means 23 members as compared to the petit jury of 12 that can try a case. The grand jury does not try anyone. Rather it calls the government's attention to a problem person. It issues a "true bill" or indictment.

The Fifth Amendment says:

"No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury,...;

nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation." [Emphasis added]

The Massachusetts government website mass.gov says:

"Grand Jurors sit with 22 other jurors for a term of several months to consider evidence presented by the prosecutor. Grand Jurors do not serve on a trial, like Trial Jurors. Rather, they evaluate evidence presented by the prosecutor and decide if it is sufficient to indict (bring a criminal charge against) a person or corporation.

The grand jury does not decide the guilt or innocence. It decides if there is probable cause to bring the accused to trial. The grand jury's work is a pre-trial function of the court. [Emphasis added]

That's awful. The grand jury is a prerogative of the people not the court. There should always be a grand jury empanelled and you can go to any of those 23 persons to report trouble. Then it is their solemn responsibility to consider any indictment. If the "prosecutor" has usurped this function, you should go to court and ask for an injunction against this unconstitutional practice. Please do!

Note: I took that idea from Bill Windsor, a contemporary hero of American law. He has a show called "Lawless America" on Youtube and is at the forefront of many battles for justice. So far, for his trouble, he is in jail. (And he suffers claustrophobia, making it a terrible ordeal.)

Solidarity

We are very lacking in solidarity today. In the last few decades, people have been "conditioned" to not trust one another, or work for the greater good. This chapter has reminded us that the catching of criminals was understood to be the duty of all, for mutual defense.

Aren't we in a similar position now to the colonists of 1775? We're oppressed and the question is what to do about it?

There's loads of room for negotiation with our oppressors. But a first step would be to arrest and try some of the criminals. As soon as people saw this happening it would engender a cultural change. "Tude is the key to many things.

22. Disbar All Lawyers, Impeach All Judges

Bill Clinton, suspended from legal practice for 5 years (while president!)

This chapter proposes, not entirely in jest, that society remove from the bar and the bench all those persons who do not have a deep sense of Rule of Law. Every state has a licensing board for professions, such as nurses, and lawyers. If members act unethically, you can bring a complaint to the relevant board.

The board will tell the lawyer to stop doing that thing (say, overcharging), or will call her before a panel for a hearing. The complainer will not be present at the hearing (unless called as a witness). The lawyer may get a reprimand (always published), or a suspension or revocation of the license to practice. The Code of Ethics of the American Bar Association warns against:

1. Failing to file papers on time for the client, 2. Communicating privileged information, or 3. Participating where there is a conflict of interest. Massachusetts has adopted Rule 8.4 (e) which says it is misconduct if a lawyer “engages in conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice.” Wow.

There are two watchdogs for the professional ethics of lawyers in Massachusetts. One is the BBO -- Board of Bar Overseers, the other is the Attorney and Consumer Assistance Program of the Office of the Bar Counsel. I hereby open-letter both now:

Dear Guardians of the Legal Profession in Massachusetts,

I must bring to your attention an urgent matter. A man is in jail following a conviction, where his Public Defenders did not allow him to present a Not Guilty case. They chose a strategy of saying that his brother was the mastermind and he the follower – but in fact he is innocent. His case occurred in 2015.

In 2018, the US Supreme Court ruled in McCoy v Louisiana that an accused must not be subjected to such strategy against his will. The Massachusetts guy, Dzhokhar (Jahar) Tsarnaev is the one convicted of the Marathon bombing. He deserves to hear about McCoy but his defenders will not open that possibility.

They are presently constructing an appeal for him on the same grounds of his “guilt” to which they are committed. I ask you to disbar them – William Fick and Miriam Conrad. That is the only way the barrier will fall and the client will learn his rights. Tsarnaev is in federal prison under SAMs. Only his parents can talk to him and they have agreed, under pressure, to silence.

I will now tell you of the most egregious behavior by William Fick. The public does not know about this – yet – but they will. In regard to his being a Public Defender for Tsarnaev, Fick – along with California lawyer Judy Clarke – visited Russia 13 times before the trial.

Why? The following was revealed by Dzhokhar’s aunt Maret Tsarnaeva who was present or one of those visits: She said, in an affidavit that is now on file in court, that the defenders’ visits were for the purpose of getting the boy to accept their services which he was rejecting. They finally persuaded the Mother to write a letter to her son advising him to accept the “Defense Team.” They were pressured to do so by a threat from Fick et al:

“They warned that, if their advice were not followed, Dzhokhar’s life in custody near Boston [Ft Devens] would be more difficult.”

Also, wrote Maret Tsarnaeva, “Dzhokhar’s parents expressed willingness to engage independent counsel Mr. Fick reacted by saying that the government agents and lawyers would obstruct independent counsel....”

According to the aunt, she suggested at one of the visits that there was talk of another person having done the bombing and that should be looked at. Judy Clarke said to Fick “Yes let’s do that, Bill.” He then got angry and red-faced and said “No.”

Another stunning affront occurred toward the end of the trial. After both sides sum up, a judge normally reads instructions to the jurors, telling them what law to apply. He tells them what standard of proof is required: “beyond reasonable doubt” in criminal cases “balance of probabilities” in a civil case. He tells the jurors that they are the judge of a witness’ credibility.

It goes without saying that he should remind them of how the accused has pleaded – Guilty or Not Guilty. In Jahar’s case, as is the custom, the prosecution sent the judge its suggested jury instructions. This paper was then circulated to the defense, for input. It’s up to the judge to make the final choice of words.

In Tsarnaev’s case, Prosecutor Carmen Ortiz sent in her wording on February 27, 2015, in Document 1098:

“The indictment charges the defendant with multiple counts of possession and use of a firearm during and in relation to a crime of violence, and it alleges in some of those counts that the crimes resulted in the deaths of Krystle Marie Campbell, Officer Sean Collier, Lingzi Lu, and Martin Richard. Finally, the indictment alleges that the defendant carjacked and robbed an individual who has the initials D.M. The defendant has pleaded not guilty to all of the charges.” [Emphasis added]

Then the defense attorney Judy Clarke offered a correction to that Jury Instruction. In Document 1101-1 on March 2, 2015, we see that she wrote an ending exactly as follows:

Finally, the indictment alleges that the defendant carjacked and robbed an individual who has the initials D.M. The defendant is presumed innocent of all charges, and the Government bears the burden of proving each and every element of the charges beyond a reasonable doubt. ~~The defendant has pleaded not guilty to all of the charges.~~

She crossed it out. And Judge George O'Toole obeyed her.

I ask you to disbar any member of the Defense team or Prosecution team who holds Massachusetts licence to practice law. As is described in my book The Soul of Boston and the Marathon Bombing, both sides were in cahoots. This is horrendous and it must stop.

Thank you.

Yours sincerely, [not actually sent, this is an Open Letter].

But, Dear Reader, you could send such a letter or call the Attorney and Consumer Assistance Program. Tel: 617 728 8750.

I note that Fick had lived in Moscow in the 1990s. His job? "He designed and managed an array of projects to develop access to the Internet." Is he CIA? The 13 or 14 trips to Russia on behalf of Jahar seem a bit excessive

The Laws Be Faithfully Executed

Please realize that we have an extremely serious problem here. The US Constitution gives the president the duty of maintaining law. Article II, sec 3 says "He shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed." But over a period of three decades we have seen government lawlessness become culturally "normal."

The only antidote I can think of is for the citizenry to insist on a return to the great principles of the past. Law is vital to our survival. We really must stop deferring to wrongdoers. Recall President Reagan firing all the airtraffic controllers merely because they had unlawfully gone on strike?

Impeaching a Judge

*Ticket to watch Nixon's trial
– though it never came to impeachment as he resigned instead*

Who can hold a Judge Accountable? One of my mentors (whom I never met) was the late Sherman Skolnick, the founder of the Citizens' Committee to Clean Up the Courts. He managed to get many Illinois judges put behind bars – no mean feat! The thing about Skolnick that seems to distinguish him from most other people is that he didn't think a judge was above the law.

It's natural to assume that men in impressive roles should not be treated like the rest of us. But look at the US Constitution. The Framers were extremely careful about making government accountable. They gave the House of Representatives the power (read: the duty) to impeach. To impeach is only to accuse (from Latin impedicare, to catch).

If the House votes Yes by simple majority, the case then goes to the Senate for "conviction." Note: Clinton was impeached, but the Senate did not convict him. Most Americans think impeachment is only for presidents, but it's for any officers appointed by the US, e.g., judges, military brass, or US Attorneys. Congress can impeach any of these.

On the next page is a letter I sent to 49 relevant members of the House – the nine representing Massachusetts and forty members of the House Judiciary Committee. I put each one in an unsealed envelope with a 2-page suggested text of 5 articles of impeachment. Wrapped it all up in a US Post Office box. Mailed it to Capitol Hill on November 13, 2018.

Greetings! I am writing to all Massachusetts Representatives and members of the House Judiciary Committee to ask you to start impeachment proceedings during the 115th Congress.

Article III, section 1 of the United States Constitution says “The Judges... shall hold their Offices during good Behavior.” And Article I, section 3, says “The House of Representatives... shall have sole power of impeachment.”

I suggest five articles of impeachment of Judge George A O’Toole, as drafted on the attached pages. To summarize:

1. He gave illegal instructions to a jury
2. He suppressed a shocking affidavit
3. He met with jurors ex parte
4. He ignored a petition for a Writ of Error Coram Nobis
5. He gave the nod to Public Defenders’ betrayal of their client.

I find it my duty to try to get Judge O’Toole removed from the bench. He upset the constitutional balance of power by siding, in at least one case, with the Executive branch, i.e., the prosecutors, who were themselves acting deceitfully and with outrageous scorn for the law. To have such unbridled power in government is dangerous for all, as the Founders well knew. In US history, fifteen judges have been impeached, of whom 8 were convicted, 4 acquitted, and 3 resigned before trial.

None were from Massachusetts. The states are: CA, FL, IL, KS, LA, MS, MO, NH, NV, TN, TX. The fact that Florida had 3 may reflect diligence on the part of citizens. Overall, Congress’s use of the impeachment power is too sparse, given that wickedness abounds in courts today and everyone knows it. The most recent impeachment was in 2010.

In the 1993 case of Walter Nixon v US, the US Supreme Court held that when the Senate tries a person who has been impeached, there can be no judicial review. Any cause can enable conviction. “Even a coin toss” said Justice Souter in his dissent. [Etc] -- Yours respectfully, Mary Maxwell

Note: a judge who retires gets to keep his salary for life. The salary for US District Court judges is presently $202,000. If a judge is impeached (which is the only way a federal judge gets forced out), he or she does not get any further pay. Therefore it would be wise to quit before Congress acts.

Anyway, three weeks later my box of letters was returned to me with a big label “Refused.” Was I ever disheartened! I thought “end times” had arrived.

However, inside the box was a note telling me I would have to pay $8.84 to the mailroom at Congress in order to have the letters distributed. I was afraid to send it back and waste 3 more weeks learning of some additional bit of red tape, so I wrote separately to each of the nine Massachusetts representatives.

I will write to the others after the 116th Congress has settled the new membership of the House Judiciary Committee.

Do you think I’m a nut-job for doing this? Don’t worry, I think I’m a nutjob. But I like to do anything the Constitution says we can do. The House of Representatives is the People’s Parlor. Seriously.

23. Pardons, Coram Nobis, Appeals, Jurisdiction

Maret Tsarnaeva, LLM (Manitoba)

One day Boston will have to correct the errors made regarding the Marathon trial. Preferably this will happen before the boy dies. In Savannah, Georgia the state made terrible errors in sending Troy Davis to his death in 2011. It's not uncommon. But this is BOSTON. It can't happen here. We won't let it.

There are different ways that a new result for Jahar can be achieved. Any person convicted of a crime has the right to an appeal. In a Death Row case, the appeal begins automatically.

Once it is on the hands of appellate judges, a variety of things can happen. The judges (three of them, requiring a majority vote, i.e., two of them) can reverse the decision of the lower court, or affirm it. They can order a modification of the judgment, or send the whole thing back to the trial court for a re-trial.

They cannot declare a mistrial as that is something that can only happen before the verdict comes in. It may happen quite early in a trial if, for example, the court becomes aware that a juror is being bribed, or if the defense attorney dies. Jahar can get a habeas corpus hearing, as far as I know, Jose Padilla got one after many refusals. Because the crimes Jahar was charged with are federal crimes this is a federal trial, and it goes to the US appeals court in Boston known as the First Circuit court. His appeal has been assigned to three judges: Juan Torruella, age 84, Sandra L. Lynch, age 71, and Jeffrey R. Howard, age 62.

Howard is a graduate of Georgetown Law School. I am of the belief that the law schools of Harvard, Yale, and Georgetown are staffed by CIA. Of course that is not necessarily going to bring doom.

Pardon. A simple way to correct the terrible error of the Marathon case would be for the US president to grant a pardon to Jahar Tsarnaev. I think President Trump should do that right now, and we can sort out the judicial crimes later.

Time is of the essence. Perhaps Jahar is in need of medical attention. He certainly needs some social conversation. And his family needs him. Recall that his grand-aunt traveled to the US, but was not allowed to hug him. Fathom it.

Pardon is also the least expensive move for the taxpayer. If, instead, he gets an acquittal he can then sue for malicious prosecution. (How could he fail to win!) The money will not be billed to the malicious prosecutors but to me and thee. That's something that needs also to be fixed!

Coram Nobis. Another possibility, a procedure under English common law, is seldom used. Any person seeing that the court was defrauded by a member of the court (judge, prosecutor, defense attorney, clerk of court) can petition the original court for a Writ of Error Coram Nobis. The judge in the original court must look at it and act on it. The US Supreme Court precedent is the Korematsu case; it was "set aside" in 1984.

In Bulloch v. US (1985), the Tenth Circuit Court said:

"Fraud upon the court... is where ...the judge has not performed his judicial function, thus where the impartial functions of the court have been directly corrupted."

In Kenner v. C.I.R. (1968), the Seventh Circuit Court said: "A decision produced by fraud upon the court is not in essence a decision at all, and never becomes final."

I sent a coram nobis to Judge O’Toole in March, 2016 and never heard back. In May 2017, I sent it also to both houses of the Massachusetts legislature and got no reply. In Document 4 at the end of this book you can see my petition for a Writ of Error coram nobis. This is actually a fairly painless way for the judiciary to get relieved of the complicated problem of the Tsarnaev case. Once a judge admits that the court was defrauded, the likely thing to do is acquit Jahar.

The Appeals Process. Today the Tsarnaev case is in appeals. But the paperwork looks to be the same old legalese, dodging the real issues. And although the “government” side of the case – i.e., the prosecutors – will have new people (Ortiz has retired) and the “Defense” (just kidding) will also see a turnover of personnel, they are still both employed by government and none have breathed a rebellious word. You know, none said “Folks, there was no carjacking, got it?”

Appellate courts can’t take new evidence or new witnesses. This is based on the good rule that a jury’s decisions about the facts in the case cannot be overturned by a judge. Appellate courts can change the outcome of a case on the basis of the law having been misinterpreted or incorrectly applied. The First Circuit has allowed an amicus brief that discusses a piece of evidence (the prosecution proffered as evidence a black backpack but Jahar owned a white-gray backpack).

De-federalize the Crime and Demand State Jurisdiction

A final possibility is a re-opening of the case based on jurisdiction. The Constitution federalizes the crimes of treason, piracy and counterfeiting coin. Thanks to anti-terrorism laws – whose constitutionality has scant been tested – the Marathon bombing is treated as federal. But the “federality” of some of the charges relied (weakly) on “the commerce clause.”

The indictment said: “Many businesses line Marathon route. In the area near the finish line, businesses are located on both sides of Boylston St including restaurants, a hotel and retail stores.”

The feds also invoked Post-Office-use as away to federalize it: “He used the internet to order electronic components that could be adapted for use in making IEDs, and components were delivered by the US Postal Service to his Cambridge residence.”

And certain guns are federally regulated, hence Count 31: “[Near] 32 Vassar Street Cambridge, [Jahar] murdered Sean Collier, an MIT Police Officer, by shooting him in the head at close range with a Ruger P95 9mm semiautomatic handgun.”

In 1995, in Lopez, Justice Clarence Thomas started to question this sort of federalization of crime. But we can’t get any action on that in time to make a difference in Jahar’s case. I think people should put up resistance to any anti-terrorist laws. They are an insulting trick, invented by people who desire war.

How Jahar Can Go on the Offensive

Jahar can sue under the civil rights law for deprivation of his civil rights, and Tamerlan’s widow, Katherine Russell, can use the same law to sue for his wrongful death. See 42 USC 1983:

“Whoever under color of any law ... subjects any person to the deprivation of any rights ...”

The three-year statute of limitations is up but it should not start tolling until Jahar gets a chance to sue, and Katherine gets free of FBI or CIA harassment. I believe Tamerlan’s daughter can sue when she reaches 18 for what was done to her father.

Or Just Give Up and Die

In 2011, on September 21, the autumnal equinox, the US Supreme Court arranged for Georgia’s state prisoner Troy Davis to be executed. Although it was plain that he was innocent, no one could think of a way to overcome the secret business of the court, the betrayal of the nation. The state paid a doctor $18,000 for the lethal injection. And that was that.

24. What Is the Role of a Library – Such As the BPL?

Open Letter to David Leonard, President, Boston Public Library, 700 Boylston St, Boston, MA 02116

Dear Mr. Leonard,

Greetings! From my youth I recall the ground floor of the BPL as a quiet, uneventful place. Today (October 23, 2017) it was all hell's-a-poppin,' especially thanks to the WGBH Newsfeed, and activities for readers. Anyone would be uplifted just being there. Congratulations to you and your staff.

I walked over to the “bibliographical assistance” desk and asked the very helpful librarian four questions. First, “Do you have a special section of books that deal with ‘Nine Eleven,?’” and second, “Is there a particular section that handles conspiracy theory in regard to 9/11?” She said “Yes, we definitely have a section on 9/11, and I’ll check the catalogue for conspiracy in particular.” She then handed me a paper with the Library of Congress number HV6275 for conspiracy.

Third, I asked “And do you have a place devoted to books about the Marathon bombing?” She typed in “Marathon bombing” and named some titles, such as Michele McPhee’s Maximum Harm (I tried not to grimace), and fourth, “May I also have the conspiracy section on Marathon?” “No, there apparently isn’t a section on that.”

I myself am the author of a conspiracy book entitled Marathon Bombing. I'd better provide you with a copy for the BPL, Mr Leonard. Possibly mine is the only one so far on that subject. I am a proper scholar and your shelves already have books authored by me, on human evolution.

Visiting Section HV6275

Off I went, then, to read your books on the conspiracy of 9/11. I was confident you would stock all nine of David Ray Griffin's well-researched books, such as The New Pearl Harbor, (2004), and 9/11 Contradictions: An Open Letter to Congress and the Press (2008). Griffin is a 78-year-old professor whose earlier books were on theology.

I would have bet money that the BPL also carried Kevin Ryan's well-sourced book Another Nineteen – meaning, say, the men who bought United Airlines put options just before the big day. And since Elias Davidsson's Hijacking of America's Mind on 9/11 is in 770 libraries, I presumed (but erroneously) that the BPL has it. Elias is the fussiest scholar I know. In the Hijacking book he traces all the phone calls from the planes on 9/11.

I found the HV6275 section; it's on the second floor under a banner that says "Law and Politics." Practically made me salivate. One has to bend down to reach the offending conspiracy books on a low shelf – I didn't mind that but, alas, none of them are investigations of 9-11 truth! They're all about the awfulness of conspiracy theory. For example:

Conspiracy Theories: The Roots, Themes and Propagation of Paranoid Political and Cultural Narratives, by Aaron Gulyas;

Conspiracy Theories and Other Dangerous Ideas, by Cass Sunstein [One really must gasp] (5 copies available); and

Among the Truthers, by Jonathan Kay (7 copies available).

Believe me, in my day we did not refer sarcastically to seekers of the truth as “truthers.” (Was Galileo a truther? Was Luther?) The blurb of Kay’s book says:

I’m one of the truthers and am not paranoid -- I think I’ve got facts right, but will always shift over to another position if good evidence pops up. And the great authors I mentioned (Griffin, Ryan, and Davidsson) — show no signs of paranoia. I don’t even agree that they are “peddling” their ideas.

Thus we have name-calling in Section HV6275. Is that OK on the shelves of a big city library? I think it is. I think just about anything can be offered to the readers of Boston. But the number of copies on hand – 7 in the case of Kay’s book — makes me think the book was promoted by the BPL. If so, on what grounds?

Or on what grounds was the decision made to skip David Ray Griffin’s very compelling account of the problems in the official 9/11 story? Have we become a nation in which it is wrong to say anything about the bad deeds of government?

I expect there is a whole section at BPL of books about our revolutionary heroes, such as Tom Paine. Dear me, are they in danger of being tossed out?

The Homeless

Excuse me for sounding negative, O President. My day at the Library was very happy. I liked seeing the bedraggled old men enjoying your comfortable chairs upstairs. They weren't even pretending to be reading a book, but no one disturbed them.

I had visited the BPL previously this year, on September 7th. I came up to Boston from the Deep South where I had been staying in Motel 6's. In my campaign for the US Senate (now ended) in Alabama, I needed to travel all over that state.

The next day, when I decided to inspect the Marathon finish line, I dropped in to the BPL and inquired if I could get a Library Card. Your very courteous clerk asked me for my address. I said "Well, I don't exactly have a fixed address now, I am sort of homeless."

He replied without a hint of condescension "All right, if you get into a shelter, come back with the shelter's address and we can use that as your address for a Library Card." I was very touched.

On my way out I saw, on a sign near the elevator "Rodgers and Hammerstein wrote Oklahoma on a table in the Ladies Room."

"Oklahoma where the wavin' wheat can sure smell sweet, when the wind comes right behind the rain." I love all that stuff. And I die for libraries.

Thank you for listening.

Yours sincerely,

Mary Maxwell, PhD, LLB

25. Brady Rule, Exculpation, and Omnia Praesumuntur

Justices of the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court

In 1963 the US Supreme Court, in the Brady case, confirmed the right of an accused to have access to exculpatory evidence. In Brady there was a piece of evidence on file which, had the defendant been allowed to see, would have given him a better outcome. The Court said:

“We now hold that the suppression by the prosecution of evidence favorable to an accused upon request violates due process where the evidence is material either to guilt or to punishment.... The principle [is] avoidance of an unfair trial to the accused.” [Emphasis added]

So What Is the Problemo?

The problemo is the fact that the courts are working for “someone else.” Maybe the bad judges are themselves living in fear. Maybe a mafia has threatened to break the bones of their grandkids. I don’t care if that’s what is making judges misbehave -- they must not do it.

They will have to risk their grandkids. Otherwise let them resign from the bench. In 1990, a perfect case of attorney corruption came up in the federal court in Boston. There was a mobster named Ferrara (also called ‘Vincent the Animal’) who was in jail for murder. He had done a plea bargain to get a 22-year sentence instead of a life sentence. Ferrara didn’t realize there was material in the prosecutor’s file that showed another man had confessed to the murder.

Later, in 2008, US Judge Mark Wolf reexamined it and said he had to let Ferrara out of jail, animal or not. He then freed the prisoner without further ado. Judge Wolf put the blame on US Attorney Jeffrey Auerhahn for having suppressed the exculpatory evidence, contrary to the Brady rule. A Boston cop testified that Auerhahn knew of Ferrera’s innocence. Yay, cop!

Law, Beautiful Law

So, do we find Attorney Auerhahn in jail today? We certainly should. Obstruction of justice is a felony. I quote federal law at 18 USC 1503, re influencing (or injuring) a court officer or juror:

“(a) Whoever corruptly, or by threats or force, or by any threatening letter or communication, endeavors to influence, intimidate, or impede any grand or petit juror, or officer in... any court of the United States ... or... obstructs ... the due administration of justice, shall be punished.... (b) The punishment for an offense under this section is...(3) ... imprisonment for not more than 10 years, a fine under this title, or both.” [Emphasis added]

Now, before you go taking a nice cake to prisoner Auerhahn in jail, let me assure you that he ain’t there. No one brought charges against him, AS INDEED THEY NEVER DO.

Still, we must thank Judge Mark Wolf of the US District Court in Boston, for speaking clearly of Auerhahn’s wrongdoing -- which is, unfortunately, common behavior among US Attorneys. And happily, the First Circuit Court of Appeals referred to Auerhahn's behavior as "outrageous," "egregious," "feckless" and "a grim picture of blatant misconduct."

Of course I do not agree with that last word. It was not "misconduct." It was criminal conduct, unless I am having trouble reading the English language. Now, wait till you hear what happened next. The Board of Bar Overseers (I had never heard of them) asked for disciplinary action against Auerhahn -- to suspend Auerhahn's license to practice law for two years.

So maybe you think the panel of decision makers would be composed of several laypersons and some lawyers? Wrong-o. It was composed of three judges. These were: Rya W Zobel, William G Young, and George A O'Toole.

They ruled: "the allegations of professional misconduct have not been proven by clear and convincing evidence." [What!] The offending fellow didn't get so much as a 6-month suspension of his licence.

Harvey Silverglate, a Boston attorney, commented that the judges "HAD TURNED SOMERSAULTS" to let Auerhahn off the hook. He said: "I think it's a rebuke to Judge Wolf and to all of those [who] for years now have been engaged in the never-ending but seemingly futile battle to get the DoJ to turn over exculpatory evidence that can exonerate a defendant...." Never-ending but seemingly futile? Hmm. Not any more! Come on, troops. Let's do what must be done here.

"Contra Spoliatorum, Omnia Praesumuntur"

Anything that may exonerate Jahar is exculpatory. If the prosecutor has presented fabricated evidence that's exculpatory for the accused, and it indicates guilty mind in the prosecutor.

An old maxim of law states: Contra spoliatorum, omnia presumuntur – "Against the one who despoils evidence, all things can be presumed." Why would they be trying to frame the innocent? It must be that they are motivated to protect the guilty party.

Jahar's Laundry List of Exculpatory Stuff

Any of these should suffice to get Jahar packing:

- *Defenders went to Russia to pressure parents to pressure Jahar.
- *FBI evidence in court is a black backpack; Jahar's was whitish.
- *The Podstava video rules out a 12:35am Laurel St shoot-out, as Tamerlan was taken into custody naked, unwounded at 1:05am.
- *Matt Isgur's compilation video has a telltale gap, and it is unimaginable that MIT does not own good quality surveillance.
- *The FBI refuses to say why it swarmed at MIT that afternoon.
- *Sean Collier's cruiser was destroyed within 3 weeks for no reason. This is criminal concealment of evidence.
- * Judge O'Toole withheld from jury that Jahar pleaded not guilty.
- *Defender insisted on 'It's him' strategy against accused's wish.
- *Friends who could help the accused were rounded up, put in solitary, and convicted of lying to FBI; some were deported.
- *Matanov was chased around by FBI; he had told of Tamerlan being bearded on Marathon night, contra the Boylston St photos.
- *Gun chain-of-custody is risible; Silva was trapped into a drug charge, then freed for giving witness against best friend Jahar.

.See Appendix B for ideals taught in law schools. A law student condoning any of the above practices would be out on her ea

26. Heather Frizzell Finds Omitted Evidence

One did not expect that anything new could come from FBI's records of cell phone calls in the Tsarnaev trial. One did not even know there was any reason to go searching. But Heather Frizzell, who has been doing a layperson-investigation for years, had a niggling feeling about it. I think it niggled her into an important find in the case. Actually, two important finds.

Heather's blog is boldly named USvTsarnaev.org. Chapter 19 celebrated her efforts to trace the ownership of the gun, the only gun, in the case, the Ruger P95. She discovered a chain of custody that had a few missing links and/or perjuristic associations.

Tamerlan's Friend

In her October 1, 2018 blog article, Ms Frizzell tells us that there aren't that many Chechens in Boston (when I say "Boston" I mean Cambridge, but don't tell Cantabrigians I said that). Thus, if there is a guy around the block with a Chechen-sounding surname, like Vakhobov, you should listen up.

Right now Viskhan Vakhobov is at the top of Heather's list of SUSPECTS IN THE MARATHON BOMBING. I have to be careful not to accuse him, as that is slander in Australia where GumshoeNews is published. But I don't want to make up a code name, such as Brer Rabbit, as Ms Frizzell is eager to hear from Viskhan. Please ask around and see if he will contact her.

So where does the word “suspect” fit into the ongoing saga of the unfair conviction of Non-bomber Dzhokhar (Jahar) Tsarnaev? Well I am sorry to say that Heather’s theory is that Tamerlan was guilty (though not Jahar). And she thinks there was planning for Marathon Day that involved a few contacts between Tamerlan and the Top-o-the-List Viskhan.

My reason for always assuming that the late Tamerlan was a goodnik, is that I’m stuck in the routine of watching feds make up a terror scenario out of nothing and then blame a patsy. The patsy must subsequently be killed. Tamerlan was killed.

Here I will not try to spar with Heather about a guilty Tamerlan. She is full-on about Jahar’s innocence and indeed her Viskhan Vakhobov (hereinafter VV) material can work as a life-saver for our Death Row friend.

Evidence at Trial

VV’s name did come up in the courtroom during Jahar’s lengthy trial, but nobody noticed. Also, the name was whispered once in the lawyer/judge hallway – on record – and Heather of course caught it like an errant ball at Fenway Park.

The matter had to do with Judge O’Toole’s decision not to use any of the data regarding VV. The reason for the hands-off-VV policy? It’s that if VV were called as a witness he may take the Fifth, and O’Toole would have to allow it.

At the Lindt Café inquest, when I attended the hearings, a New South Wales policeman came in to the coroner’s court as a witness. The plan was for him to admit having shot dead the hostage-taker Man Haron Monis. I recall Judge Michael Barnes offering him a certificate of immunity before he even took the oath As in “Tell it like it is, copper. We need your testimony, and, in exchange, we promise youwhatever.”

Probably that cop had acted within the rules of engagement anyway, during the Lindt Café siege, but this gave him the all clear. He then boasted of having done the needful.

I don't know if the Boston judge could have brought VV to the stand and "certificated" him. Heather was curious as to whether VV could have refused to answer questions about the Marathon on the grounds that it may incriminate him.

Fifth or Sixth – Which is Stronger?

Thus Ms Frizzell trekked to the library and found that the Fifth Amendment right of a criminal trumps the Sixth Amendment right of a person to interrogate witnesses. (I suppose she could have saved the trip to the library by asking her lawyer father. Remember Dad Frizzell from the Ruger P95 matter?)

Heather noted from US Supreme Court jurisprudence as recent as 2009, that a VV-type person only gets permission to avoid singing if the court knows that he'd possibly be guilty on a related matter. I myself, being as innocent as a lamb, cannot say at a trial "I refuse to answer Marathon questions on the grounds that it may incriminate me" just because I like my privacy.

Well, this was quite the Aba moment for Heather. She thinks Judge O'Toole had knowledge that there was some involvement of VV in the Marathon bombing, yet has not called him as a witness! As I said, thinking back to Monis's killer in Sydney, it may be that the Boston judge could offer VV a certificate.

Cell Phones, the FBI, and April 10, 2013

During Jahar's trial in 2015, an FBI low-ranking employee, Chad Fitzgerald, submitted some records of calls made by Tamerlan's phone. And boy did he make a boo-boo. Ms Frizzell notes that the court requested only Tamerlan's calls starting on April 15, 2013 the very day of the Marathon. That in itself could be dodgy, no? But helpful ol' Fitzgerald included a demo page on how to interpret cell phone records.

He grabbed a random date, April 10, from Tamerlan's life, and don't you know it was Paydirt City for our sleuth.

April 10 happened to be the day Tamerlan googled "Boston Marathon." Well anybody can google Boston Marathon, but it was also the day he made a call to VV from a particular location.

If I tell you the location was Copley Square, will you get the joke? If you know me, and know my Boston Public Library proclivities, you will say "Wow-ee." Yes, it means that on April 10th Tamerlan was standing, or walking, near the Finish Line.

[All faint.]

If the Knit Cap Doesn't Fit, You Must Acquit

I can't stop to report Heather Frizzell's work about the death of Sean Collier. You may recall her challenging the testimony of Nate Harman a student at MIT who claimed to have ridden his bicycle past Sean Collier's car. (She drove her own bike there to check out the particulars.)

She has worked on other aspects of the case, including a missing knit cap mentioned by Nathan Harman, and two bloody golf gloves found in the accused's abandoned car. To learn the details you will have to go to her website: www. USvTsarnaev.org.

But I can at least tell you that her excitement about the new phone-call discoveries has something to do with the fact that there was also a cell phone purchased in the name of "Jahar Tsarni" – perhaps never in his control, though. The FBI records show that it had some calls on it on Marathon Day April 15, but it then fell silent while Jahar was back at school at UMass.

However, on the famous Thursday April 18 (DesLauriers' press conference, carjacking, Collier murder), there was one call made by the "Tsarni" phone to someone. It was made at 8:17pm.

So what? Well, that is two hours and seven minutes before the official time given for the shooting of Collier. The call was placed to VV, Viskhan Vakhobov. And hear this from Heather:

“It is important to note, [prosecutor] Weinreb gives one inaccurate detail – he states the call happened after Collier’s murder. However, by the prosecution’s own timeline, Sean Collier was shot at 10:24 p.m. on April 18th.

“With the Vakhobov call coming at 8:17 p.m., I must stress that this is very much before Collier’s murder I don’t know whether Weinreb was misspeaking, genuinely mistaken about the time, or being misleading in his statement, but the fact remains: there is no way this call to Vakhobov came after Collier was already dead.”

Heather had to labor to acquire this techie insight. She writes: “Unfortunately, I learned cell phone records are both tedious and ... complicated to go through. Everything comprises of a long list of numbers, and without context given in the trial transcript by the government’s cell phone expert, Chad Fitzgerald, I felt hopeless at determining what it all meant.”

Dad’s daughter needs to win the journalism award of the year just for finding the April 10th phone call that occurred near the Finish Line. But I add a caveat: when we say A phoned B, we are saying a call was made from a phone owned by A to a phone owned by B. The actual caller and callee may have been anyone.

Since masses of stuff points in the direction of the Marathon bombing not being a jihadist, I think the VV calls to Tamerlan (and from Tsarni) are open to other explanation. That whole generation of immigrants does informant work for FBI or CIA--they could have been told to place those calls.

I want to know what Judge O’Toole knew about VV. And Viskhan, you are lovingly sought by the whole team. Make an appearance! Get a boy out of jail and we will retroactively certificate you!

Dear Dr Hull,

When you were appointed Chief Medical Examiner five months ago (October 24, 2017), you said:

“The Massachusetts Office of the Chief Medical Examiner is made up of a team of tireless and dedicated individuals who are responsible for investigating, documenting, and understanding the unexplained, unattended, or mysterious deaths that occur across the Commonwealth. Whether it is providing families with closure, evidence to the courts, or a statistical overview of the well-being of our communities... I am honored to be chosen to lead this office and I approach this role with a deep sense of responsibility....” [Emphasis added]

Dr Hull, I write today to ask you to conduct an inquest into the unsolved mystery of the death of Tamerlan Tsarnaev of Cambridge. He was last seen publicly on April 19, 2013, in Watertown. The law calls for his death to be examined by you.

Massachusetts General Law, Part I, Title IV, Chapter 38, says:

Section 3. It shall be the duty of any person having knowledge of a death which occurs under the circumstances enumerated in this paragraph immediately to notify the office of the chief medical examiner, or the medical examiner designated to the location where the death has occurred, of the known facts concerning the time, place, manner, circumstances and cause of such death: [in the following categories...]

Let me now select only the clauses that may apply to this case

- (1) death where criminal violence appears to have taken place, regardless of the time interval between the incident and death, and regardless of whether such violence appears to have been the immediate cause of death, or a contributory factor thereto;
- (4) death under suspicious or unusual circumstances;
- (7) death in custody, in any jail or correctional facility...
- (12) sudden death when decedent was in apparent good health;
- (17) death in an emergency treatment facility...

Tamerlan was seen and heard – and there is a good-quality video of this – on Mt Auburn St, Watertown at 1:05am. That was the Friday morning after the Monday when the Boston Marathon took place. He is lying face down on the sidewalk. A cop in a yellow fluorescent jacket is standing over him – it looks as though Tamerlan is being frisked. Tamerlan yells “Podstava.” I am told that this is the Russian phrase for “It’s a set-up”. Or “I’m a patsy.”

I point out that this timing – 1:05am -- proves that the police story that Tamerlan was captured at Laurel St at 12:35am (after a shootout with police) cannot be true. The Laurel St story has Tamerlan very wounded. He could not then be seen a half-hour later as a free man, in an apparently unwounded condition.

A further complication is that a naked man, whom the Tsarnaev family identifies as Tamerlan, was shown on CNN being put into a cop car. The timing of the broadcast of the CNN report is after 1:05 am, possibly around 2am. CNN reporter Gabe Ramirez could verify it for you.

From the above I deduce that Tamerlan was arrested there while lying face down at Mt Auburn St, that he was then stripped of his clothes, and taken away in a cop car. The authorities announced the death of Tamerlan sometime before 6am.

Mandated Categories

I shall now explain why I think MGL Chapter 38, section 3 categories – some or all of them – may fit the case. Among your mandates to investigate, I name #7 as perhaps the main one: death in custody.

I reckon #12 is also pertinent: sudden death when the decedent was in apparent good health. And if he died in hospital, then #17 comes into play: death in an emergency treatment facility (unless that excludes general hospitals).

As for #4: death under suspicious or unusual circumstances, my suspicion is aroused at the very least by the fact that there was no Inquest done, as the law demands. That is, Tamerlan’s death was officially described as having occurred partly as a result of police (self-defense) gunshot and partly as a result of being run over by a car. Wouldn't this call for an inquest?

Dr Hull, on April 25, 2013, your predecessor as Medical Examiner, Henry M Niels, MD, PhD, signed the death certificate of Tamerlan Tsarnaev. He listed the cause of death as GUNSHOT WOUNDS OF TORSO AND EXTREMITIES AND BLUNT TRAUMA TO HEAD AND TORSO.

In the section marked "Describe how injury occurred," Niels wrote: SHOT BY POLICE AND THEN RUN OVER AND DRAGGED BY MOTOR VEHICLE. Of course the Medical Examiner can't be the original provider of that information – he only saw the body after the dragging, not while it was happening. But I think he should have seen from the condition of the body that "shot, run over, and dragged" was unlikely to be how the death – of the real Tamerlan -- really occurred.

Also the place of death is given as Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center. When did he arrive there? At what moment did he – supposedly – die in hospital? The death certificate says 1:35am. Thus he allegedly survived his wounds for an hour after the alleged Laurel St shootout.

Was It the Wrong Man? The fact that Tamerlan's uncle Ruslan Tsarni is listed as the "designee" for disposition of the body makes me think that the man about whom the death certificate was written was in fact Tamerlan; a relative would notice if the corpse was of a stranger.

Yet, having read the police report of the shootout at Laurel St – which formed the testimony on March 16, 2015 at the federal criminal trial of Dzhokhar (Jahar) Tsarnaev -- it does seem that "a mistaken set of brothers" was involved in the shootout. [Note: If so, they must have been chosen as "disposables"!]

To say again, I assess the video of Tamerlan on the sidewalk at Mt Auburn St, as valid, as does his family. I can't see anything wrong with it. It is popularly known as "the Podstava video." If the authorities want to argue against the validity of the Podstava video they should indeed argue against it, but they ignore it. So please assume – just for the moment -- that Tamerlan did get arrested at 1:05am on Mt Auburn St.

Who, then, was the man reportedly arrested, wounded, on Laurel St? And what happened to him? That is not a matter I wish to take up in this letter, but it does look like a mysterious death, fitting into Category 1: death where criminal violence appears to have taken place. There was not only alleged use of a gun but of pipe bombs at that location – crimes for which the brother, Dzhokhar, was convicted and is on Death Row.

Officer Reynolds’ Testimony at Jahar’s 2015 Trial

I shall now quote, abridged, the lengthy testimony of Watertown policeman, Officer Joseph Reynolds, in Direct Examination by Mr Steven D Mellin for the Prosecution. I’ve added bolding at what seems interesting points:

Q. What did you do? A. At that point my only defense was my cruiser. I didn’t want to exit. I didn't think it was a good vantage point for me. So what I did was I ducked down behind my dashboard, I threw the cruiser into reverse, and I backed up about 30 yards. Q. After you backed up, did you get out of your car? A. Yes. Before doing so I notified dispatch that we had shots fired. “Shots fired.” Q. At that point in time, had anybody else come on the scene? A. I was still alone at that time, yes. Q. What did you do? A. I exited my driver’s side door and I used that as cover. And I was exchanging gunfire with Tamerlan, I believe. Q. You said “Tamerlan, I believe.” What do you mean by that? A. Well, Tamerlan was still from cover. So it was Tamerlan that was shooting at me at that time.

Q. Where was he located in relation A. At that time he was still beside his driver's side door as cover. All flashes. ... Q. Okay. What did you do? A. At that point Sergeant MacLellan had left the vehicle in neutral -- or drive, and it continued to drive down Laurel Street towards the suspects. Q. With the car rolling down towards the suspects, what happened?

A. I came out from cover behind my driver's side door. I was ... of car does he have? SUV, a Ford Expedition. ... using the rear of his cruiser, and I was walking down the street continuing to fire at the two suspects. Q. What was Sergeant MacLellan doing? A. At that time -- I had not realized at that time that he had exited his cruiser and he had ran into the side yards of one of the residences ... on Laurel Street. Q. As you're using his car now as cover, what do you see in front of you?

A. I could see muzzle flashes at that point. Q. Where were the muzzle flashes? A. Coming from behind the black Mercedes? Q. At that point in time, were you able to tell who was shooting? A. No. Q. What do you actually see? You see muzzle flashes. What else? A. I could see muzzle flashes. And at that time I saw Sergeant MacLellan run into the side yard, so I followed him over there to communicate what he wanted. Q. When you followed him to the side yard, describe what that side yard looked like. ... A. It's a very narrow area. There's a small tree that we were using for cover. There's bushes, a white plastic fence. Q. So are the two of you taking cover behind one tree?

A. Yes. Q. What happened as you were doing that? A. We continued the gun fight with the two suspects. Q. Again, can you describe for us exactly what you see happening at that point in time? A. I could see two men. I could not distinguish who was who. I could see muzzle flashes. As well, I saw a lighter being lit and a wick being -- what looked like a wick burning.

Q. And when you saw that wick burning, did you see something happen with that item? A. I saw -- I didn't see who threw it, but it was thrown towards myself and Sergeant MacLellan.

Q. What happened to that item? A. It landed in the middle of Laurel Street and exploded. Q. When it exploded, what did you do? A. At that point I ran back into -- to get more cover behind the houses. Q. At the time that you are seeing these muzzle flashes and this gunfire, are both of the suspects behind that black SUV? A. Yes, sir. Q. But you can't tell who is shooting? A. No. No.

Q. And you don't know who threw that first pipe bomb? A. I do not. Q. And then what happened when you went around to your vehicle? A. Again, it was a long gun battle, approximately eight to nine minutes. They had thrown, I believe, three more -- four more bombs -- or three more pipe-bomb types. I could see those being lit and being thrown at us as well as taking gunfire.

Q. Did all of those explode? A. No. Q. Do you recall how many exploded? A. I believe two exploded. Q. Two more? A. Two more were exploded, yes. Q. Now, when you said they were being thrown at you, could you tell who was throwing them? A. No, sir. I could not. Q. What happened after that? A. Then as we were still in their yard taking gunfire, of course, I could see -- I didn't see who threw it. I saw it coming through the air, but I saw a larger-type bomb being thrown at us.

Q. When you say you saw a larger-type bomb, what -- can you describe what you saw? A. It was a cylinder, almost like a big cooking pot, a big pan. Q. What exactly did you see? Did you see it in the air? Did you see it being thrown? What did you see? A. I could not see it being thrown. I saw it coming through the air at that time. Q. At that point in time, where were the two suspects? A. They were still behind the front of the Mercedes.

...Q. What did you do after that? They were still behind the black Mercedes. Q. During these eight or nine minutes that you were engaged in this earlier gunfire..., what did you see the suspects doing? A. I could see them ducking down underneath -- behind the Mercedes.

That's about all I could see. They were coming in and out of cover. Q. Could you estimate about how many rounds were fired in the direction of either you or Sergeant MacLellan?

A. For eight minutes it felt like it was hundreds. ...

[The Capture of "Tamerlan"]Q. As Sergeant Pugliese approached on the side and you were shooting from straight-on, what happened? A. At that point Tamerlan had come up from cover, and I believe he was in the driveway of one of the residences there. And he was exchanging gunfire with Sergeant Pugliese, at which point I came out from cover, I started walking down the street.

I had a good visual on him, so I got down on one knee and I started -- attempting to strike the suspect. Q. By shooting him?

A. Yes. Q. Okay. Why did you abandon your more-secure position? A. I believe I had a good shot on him that I could end the threat. Q. Okay. Do you know what the other suspect was doing at that point in time? A. I could not see. Q. You came out, Sergeant Pugliese is engaging him in gunfire, and you're shooting at Tamerlan Tsarnaev? A. Correct. ...

Tamerlan started running towards this officer, towards me.

Q. Towards you? A. Yes. Q. Okay. As he started to run towards you, what did you do? A. At that point I saw Sergeant Pugliese chasing him, so I holstered, I started running down the street, and that's when Sergeant Pugliese tackled him from behind.

Q. When the defendant's brother started running at you, how far was he from you? A. Probably about 30 yards. Q. At the time that he was tackled, how far were the two of you apart?

A. From when he was tackled, about ten yards. Q. When he was tackled by Sergeant Pugliese, what did you do? A. Sergeant MacLellan had come from where he was located, and we all, the three of us, tried to subdue Tsarnaev -- or Tamerlan. Sorry. Q. When you say you tried to subdue him, how did you try to do that? A. He was wrestling with us and we were trying to gain control of him so we could get handcuffs on him. Q. Were you able to do that? A. No, not at that time. Q. Why not? A. He was a big kid. He was wrestling with us. We just weren't able to control him at that time. Q. At some point did you hear a car rev up? A. Yes, sir. Q. What happened?

A. At that point we were wrestling with Tamerlan, and all of a sudden I could hear an engine revving and, you know, come closer to us. I screamed to the guys, I said, "Get off. Get off. He's coming back towards us." Q. When you said "he's coming back towards us," what was coming back towards you? A. The black Mercedes was aiming right at us. ... Q. What did you do? A. I pulled my gun out and I attempted to shoot the operator of the vehicle. Q. Were you successful? A. I don't know if I hit him but I know I hit the windshield. Q. Did the car stop? A. No.

Q. What happened? A. The next thing that happened was myself, Sergeant MacLellan and Sergeant Pugliese, we all kind of dispersed, and Sergeant Pugliese attempted to pull Tamerlan off the road, or off -- out of the way of the vehicle. Q. Was he successful in doing that? A. Negative.

Q. What happened? A. He was ran over by the Mercedes. I remember being -- I was very close, maybe seven to ten yards away. I saw Tamerlan get run over, get stuck in the rear wheel well. He then kept going and ran over his brother. Q. Do you know who was operating the Mercedes at that point? A. It was Dzhokhar. Q. And for the record, do you see him in court today? A. Yes. Q. Can you identify him? A. Him (indicating). -- end of Reynolds excerpt Punishment for Silence As stated earlier, Chapter 38 Section 3, states the Massachusetts law on inquests. The law even makes it an offense to fail to report:

A physician, police officer, hospital administrator, licensed nurse ...or licensed funeral director, who, having knowledge of such an unreported death, fails to notify the office of the chief medical examiner of such death shall be punished by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars. Failure will also be reported to the appropriate board of registration, where applicable.

Dr Hull, I am an outsider. I had no part to play in the events of April, 2013 and I am not a relative of the deceased. I am what we call in Australia, a stickybeaker: I nose around. Yet as a US citizen I am entitled to know if the law is being followed.

The death of Tamerlan was not adjudicated by any judge or jury. It was handled in a courtroom only as incidental to the charges laid against the younger brother, Dzhokhar. As far as I can tell, the police report of a Laurel St shootout has gone unexamined. Yet it is highly problematical – and may well involve the death of an as-yet-identified person.

What Can Be Done

I have met the sergeant who was in charge of the area that night, John MacLellan. He strikes me as honest. Would you please question him as to the basis for his knowledge that the man he and Officer Reynolds and Sgt Pugliese engaged with on Laurel St, is Tamerlan?

Please do any and all other things that you can do in fulfillment of your obligations. One of the jobs you mentioned is to give closure to families. There are members of the Tsarnaev family who do not have closure about this. Quite possibly they consider it dangerous to write to you. I do not consider it the least bit dangerous. The law protects me, and you, very clearly in this matter.

Thank you, Dr Mindy Hull.

Yours sincerely, Mary Maxwell

28. Conspiracy Theory

Jeff Campbell of the MBTA Transit Police and team tells Anderson Cooper on CNN:

“I did see a throat injury. To me it looked more like a knife wound.”

I’ve tried to avoid contaminating my book with so-called conspiracy theory. Granted, Chapter 1 pinned the Marathon bombing on the FBI and tried to prove it by demonstrating the falseness of the court case. But I don’t like woo-woo stuff.

Pictured above is a SWAT man saying Jahar was wounded by a knife after leaving the boat. There is a conspiracy theory that an FBI man, Christopher Lorek, intervened to save Jahar’s life and then himself was murdered in a “training exercise” in which he and Stephen Shaw fell from a helicopter on May 17, 2013. The fact of the fall from the helicopter was officially announced. But was Lorek, as claimed, near Jahar at the boatside on April 19, 2013? I don’t know. But Jahar’s neck wound is documented.

David Lindorf Asks Around regarding Craft International

There are claims that a mercenary company, Craft International, were major players on Marathon Day. You can see many videos on Youtube that show several men in Craft uniform (khaki pants, black baseball cap with logo) standing around the Finish Line after the bombing. A journalist, David Lindorf, made a dozen phone calls trying to find out who hired Craft. I abridge his report here. The bolding is mine:

“I first contacted Jack Fleming, a public affairs person with the Boston Athletic Assn., sponsor of the marathon. Fleming advised me that ‘If you want to ask about that you should contact the Massachusetts Executive Office of Public Safety.’

“I called that agency and spoke with the public information office, Terrell. He said, ‘You should call the City of Boston Police Department. They released a security plan to some media organizations.’ Indeed they had released that plan to the Boston Globe [which then reported] that the Police had deployed ‘air patrols, K9 units, and more than 1,000 uniformed officers and soldiers along the 26-mile course and the finish line,’ but it made no mention of the private contracting of soldiers-for-hire.

“I called the Boston Police to ask if they had hired the Craft International personnel who were observed just before and after the bombing, and was told ‘Anything having to do with the investigation of the bombing would have to be referred to the FBI Boston Division office.’

“So I called the FBI, and got a public affairs person Amanda Cox. Her initial response to my question was, ‘I do not have any information on that.’ She then put down the phone, and I could hear her turn to a supervisor and ask, her voice muffled, ‘This guy’s asking about the Craft Security Consultants -- who hired them....’ Cox later returned and said ‘I’d refer you to the company on any information about who hired them.’

“My next step was to call Craft International via a listing published in a directory in Bloomberg Businessweek. A woman answered the phone brightly with the company’s name. However, when I identified myself as wondering who had hired personnel from the firm to work at the Boston Marathon, she said she couldn’t help me and hung up.

“I also called the US Department of Homeland Security, but a woman named Angela said the DHS media office was ‘only taking inquiries sent in by email.’” -- End of Lindorf’s report

Note: Lindorf is also interested in the main issue of the color of the backpack. In court we saw an FBI-tendered item that is supposed to be the bomb-containing backpack. It does not look like Tamerlan's or Jahar's and does look exactly like Craft's.

The Victims

Kenneth Feinberg, who administered Congress's payments to victim of 9-11, also handed out the money from a private fund to Boston victims. He told Business Insider that the amputees got a million dollars each; relatives of the deceased got two million.

I will print, below, four one-page items relevant to judging the validity of the Marathon victims.

The first dates back to 1962, and is known as the Northwoods Memo. It shows how the Pentagon Chiefs were proposing to pull off a fake plane crash – complete with fake funerals. The plan was to blame it on Cuba. President Kennedy nixed it.

The second is It is a piece of bureaucratese that I was able to find on the Homeland Security website. It asks for volunteers to play the role of wounded victims and bereaved relatives. The proclaimed justification is that this helps train soldiers.

The third item is written by Cesar Baruja, MD (I abridged it). It is a letter he sent to President Trump stating his belief that Jeff Bauman was already an amputee before the Marathon.

The fourth page is a media report of what two doctors said at Jahar's trial about the autopsies of two of the three fatalities of that day: Lingzi Lu and Krystle Campbell. But are they honest?

Allow me to mention that in the Pat Tillman case (a football star who was shot by friendly fire at such close range that he had bullets in mid-forehead), the doctor who did the autopsy refused to sign, very likely because it contained lies.

That doctor is my hero.

For: the Secretary of Defense ... Joint Chiefs of Staff are to indicate brief description of pretexts, which they consider, would provide justification for US military intervention in Cuba.... World opinion, and the United States forum should be favorably affected by developing the international image of the Cuban government as rash and irresponsible, and as an alarming and unpredictable threat to the peace of the West...

[We can]: Sabotage ship in harbor; large fires, naphthalene. Conduct funerals for mock victims... Commence large-scale ... military operations.... A "Remember the Maine" incident could be arranged in several forms... We could develop a Communist Cuban terror campaign in Miami area, and even in Washington... We could sink a boatload of Cubans en route to Florida (real or simulated).

We could foster attempts on lives of Cuban refugees in the United States even to the extent of wounding in instances to be widely publicized... C-46 type aircraft could make cane-burning raids at night. Soviet Bloc incendiaries could be found... Hijacking attempts against civil air and surface craft should appear to continue as harassing measures condoned by the government of Cuba.

It is possible to create an incident, which will demonstrate convincingly that a Cuban aircraft has attacked and shot down a chartered civil airliner en route from US to Jamaica.

An aircraft at Eglin AFB would be painted and numbered as an exact duplicate for a civil registered aircraft belonging to a CIA proprietary organization. [It] would be loaded with the selected passengers, all boarded under carefully prepared aliases. The actual registered aircraft would be converted to a drone. At precisely the time that the aircraft was presumably shot down, a submarine or small surface would disburse F-101 parts, parachute, etc.

Homeland Security Department Waiver Form 68

FEMA Homeland Security Emergency Exercise. April 30 2013

1. The day will be long and tiring. You need to be at the site by [time], and you will probably not finish until after [time]. If you have any health concerns or medical conditions, please tell [Actor POC] before the start of the exercise. Health or medical concerns will not necessarily disqualify you from participating.

2. If you are not age 18 and are not in the military, parental permission is required to participate.

5. Be on time! Please do not arrive late. It is difficult to begin the exercise if actors are not in place. Volunteers transported to hospitals will be given a snack before being returned to the exercise site.

6. Wear layers of old clothes, clothes that can be removed and a bathing suit underneath. Wear clothes that you do not mind getting wet, dirty, stained, or torn. Jewelry will be removed during the decontamination process, bagged, and given to you to carry through the decontamination line.

7. There will be no place to keep personal belongings. Bring your driver's license, keys, and a sense of humor. Do not bring cameras, jewelry, items you don't want to get wet, large sums of money, or uninvited friends or volunteers.

8. Don't overact. When you arrive at the exercise site, you will be assigned an injury or role and will be briefed about your roles and what will happen during the exercise.

If you are assigned the role of a psychologically distressed person, please act upset, not out of control.

9. If you get hurt or have a real problem, say "This is a real emergency" to tell exercise staff you are not just acting.

On behalf of [Agency/Jurisdiction] and all of the participants in the exercise, thank you for volunteering. Our community will be better prepared to face challenges in future. [Emphasis added]

Dear President Trump,

August 18, 2017

I am writing to ask you for a reinvestigation of the Marathon Bombing that occurred on April 15, 2013. I believe Dzhokhar Tsarnaev is innocent and well-deserving of a pardon ...

There is a video showing that Tamerlan Tsarnaev was alive in custody at first, according to an eyewitness. And how could Dzhokhar, severely wounded in the boat, have written a "confession" with such neatness on the glazed boat wall?

In regards to some of the medical anomalies ... The blood did not appear from genuine victims. It appeared on account of the crisis actors who poured fake blood around the crime scene. Ben Nye Moulage kits or the similar appear to have been used.

Now, let's consider Jeff Bauman (if that even is his real name). I concur with Dr. Loraine Day that nobody with an injury that "severe," as purported by the mainstream media, would ever be wheeled in a wheelchair because such a patient would have experienced too much blood loss.

I agree with the late Stanley Monteith MD, that Jeff Bauman should have been in "profound shock" in light of the severity of his purported injuries as described by the mainstream media. Tourniquets were not applied to both legs appropriately to clamp off the blood supply. Bauman "healed" too quickly after his "injuries". Just 19 days later, he was at a Bruins hockey game.

Thanking you for your anticipated careful considerations into this matter, I am: Respectfully,
Cesar Baruja, MD, US citizen

Jurors Heard Doctors re Deaths. March 31 2015. Per CNN:

Katherine Lindstrom who performed Lingzi Lu's autopsy, said she found two shards of metal in Lu's legs, and a third, larger piece that slashed into her leather purse. Metal and other debris, including pellets and small nails, were embedded in Lu's body....

The femoral artery and vein were severed, causing her to bleed to death on the sidewalk "relatively quickly, from seconds to minutes." A friend, Danling Zhou, told jurors she tried to calm Lu although she was seriously injured herself...

"I saw she's yelling. I can't hear, I can only see she's yelling.... It's hard to look at because everybody's injured. I look at her leg, and I think it's better than the man in front of me because he doesn't have a leg anymore. I think she is fine."

Jennifer Hammers, who performed the autopsy on Krystle Campbell, said the death was a homicide caused by blast injuries to the legs and torso. She said it probably took less than a minute for Campbell to bleed to death on the sidewalk. Several jurors cried and others appeared upset on Thursday as they were shown graphic photos of Campbell, who was standing in front of Marathon Sports on Boylston Street near the finish line when the bomb placed by Tamerlan Tsarnaev exploded.

Hammers explained how the homemade bombs maim and kill. The initial injuries came as a result of a shock wave from the blast: Campbell's tongue was bruised from being forced against her teeth, the femur of her left leg snapped and the bones in her left foot were crushed.

"The seams of her blue jeans were pressed into her body with such force, they caused bruising," Hammers said. The top of her right arm was burned. She had "big, gaping holes in her legs," Hammers said. The gashes were as large as 10 inches. A pellet the size of a BB was embedded in her ear, and metal fragments were found in wounds that penetrated her muscles. "Miss Campbell passed away because she lost a significant amount of blood in a short period of time," Hammers said.

29. Love and Amnesties

Abu Ben Adhem, may his tribe increase, awoke one night from a deep dream of peace, and saw within the moonlight in his room, an angel writing in a book of gold. Exceeding peace had made Ben Adhem bold and to the presence in the room he said "What writest thou?" "I write the names of those who love the Lord." "And is mine one?" said Abu. "Nay, not so." "Then write me as one who loves his fellow men."

I have two friends in distant parts of the world who keep telling me "Love is the answer." They feel that being good to one's fellow man is just as normal – or more normal – than being cruel.

I agree that altruism is among our species' instincts. It's been shown that the practice of kindness releases opioids in the brain. Per Darwin, altruism is adaptive. There must be a need for it – as everyone with enlightened self-interest realizes!

We also have tons of selfishness, and are at every moment calculating how to get what we want, usually subconsciously. Self-ishness is a good thing; it makes us independent. If we couldn't look after ourselves, we'd hand it over to a boss. Yuck.

I hate it when one side says humans are innately good and the other side says humans are innately bad as if the two were mutually exclusive. In fact such exclusivist thought is pernicious. The lovey-dovey types fail to contemplate what is really going on; they won't see the evil so they can't help us fix it. Meanwhile, the "no hope for humanity" crowd is just as useless.

So let's ask how to bring the good part to the fore. I advise the reader: Don't go by me! I lean too heavily on the idea of punishment – as was seen in Chapters 1 and 22. It's not really that I get off on punishment. It's more that I find it unnerving to see so many sins going untagged as sins. A few truth-commission sessions could restore the balance on that!

In this chapter, I exhort: don't throw away all that is available in the human heart. Nailing the baddies is a minor task. Finding ways to combine the goodwill of society, and get on with the human project – whatever that may be – is more important.

Amnesties Galore

To kickstart that, I recommend bestowing as much amnesty as possible on those who have gone astray. It would help if we offer forgiveness and warmth to them and try to win them over. (Naturally that has strategic merit, too. The weirdos are well equipped to harm us. We want them to quit their further plans.)

If we offered them a better life – one they've never even been aware of as an option – we would be exercising our own rather dormant love capacity. Every person has it in him to reach out to others with kindness.

For one thing, the way we're wired, each individual can imagine himself in the shoes of any other person. Terence, in first century Rome, said: Homo sum, humani nihil a me alienum puto: "I am human, therefore nothing human is alien to me."

Even the worst that our torturers have done, you could almost certainly develop a taste for doing. Or – and this may be what happened to them – you could be hypnotized into doing it.

The sinners may even have been taught that wrong is right! There seems to be a lot of that going around. Have you heard of the "elitist" Aleister Crowley in England whose sole moral guide was the phrase "Do what thou wilt is the whole of the law"? You really can't beat that for a full sweep-out of the virtues.

Right now my money is on amnesty, as I don't see any other way out of the mess we're in. Take the case of the Tsarnaev trial -- people of high and low rank have got invested in the status quo.

An Amnesty Is Not a Pardon

Your library may have offered an “amnesty” for folks harboring overdue books. “Return the books by June 5, we won’t charge a fine.” The motive is that the library needs the book more than it needs to enforce the law. I say we need our wayward government people back more than we need to punish them.

Under an amnesty scheme no one gets charged with a crime. In 1868 President Johnson forgave all the rebels of the civil war, i.e., the Confederates. (I think he did it because if cases went to trial it may have emerged that secession was not treasonous.)

On January 21, 1977, Jimmy Carter, on being inaugurated president, granted a pardon by proclamation to “all persons who may have committed any offense between August 4, 1964 and March 28, 1973 in violation of the Military Selective Service Act” -- that is, draft evaders of the Vietnam War. I think that was an amnesty, not a pardon, as they had never been charged. I note that in the Massachusetts state constitution, the governor cannot pardon someone who has not been tried.

Let’s say the governor today, wanting to heal the state after 5 years of Marathon disease, offered an amnesty to Carmen Ortiz and Dun Meng (if Meng had perjured). I think it would require an Act by The General Court (as the Massachusetts legislature is called). You can see also that there would be some nice turf war. Since the Tsarnaev trial was a federal one, how dare the state say the felons could go free? I think the state should try it, and grab back some power that was wrongly appropriated by the feds!

I note that in his senate confirmation hearing, in January 2019, Attorney General nominee William Barr said that some states have now legalized cannabis, although federal law says otherwise. Barr said he would respect the states’ arrangements.

Similarly he should respect the fact that the people of Massachusetts rejected the death penalty, by legislation, in that state. Therefore this should mean that the people of that state do not allow one of their own, Jahar Tsarnaev, to be executed.

30. What's a Bostonian To Do Now?

Samuel Adams and Faneuil Hall "Cradle of Liberty"

Dorchester, presente. Southie, presente. Brookline, presente. Malden, presente. Roxbury, presente. Meffia, presente. Norwood, presente. Natick, presente. Marblehead, presente. Waltham, presente, Hyannis, presente. Quincy, presente. -- Etc. You know who you are!

Thank you for reading this book. Or if you came here to this concluding chapter to begin with, welcome aboard.

Chapter 3 was about fear. Chapter 9 said please go visit prisoners. Chapter 11 named martial law as a likely motive for Marathon bombing. Chapter 16 asked the Governor to defend the state. Chapter 20 zoomed in on what used to be Boston's proud newspaper. Chapter 21 counselled citizen's arrest and self-defense. Chapter 22 recommended we disbar lawyers and impeach judges. Chapter 24 thanked God for libraries. Chapter 29 proposed that we consider amnesties on a broad scale today.

Most chapters showed the Tsarnaev trial for the mockery that it was. It cannot be allowed to stand. So far, appeal attorneys are saying the trial should not have been held in Boston. I find that insulting. Bostonians are well-equipped to handle justice.

Have you formulated any plans as to how you will tackle the issue of the 2013 Marathon bombing? Tales of other serious incidents were sadly allowed to pass into history uncorrected.

What Are the Odds against Us?

What are the odds of Jahar winning his appeal? At the moment they are nil, since the Defense Team is still not acknowledging any aspect of the fakery of the case. Instead they are bringing up the old chestnut of Jahar not being given his Miranda right to silence in the hospital. As if it mattered! Jahar did not spill any beans in hospital -- there were none to spill.

So in looking for ways to get an acquittal or re-trial we are dependent on the citizenry "seeing the light." It would especially help if a prominent person would speak out about the case.

I have entitled this section "What are the odds against us?" as I think there is no point operating on silly wishful thinking. The reality (as far as I can estimate, personally) is that the odds are tremendous because the folks who arrange such things as a bombing of a Marathon are unscrupulous and very well-armed.

Let me call that Problemo Uno -- there is an array of powerful humans who hurt us (their power owing largely to their acting in concert, and acting in complete secrecy until recently).

Problemo Dos is the ubiquitous mainstream media such as CNN and the Murdoch press that fills us up with misinformation. There is also a Tavistocian control of science, education, and entertainment. You think science is a bulwark of truth against all that? No! They've got science controlled too. So, what leaders want us to believe, we end up believing. And it is hard to get people to judge newspapers such as The Globe as an ordinary selfish business. They have developed a "community spirit" motif and also pretend to stand for ideals.

Problemo Tres is quite a different matter. It's people's unwillingness to have the media story corrected. You could almost say that people are so desperate to avoid contemplating the scary fact of Problemo Uno -- the existence of bad forces -- that they would beg the media, if necessary, to make up a fantasy world. If you are reading this book you are an oddity!

Don't Be Shy – Reclaim Your City

Are you waiting to see what happens? No, don't wait. This is a crisis. To quote Paul Craig Roberts again: "Any US citizen that believes the falsified case of the Boston Marathon bombing is a dangerous and direct threat to American civil liberty and to the lives of millions of people on planet Earth."

We're all in this together. Trust me. It's a normal part of life to set things right. Jefferson said of the New England townships in 1816: "There was not an individual... whose body was not thrown with all its momentum into action." Our bodies haven't changed, have they?

Lookie here, the Marathon fiasco can be key -- we can come out of this as winners. I ask anyone who contributed to the fiasco, and even under duress or ignorance, to come forward now and confess. Come on, it won't kill you. Even if you were a small player – a news reporter? – who contributed to the false narrative, we need to hear from you. You could be the person who lifts this curse from us. Thank you!

And here's a note for conspiracy theorists. You're accustomed to being disbelieved, right? You have heard that satanic cults wield a lot of power, and figure there's no hope of persuading anyone of it. Ah, but look at Australia! They had a Royal Commission into child sexual abuse that lasted five years and brought forward 17,000 victims. The Prime apologized to victims of abuse and ritual (i.e., satanic) abuse.

And here's excellent validation for conspiracy theorists: Karl Rove actually said to journalist Ron Suskind in 2004:

"We're an empire now, and when we act, we create our own reality. And while you're studying that reality ... we'll act again, creating other new realities, which you can study too, and that's how things will sort out. We're history's actors ... and you, all of you, will be left to just study what we do." [Emphasis added]

Now for the bad news. There is some risk involved in speaking out. Whistleblowers, journalists, and “turncoat” politicians (think about it: turncoat!) do get hurt. But that is not a reason to give up in advance. The Powers That Be have wide scope to do harm but they can’t harm everybody!

This Book Is Your Book

I think you would do well to use my book, The Soul of Boston, as a launching pad for your local activity. It’s free online so you could send people the link. Or buy them a copy and rub their nose in it. You can lecture from it all you like, or quote it (with or without attribution) in Comments to news articles. You can get a police permit to hold a small rally anywhere. Why not invite Boston’s new Congressperson, Ayanna Pressley?

Recall the Laundry List of exculpatory evidence on page 161. And the list of 20 points made by the prosecutor in Chapter 2, which I demolished and you can demolish, easy peasy. Or my list of Judge O’Toole’s impeachable sins in Chapter 22. Don’t hesitate to use logic, e.g., “Desperadoes who have a gun don’t go to MIT to heist another gun off a cop. Nor do they carjack a car and its driver when they already have a car.”

A sarcastic visual wrap-up of the Prosecution’s evidence appears on the opposite page. Maybe you could print it as a tee shirt or laminate it to carry on a sign! Make a stink that a nice boy from Cambridge is not allowed to hear that people support his innocence.

The point is: you are needed. It was a terrible thing that the Bozos did to Boston – and the nation – and we should now overcome it. The sooner the better. Do not expect that it will get corrected without you. Whatever your station in life (Ashmont? Braintree?) there’s a role you can play. Call me if you want help, but I won’t do it for you. Please do it now.

Note: There’s much of interest still to come, in the Appendices and Documents. Some sad, some happy. Yay!

Appendix A. My Memory of the Manhunt, by “The Zoologist.” GumshoeNews.com. January 4, 2018.

The Marathon event has burdened my life. I became a party to it – well, not a participant but a close-up spectator – simply because I live near the action. On the day of the Marathon race, April 15, 2013, I wasn’t ready to doubt what I heard on radio or TV, but when Thursday the 18th rolled around, things were beginning to look pretty dubious.

And, like everyone else in the Greater Boston area, I received a robo call from the government telling me to stay home on Friday. That call arrived at 6am on Friday, the day of the manhunt for Dzokhar (“Jahar”) Tsarnaev.

Which would be worse, I now wonder -- if the entire official story were true, or if it were false? I suspect the latter. That’s because I believe it probably is a false story -- and I feel nervous and discouraged about it. It’s one thing for a criminal to be a criminal. It’s another thing for your persons of authority to be criminals.

New Reports

For those of us sitting at home, the network TV program was interrupted around 11.40pm on Thursday, April 18th. Local news announced an armed robbery in Cambridge and the shooting of a security guard at MIT. Later we heard he died.

We then heard of a theft of an SUV, a mad chase to Watertown, and the use of guns and explosive devices. But – and this now seems odd – at no time did they say that they were chasing the bombing suspects that had been shown to us at 5pm.

As I recall it, the TV coverage showed one guy spread eagle on his tummy, dressed, alive, looking up and looking around. He looked scared, and he did seem to resemble Suspect #1. At 2am I turned off the TV and went to sleep. When the robocall woke me up on Friday at 6am, I turned TV on again. There was a press conference from Beth Israel, with someone, possibly a chief of staff, reporting that Suspect #1 was brought to ER that morning, almost DOA. They tried revival for 15 minutes, but no response. I've now learned the name of #1 – Tamerlan Tsarnaev, who died at age 26.

By my count, it was 5 hours between seeing that suspect on the ground and hearing that he had showed up at Beth Israel, DOA.

Two different reasons for his death were circulating: 1) He died in the crossfire during the escape to Watertown. 2) He died when his brother ran over him, while trying to flee in the SUV, dragging his body for a while before bolting from the SUV and disappearing into the night.

I heard Chief of Watertown police give the story to Wolf Blitzer. From this point, stories were wildly spinning in the Mainstream Media and in the giddy population. I decided to create this journal “in real time” to catalog anything that deviates from what seems to be the official story. Here are early comments I jotted down:

* No details have been provided on the circumstances surrounding death of MIT security guard — other than that he was sitting in his car. “Coincidentally”, he is a friend of the officer who was shot in Watertown, now recovering. A photo is circulating of them graduating from police academy together. Dzhokhar is now reported with a wound in his neck, cannot talk, the Mayor said he may never talk again. Oh? How convenient. Will he also lose the ability to write?

The mother said that Tamerlan called her this week, said the FBI contacted HIM, saying he was a suspect in the bombing. [Wow!] FBI denies this of course. The mother said FBI has been contacting them repeatedly for years. Could the FBI have told them to be on the scene because they were needed to help with a possible hit? The driver of the stolen SUV has not surfaced, and he was not killed, on this “one last killing spree” (to quote Chris Wallace).

My Journal for the period April 23-25. (As written on the day or as recollected a day or two later): I heard on WRKO morning radio, a bulletin asking if anyone witnessed the shooting of MIT security guard, Sean Collier. The bulletin provided location and a time window. Remember, Collier's death has already been attributed to the Tsarnaev brothers, as the kick-off event of their Thursday night violence spree.

My read: they have nothing to link Collier's shooting to the brothers, OR, they want to make sure no one has any conflicting information that will dispute the "official and original story". You can really stir up a crowd by saying "cop killers are on the loose", and that was exactly the mood in Boston/Cambridge/Watertown last Thurs-Fri. The college school records of Dzhokhar were reported, with him failing a majority of courses, including two in chemistry. His college mates regarded him as a party guy, pot head, and dealer.

The video that was released last Thursday at 5pm shows Dzhokhar with a GREY backpack, not black, as required to match the detonated backpacks. Someone reported that a photo exists of him leaving the scene with this backpack. (I have not seen it.) The photo of him placing the backpack near a victim has not been circulated, but is supposedly the key evidence implicating him in the bombing.

Is this Jabar? No. It's National Geographic's deceptive video of Jabar on Boylston St -- a "re-enactment," filmed in Phoenix Arizona, starring Alexander Karaway!

Otherwise, everything is still hearsay or circumstantial. Yesterday it was reported that the brothers were on food stamps, section 8, scholarships, etc. Today Governor Deval Patrick has blocked release of any more information about public support “for privacy reasons”. But it begs the question, how did they buy all the hardware, and trips to Russia....

A confession has been reported from Dzhokhar, but there have been no photographs or evidence of his communication. Supposedly he cannot speak. No writing samples have been shown. Message seems entirely controlled by FBI.

Yesterday it was reported that a judge showed up, unannounced, to “Miranda-ize Dzhokhar”. Judge was sent by Eric Holder. Today Dzhokhar is being transferred from Beth Israel to Fort Devens, because “the bombing victims are uncomfortable with his presence in the hospital”.

Both brothers are being lynched in the talk show/web media, called things like “speedbump” and “flashbang”, and worse. Conflicting stories on Tamerlan’s death remain circulating. The official one seems to be he died “in crossfire”. But I heard every word of Wolf Blitzer’s interview with the Chief of Watertown Police [Ed Deveau] who said he was run over by his brother, who dragged him for 40 yards.

A woman called talk radio, claimed she was on the scene, and saw a police car run over Tamerlan. The self-congratulatory police press conferences continue.

Comment. I have this to say in regard to the reactions of one’s friends, neighbors, and possibly even one’s family: It is disheartening to feel isolated and be called a conspiracy theorist or some other term of disparagement.

Note: I did not continue to keep the journal after this.

Appendix B. Boston Area Law Schools' Mission Statements,
by Mary W Maxwell. GumshoeNews.com. November 22, 2016.

Suffolk, in the heart of Downtown

Boston College, in Newton

One may wonder where the well-paid law professors stand on the issue of the Tsarnaev trial. If you have a son or daughter looking for a law school, I suggest you write to some of these prestigious persons and see how they feel about the Marathon travesty.

There are 56 professors at Boston College, a Catholic law school of and 77 at Suffolk. All phone numbers are listed on their websites. If you get in touch with some of these professors, in regard to Jahar's conviction, please let me know. They have special expertise in, say, the rule about destroying evidence, or the ethics of pressuring an accused's family. They may offer guidance as to how jurors evaluate a witness who changes his story serially.

There are whole books written about those topics. It could well be that alumni of BC and Suffolk, including many judges, may want to come forward with their position on the Tsarnaev "trial." Below you will find the mission statement for each of the two schools. A faculty member today could re-read the mission statement and see of there is any fit.

I will now list the mission statement of law schools n Massachusetts. I'll give the Catholics first billing as I personally expect more from a religion-based academy. (We all have our little prejudices.)

Boston College Law School Mission Statement

We search for opportunities to instill in our students the moral and ethical application of law. Our commitment is to foster new insights through research, to impart knowledge and to critically evaluate the role of legal institutions.

Suffolk University Law School Mission Statement

Suffolk University is a talent catalyst that recognizes and develops student potential. Leveraging our location in the heart of Boston, our faculty, staff, and alumni work together to provide a student-centered experience. This diverse community builds on its dedication and excellence in education and scholarship to empower graduates to be successful locally, regionally, and globally.

Note: the above mission statements can't hold a candle to what Northeastern Law School promises on its website:

“Our mission — to fuse theory and practice with ethical and social justice ideals... [We help] reflect critically upon law and its impact on individuals, enterprises, and communities. We value intellectual inquiry, critical thinking, vigorous exchange and testing of ideas.

We are devoted to the pursuit of social justice. We believe we have an obligation to advocate for individuals and groups who are underrepresented, less powerful or less economically secure domestically and abroad.”

I show mission statements below for Boston University, New England Law School, and Massachusetts School of Law. I did not find a mission statement for Harvard Law but I would like to offer this one for their use:

“No man can serve two masters. For either he will hate the one, and love the other: or he will sustain the one, and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon.” -- Matthew 6:24

Mission of Boston University School of Law

Our mission is to be a leader in the teaching and study of law. We aim to prepare students for the ethical practice of law around the globe at the highest levels of quality and integrity and to serve the public interest.... In our scholarship, our goal is to provide the profession, the academy and the general public with ideas, perspectives, and analyses that enrich a comprehensive understanding of the law, adapted to the needs of a changing world.

Massachusetts School of Law Mission Statement

Our mission is to provide an academically rigorous affordable legal education emphasizing ethics, advocacy, leadership, and professional skills. MSLAW provides an education to tomorrow's leaders in law, who seek to contribute to their communities. Lawyers have substantial influence in our society.

Massachusetts School of Law brings together a diverse group of scholars, judges, expert practitioners and others to provide students from diverse backgrounds a rigorous, professionally advantageous, affordable legal education so that they can improve their lives and better serve their communities.

Mission Statement of New England Law School

[We are dedicated to]: (1) preparing students to be successful lawyers and leaders in the public and private sectors through integrated practical, theoretical, and ethical education of the highest caliber; and (2) contributing to the improvement of American, foreign, and international legal systems through participation in the debate over the fairness and efficacy of those systems, research and publication, public service, and other work that furthers the interests of justice.

Well, there ya go, law students. Plenty for you to do even now while you are still pre-professional. And it's fun, fun, fun!

Appendix C. Shakespeare Quoted at Jahar’s Sentencing, by Cheryl Dean. GumshoeNews.com. February 3, 2016.

[A bawling out from north of the border –MM]

To the Judge: Your meeting with jurors is grounds for a mistrial.... You not only did a grievous injustice to Dzhokhar Tsarnaev, you also harmed so many ordinary people. People who had never had any dealings with a court of law. People who were keen to follow the trial, but who soon found out that what was being called justice in this case, did not in any way resemble the justice system they used to know.

It was illegal for you to have any ex parte communications with the jurors. The First Circuit court held in 1981 in United States v Flaherty, that “ex parte communications between the judge and jury create a presumption of prejudice and violate both Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure 43(a) and the sixth amendment.”

This is what you illegally said to them:

“You and I are in this together. We’re on the same side here. Our side is justice. Our job is to be as fair and impartial as we possibly can, and I know you all can do it because I have seen jurors over the years do exactly this. So that’s really all I have to say except, finally the Supreme Court of the United States has a very interesting tradition. Before they go out on the bench to hear argument and before they conference a case, they all shake hands with each other, and I thought we’d do that because we’re now teammates. I’m going to go around and you can do it. (The judge shakes hands with the jurors.) We’ll see you bright and early and start our project.” [Emphasis added]

How could you refer to yourself and the jurors as being on a team. Surely you, “the learned judge,” know that a jury is not a “team”! The judge and jurors have distinctly different roles and are certainly not a “team.” The judge and jury are not “teammates,” are not “in this together,” and are not starting a “project.” That is, unless you consider trying to procure a death sentence for a 21-year-old a “project.” You shock me!

But I was far more shocked by the words you uttered at the sentencing phase of this case. June 24, 2015 was sentencing day for Dzhokhar Tsarnaev. You and your “teammates” could now bask in the death-sentence result of your “project.” Your team had won. This is what you, the judge, said to the jurors on that seemingly happy and proud occasion for you:

“I take this occasion again to thank the now-former jurors for their exceptional service.... Their careful verdict satisfies me that they did what they were asked. Theirs was not the only possible verdict, but is certainly a rational one on the evidence.”

You call their decision a rational one? based on “evidence”? What evidence? A few grainy, tampered-with videos that don’t identify any cop-killers, and show no one dropping a black backpack, the lack of any fingerprints of the defendant on the bombs or anything else, the lack of “radicalization” in any text or tweet Jahar ever wrote? That is a hollow meaningless remark, Mr. O’Toole (I can’t bring myself to say “Judge.” Pardon me, I am over-the-top with anger.)

This is what you had to say to Dzhokhar:

So it will be for you, Judge O’Toole, not for an innocent young man. The corruption that you perpetrated at this sham trial in your quest to have a 21-year-old killed, that is what will live long after you. That will be your legacy. You said to Dzhokhar:

“Whenever your name is mentioned, what will be remembered is the evil you have done. No one will remember that your teachers were fond of you. No one will mention that your friends found you funny and fun to be with. No one will say you were a talented athlete or that you displayed compassion in being a Best Buddy or that you showed more respect to your women friends than your male peers did.”

I don't know whom you think you are speaking for here. Don't ever think that you are speaking for decent people in the US and around the world. Dzhokhar will be remembered for the good he did in his life, for being a peaceful, loving person, who was heinously condemned to death by a corrupt trial.

You said:

What will be remembered is that you murdered and maimed innocent people and that you did it willfully and intentionally. You did it on purpose.”

What will be remembered about you, Mr. O'Toole, is that you conspired with others to conduct a corrupt trial and that you did it on purpose. You referred to Shakespeare's tragedy Othello, in which the evil Iago tries to justify his malice.

You noted that in Verdi's opera Otello, Iago sings “Credo in un Dio crudel,” “I believe in a cruel god.” You said:

“Surely someone who believes that God smiles on and rewards the deliberate killing and maiming of innocents believes in a cruel god. That is not, it cannot be, the god of Islam. Anyone who has been led to believe otherwise has been maliciously and wilfully deceived.”

Well said, just as you, Mr. O'Toole, have maliciously and wilfully deceived those who sought justice in this case.

You feel so victorious over this case, but it's far from over. It's just beginning, and thank God, the rest of it will be without you. This motion, highlighting your ex-parte colloquy will be sent to every lawyer and judge in Boston, and every media outlet as well. I wonder what your peers and others will think of you?

Finally, I want to scream about the ‘festivity’ that surrounded the sentencing of Jahar. The jury handed in their vote on May 15, 2015, but the judge – whose name I can’t even bear to say anymore – picked June 24 as the day of the sentencing! I suppose that was so he could plan his theatrics.

One of the theatrics reflects back on his mateship with the jurors. (I wonder if he did this to cover his arse in case the still-secret-meeting he had with them would come out in the wash — as indeed it has!) Here is what What’s His Name said at the “show” on June 24th:

The Boston Globe – God forgive them – reported:

“Tsarnaev becomes the first terrorist condemned to death ... in the post-9/11 world [for] the bombings that killed three, took the limbs of 17 others, and injured hundreds more. Throughout the proceedings, the lanky 21-year-old showed no remorse. US Attorney Carmen M. Ortiz told reporters shortly after the verdict was announced, “Our thoughts should now turn away from the Tsarnaev brothers for good.”

Hold on, Madame Prosecutor, just a minute there! Some of us are definitely not turning our thoughts away from the brothers.

The Bataclan attackers came by car they left outside. What became of that car? When did police and special forces arrive to the Bataclan? Why did it take more than two hours to assault the attackers at the Bataclan?

What did the police do in these two hours? How many forces participated in the assault on the attackers? Did any independent person witness the police's assault?

Why did they insist that three attackers blew themselves up and one was shot dead, if the next day this figure has changed? Who witnessed the circumstances in which the attackers of the Bataclan died? Why has the situation been described as "hostage taking"?

Why did the attackers fail to kill their "hostages"? Did the attackers speak French without accent, as claimed by witnesses? Who from the police negotiated with the attackers, as mentioned by witnesses, and about what was negotiated? Did anyone really blow himself up outside the Stadium? Are there any independent witnesses? Who issued bomb threats earlier in the day? Who was shooting from the window of the Bataclan on the outside, as experienced by Le Monde journalist Daniel Psenny and witness Carole Massemba? Who left a car related to the attack in Montreuil? Why were weapons left the car in Montreuil? Will the police release the CCTVs from the attacks that it is currently examining? From where did the attackers obtain weapons, explosives and cars?

How could the police immediately identify the type of explosives used? What did the Procureur de Paris mean when he said that five terrorists had been "neutralized"? Were they killed? What was the origin of the IS communiqués? From where were they sent?

How is it possible to authenticate these communiqués? What is their telephone number and email address?

James Henderson, of Bell Pottinger

Professor Mia Bloom

On October 6, 2016, The Independent, UK, had this headline:

“US government spent over $500m on fake Al-Qaeda propaganda videos that tracked location of viewers.”

The article, by Feliks Garcia, was about a PR firm in the UK that helped “the war effort” during the 2003 Iraq war. I will show in a moment that there is good news here for the Boston Marathon non-bomber, Jahar Tsarnaev.

But first, I hope every parent of a US soldier is reading this.

The PR firm in question is called Bell Pottinger. They worked alongside the Coalition in Iraq. Remember the Coalition? US, UK, Oz, Poland, and other who were Willing. (I'd be interested to know of any governments that registered as “No, not willing, I'll pass, thank you anyway.”)

“The agency was tasked with crafting TV segments in the style of unbiased Arabic news reports, videos of Al-Qaeda bombings that appeared to be filmed by insurgents, and those who watched the videos could be tracked by US forces.”

Would you agree with me that it is reasonable to deduce that if a government (The Great Republic's) is spending $500 million on showing that Al Qaeda does bombings, that Al Qaeda does not do bombings? (Can that half billion $--possibly be correct?)

Next let's look at the The Bell Pottinger Public Relations Firm.

If Al Qaeda is not doing bombings, then very logically it would be the donor of the $500M for “Public Relations” that would be the bomber. Oh, last year Henderson stepped down as CEO of Pottinger. The HolmesReport.com says: “Bell Pottinger is facing expulsion from the UK’s trade association for PR firms (PRCA), while a full report by law firm Herbert Smith Freehills is set to be published. Bell Pottinger was accused of stoking racial tensions in South Africa, following a complaint by South Africa’s Democratic Alliance opposition party.”

I continue with the 2016 article in The Independent:

“Bell Pottinger was first tasked by the interim Iraqi government in 2004 to promote democratic elections. Lord Tim Bell, a former Bell Pottinger chairman, confirmed the existence of the contract with the Sunday Times [That’s “Lord” as in House of Lords, I presume.] The Pentagon also confirmed that the agency was contracted under the Information Operations Task Force.

Dropping CD’s Now here’s the bombshell. This comes from a video editor named Martin Wells who worked on the contract at Bell Pottinger. He says they were given very specific instructions on how to produce the fake Al-Qaeda propaganda films. Again, I am taking this from the Independent.co.uk:

“According to Mr Wells’ account, US Marines would then take CDs containing the videos while on patrol, then plant them at sites during raids. “If they’re raiding a house and they’re going to make a mess of it looking for stuff anyway, they’d just drop an odd CD there,’ he said.” Parents of soldiers, are you still reading this? I sympathize with your feelings.

Now for the Boston Marathon Situation

The online magazine, Inspire, was “found” in the home of the Tsarnaevs and was used as evidence in court that they had learned how to do “their” bombing [read: the FBI’s bombing] of the finish line at the 2013 Boston Marathon. In other words, I claim the magazine, albeit online, was DROPPED there, in the Tsarnaev home, in good PR fashion.

On April 16, 2018, TheConversation.com published an article by Mia Bloom saying that Inspire magazine was found on Dzhokhar's laptop. "The magazine is an English-language online publication that was published by al-Qaida in the Arabian Peninsula. They also found videos of sermons by Anwar al-Awlaki, the firebrand jihadi cleric."

"The evidence and Dzhokhar's [Jahar's] testimony suggest that the brothers were inspired by propaganda. ... Dzhokhar and his brother learned how to make the pressure-cooker bombs from one of the most well-known articles published by the magazine: 'How to Build a Bomb in the Kitchen of Your Mom.' ... But before how, we ask why? It is because Allah says ... every Muslim is required to defend his religion and his nation."

Elias Davidsson has found that this type of propaganda is produced by MEMRI, which is a Zionist group; SITE Intelligence Group, run by Rita Katz; and Jihadology, run by Aaron Zelin. Davidsson says the only place you can find Inspire magazine is on "Jihadology."

Appendix F. DeSalvo the Boston Strangler, My Foot,
by Mary W Maxwell. GumshoeNews.com. November 2, 2017.

In 2013, Bostonians got conned regarding the Marathon story, but it wasn't their first experience of this. It also happened in the 1960s. I was 15 in 1962. Going out at night had no particular fears associated with it. We'd walk to Wednesday night choir practice, or whatever, without our parents even saying "Be careful."

What was there to be careful about? In a Catholic parish you knew everyone and there weren't any killers. After the first Strangler episode we probably did not change our way of life, but by the sixth strangling, or so, we had learned to stay indoors.

Choir stopped having evening rehearsals. Really, community life declined. I guess that was one of the intended outcomes. Another was training us to believe that there really are weirdos who will do anything. Let me briefly compare the Boston Strangler con job to the Marathon con job. I'll show that the media had a field day, the trial was an Inside Job, and that both men were killed in custody.

Media. The media dragged members of Tsarnaev's family thorough the mud for months. The venue was that of a great icon – the Marathon race, there were numerous amputees and subsequent hero stories. The story of the brothers' growing up in Russia and getting radicalized could be speculated on endlessly as there were no investigators to counteract it. As for "the Boston Strangler," he was just a concept for a while. The media dragged the concept through the mud.

All the police had to do was describe how each of the women's bodies was found. Some had nylon stockings wrapped around their neck, one had a broom handle in her vagina. The victims tended to be old, which was a new twist on "perving."

After Albert got outed, the media could dig up unlimited stories about the failures of his family. For instance, he was caught stealing as a child and was sent to Reform School. Later, his wife became frigid "resulting from the birth of their deformed child." (Oh really?)

Then there was the very hubba hubba story as to how Albert knocked on doors, told women he was looking for models and "measured" them for outfits.

Once Boston "learned" (wrongly) who had done so much harm, the script team had to fill months of newspaper accounts of how such a person could exist.

Court Case

There is a most striking similarity between the court cases of Tsarnaev and DeSalvo. In Jahar's 2015 trial, the defense team did all it could to see that exculpatory evidence did not see the light of day. They amazingly did not cross-examine witnesses whose tales were laughable.

Importantly, the defender, Judy Clarke, told the jury that Jahar was guilty "It was him." The public naturally thought her client had pleaded guilty, that's what I thought myself. But no, he didn't. And in her summing up she did not even ask the jury to return a verdict of innocence.

DeSalvo had a famous lawyer, F Lee Bailey, age 32, an ex-Marine who had been in newspapers and magazines for defending Sam Shepherd in a sensational trial. It would be hard to get the public to be sympathetic to DeSalvo, and thus the lawyer could dispense with all the standard protections of the accused's rights without constitutionalists jumping up and down.

Not unlike Clarke, Bailey arranged for Albert to be presented as guilty (by the defense). He did this by cutting a deal with the prosecution: Albert would be tried for something other than the murder of those women, and at the trial it would be "mentioned" that he had confided to a fellow prisoner (George Nasser) that he was the Strangler.

Setting the Stage

I wonder if the Marathon planners had someone else in mind to be the bomber, as it looks like they did rather little to plant seeds of the "badness" of Jahar and Tamerlan Tsarnaev. No journalist has ever sounded congratulatory in describing Tamerlan's athletic achievements, but neither have they been painting the boys as criminals or mental cases.

It seems obvious to me that Albert DeSalvo was chosen early on to be set up for some newsworthy crime. Just before he left the Army (he was in from 1948 to 1958), he was accused of molesting a nine-year-old girl. He vigorously denied it and "charges were eventually dropped."

If they couldn't be bothered to indict him, the chance is that the allegation was false. But even so, media can wave the information in front of the public "He was once accused of child molesting."

Valentines

Another crime he committed has, I think, a ludicrous feature. There had been a theft from a person's home of silver dollars. When I was a kid you could still trade all your paper dollars for silver dollars at the bank. But people usually only did this for gifts, such as to give someone a silver dollar for a birthday.

So there was Albert in a shop, buying his wife and child some candy for Valentine's Day. He paid in silver dollars and these dollars happened to have red paint on them. (Or so we are told.) Well, don't you know, the person whose house was burgled of silver dollars had reported that there was tell-tale marking in them – red paint!

And don't you know, a cop — who had been standing at the counter just when Albert bought the Valentine's candy — happened to see the incriminating red paint. (Like cops all know the details of all theft reports?) So DeSalvo was done for.

How he came to do the measuring of the door-knocked models I do not know. Some people do have sexual addictions. But how could he be so lucky as to choose houses where no kids were home from school, or no husbands home from work. (I suspect DeSalvo never did this nonsense at all.)

Was every sexually deprived woman so eager for the touch of the measuring man that she would put up with it? Or so keen for modeling that she allowed the incursion on her modesty? (We were modest in those pre-sexual-liberation days.)

As this sort of thing was now on Albert's record, it as easy to accept that he was a woman-killer. See? -- that's a complete non-sequitur, but who was going to analyze it? We probably had some talking-head psychologists on radio (not much TV in 1962) to make the connection between "sex" and "murder." Bostonians -- myself included -- fell for it.

Killed in Jail

Another similarity between the "Marathon bomber" Tamerlan and the "Boston Strangler" Albert is our acceptance of their murder in custody. Both men were killed and no one protested.

I have yet to hear anyone — except those who know the Marathon business was fake — protest that an apprehended man was killed. We all saw naked Tamerlan looking healthy, getting into an FBI car. The next thing you know he is dead.

Mosy likely no one in Boston protested the stabbing to death of Albert DeSalvo, when he was in a maximum security section of Walpole Prison. The same is true for the murder in prison of Whitey Bulger. After all, when a man has gone around killing random victims you don't want to be seen sticking up for his rights. Ditto Jahar (but many protest the death penalty as such!).

If you are interested in what happened to Albert, please see Boston Strangler by Alan Rogers who is a professor of History at Boston College. He notes of the rampage:

“In 1962 Anna Slesers, the first victim of Strangler, is found by her son who works at Lincoln Labs. Homicide detectives Sherry and Donovan inspect. Two weeks later, Nina Nichols, sister-in-law of the president of the Boston Bar Association, is strangled. Also in 1962, CBS does an expose on police corruption. Thus the Commissioner is replaced. Ex-FBI Ed McNamara gets the job.”

Note: You may read in the MSM that Albert's body was exhumed and the new evidence shows he did commit one of the murders. Do me a favor? Don't believe it. It's a lie.

“Ethnics” Take the Rap

I cannot recall who tipped me off as to a possible connection between blaming an Italian as the Strangler, and the fact that the West End of Boston, a part filled with Italian immigrants, was scheduled to be demolished. The new Government Center area replaced it in the 1960s.

I can't vouch for their being a connection. But there surely is a connection between blaming Muslims for terrorist acts (done actually by the FBI) and calling for the destruction of countries in the Middle East. Who would stand up for a Bin Laden? Who would even stand up for Afghanistan in October 2001 as we began to bomb that country on the thin excuse that Bin Laden, a Saudi man, was hiding there?

Long story short about Albert DeSalvo: His family is owed an apology, and prosecutions may be in order for various liars.

Who has the courage?

Dante's Divine Comedy: The Inferno

When I learned that aspects of the Marathon bombing are pure fiction, my first thought was that the professional writers of fictional stories in English language should sue the US government for interfering in their profession! I'm a writer of fictional stories in Catalan -- 11 completed books, mostly unsold.

I am, or was, a compulsive reader, mainly of fiction. When I was 14, I had the card number 100 of the public library in my town, a city of more than 50,000 people. (Even the number 100 is high; they didn't accept my first request submitted before age 14). Eventually I became a registered user of many public libraries in Europe.

I have read most of the Greek classics, such as Aristophanes, and Latin ones of Petronius, Ovid, etc. I have read most of the representative books of the entire field of literature. I can read Spanish some ancient Latin and Greek, Italian, a little of French, and now also English — thanks to Jahar Tsarnaev.

I have read all of Dostoyevsky. I felt outraged when I finished reading the hundreds of pages of The Brothers Karamazov and then, asking at the library for the continuation, was told that when Dostoyevsky died he left the book unfinished. How could any writer die while writing such a great work! Dying shouldn't be allowed to inspired artists! Weren't the geniuses immortal? I thought it was irresponsible to leave the reader in the middle of such intricate theological doubts and arguments as he did!

Of course I've read Dante several times, in three languages, the richest translation being the one in Catalan. I've read all of Kafka's oeuvre. His Metamorphosis is, in my opinion a book infinitely less decisive than The Trial, which inspired me to write an article in defense of Jahar.

I confess that I've even indulged in pieces by Ralph Hornsby and Corin Tellado! I mean I'm the kind who will read anything printed in a book or similar. But since the Boston hoax, I stopped reading fictional stories — and writing them. Despite my media exposure being low compared to others (as I haven't seen TV for many years), I got to the point where I felt saturated with bad and bizarre fiction.

Els escriptors en llengua catalana també estem plantejant-nos accions judicials contra I mitjans de comunicació oficials per saturar el públic amb ficció de sèrie B disfressada d'informació. (Catalan writers plan to sue official media for their saturation of the public with grade-B "fiction.")

Media's lack of contact with reality, and particularly the toxicity of the Marathon case, maimed my once notable capacity for digesting reality through written fiction. Why would anyone read Kafka when we find every day kaffian arguments in our newsfeed? Why would anyone read Orwell when we are living in an already Orwellian world? Why read Dante when we have on the news a Dante scene of people without legs, with all the falsification of a case against Jahar. Why would anyone be interested in any story by a really talented writer of fiction when our entire reality has been subverted to become a bad fiction?

Our intelligence has been mistreated to the point where we are unable to distinguish fiction from news (or if you're still able to distinguish it, you're not allowed to point out the difference).

Then you have no other option than to stop buying "real fiction" because you are being force-fed "fictional reality." That's the reason I think that writers of fiction in English should sue the US government for professional interference by their promotion of the lies of the Marathon.

It is thanks to Jahar that I've had to learn English. I look forward to talking with him one day when he gets freed.

Postscript from Montse: The strange thing is that people who see the videos of the faking of injuries still believe in the possibility of the coexistence of both fake and real victims on the ground. They believe it as an act of faith like believing in Santa Claus.

The fake victims perfectly identified as such remained on the scene after the police "controlled" the situation. They acted with complete freedom, with no interference from law enforcement and even with their active collaboration.

No police in the world would support the staging of fake victims in a place where there were real victims. The fact that we have some official "victims" identified as fake is reason enough to state safely that there weren't any real victims.

Muchas gracias to Montse Alarcón Flix for providing, in Document 3, the Spanish version of the affidavit sent by Jahar's Aunt. She has also posted a copy in Catalan at the website GumshoeNews.com.

Appendix H. Ottawa: Shooter in Parliament, in 2014, by Rory O'Connor. GumshoeNews.com. April 21, 2018.

at WWI Memorial

Graeme MacQueen, who was the founding director of the Centre for Peace Studies at McMaster University has done the work of investigation in the case of the October 2014 Ottawa attack, and reasonably found that elements of the Canadian state have a case to answer. The results are contained in his report, The October 22, 2014 Ottawa Shootings: Why Canadians Need a Public Inquiry.

It is particularly valuable, seeing as Ottawa was part of the extraordinary spate of attacks around that time: the Lindt Café siege in Sydney and the Charlie Hebdo attack were others. And these were linked in the public mind with the ISIS panic, at its very height then.

The most basic story involves two men, who didn't know each other, both by origin French-Canadian Catholics, and both converts to Islam: Michael Zehaf-Bibeau, the Ottawa attacker, and Martin Couture-Rouleau, who attacked in Quebec two days previously.

Michael Zehaf-Bibeau, of partial Libyan extraction, shot three times and killed Cpl Nathan Cirillo, who was on honour guard at the National War Memorial in Ottawa on the morning of Wednesday, October 22, 2014. After unsuccessfully attempting to kill another soldier, Zehaf-Bibeau drove his car to Parliament Hill, three minutes away.

Running Through Parliament with No Bullets

Because the Parliamentary precinct was protected by bollards, Zehaf-Bibeau hijacked a car by forcing its driver out, and drove to Parliament's Centre Block, which he entered.

Having already discharged six bullets of the possible eight loaded in his old-fashioned Winchester rifle, he emptied the other two on entering Centre Block, while fighting off security. He then ran deeper into the building, in which many politicians were present, for purposes not specifically known.

From a hiding place, he was able to discharge one more shot, meaning he had reloaded at least one bullet there, before succumbing to the thirty-one bullets that hit him, the most fatal of them from point blank range.

He died less than two minutes after entering the building. Kevin Vickers, the House of Commons sergeant-at-arms, was hailed a hero for being one of the officers who stopped Zehaf-Bibeau killing again. Vickers subsequently become Canada's Ambassador to Ireland.

The Other Convert

All this happened two days after an attack in Quebec, in which the other man I mentioned, Martin Couture-Rouleau, a convert who had been tagged as a security risk, ran into two soldiers in a shopping centre car park, killing one of them, Warrant Officer Patrice Vincent.

There was a car chase by police on the scene, during which he rang 911 to say the killing was in the name of Allah. His car rolled into a ditch, and he emerged from it. There are contradictory reports on whether he was charging toward a police officer with a knife, as police allege. At any rate he was shot, and died in hospital.

(A knife was photographed sticking up from the ground, which is not how you would expect a knife to land, if it had fallen or even been thrown, unless very emphatically, and this has not been alleged.)

Muslims and Stings

In his 90-page report, published in 2015, MacQueen puts this bald story in context, citing possibilities other than the Ottawa event being a simple jihadist attack. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police do have a nice line in entrapping Muslim targets, after all. As an example only, in the case of the “Toronto 18” in 2006 the only handgun in their possession was supplied by a police mole, and access to a bomb-manufacturing chemical was facilitated by another mole, paid $4 million for his work, according to RCMP documents reported on by Michael Friscolanti in Macleans. Yes, four million Canadian dollars.

There is the cautiously encouraging case of John Nuttall and Amanda Korody. They were arrested in 2013, after planting Boston-style pressure-cooker bombs at the British Columbia Legislature, of all places. But Justice Catherine Bruce, of the B.C. Supreme Court, issued a stay of proceedings on the Crown’s case, since the RCMP mole had suggested the type of bomb, supplied the explosive, and helped build them.

Of prime relevance to the Ottawa attack, the mole also suggested where to put the bombs: a provincial parliament, on that occasion.

To hear Christy Clark, then-Premier of B.C., say at the time of Nuttall and Korody’s arrest, “What they want to do is the same thing terrorists want to do around the world, and that is rob us of our sense of security, to rob us of our sense that this place belongs to us,” is to hear a finely ironic rendition of the Pavlovian reaction the word terrorism causes in politicians. The Crown is currently appealing the stay in proceedings.

Given the lockdown the RCMP have on the Ottawa case, there is no positive evidence of an entrapment operation involving Zehaf-Bibeau. However, the police have been unforthcoming and inconsistent about what evidence they have, and claim not to know many things.

At His Aunt's House?

For example, where Zehaf-Bibeau got his rifle. With a criminal record, he could not easily have bought one in Canada. He spent the night before the shooting at his aunt's rural house, ninety minutes away from Ottawa. It was the first time in ten years that he had visited her. Is this a place where you store and are certain of finding a gun again?

The police claimed he was seen in the morning placing a rifle in his car boot, but there is no telling who these witnesses are, or if they saw him do this at his aunt's house. Or are we supposed to think rifles are pilfered without report in the country?

Despite all these potential leads, the RCMP Commissioner Bob Paulson merely said, "We have not been able to confirm the origins of the gun". There ought to have been forensic evidence of gun cleaning, reasonably easy to ferret out given how quickly the shooter was identified. As MacQueen points out, another possibility is that Zehaf-Bibeau was supplied with the gun as he drove back to Ottawa on the morning of the attack.

There are evidential problems relating to the car he used in the attack, purchased the day before. He is said to have bought it using funds built up working in the Alberta oil patch.

The RCMP ought to put their contentions about his work history on the public record. It ought also to say why it discounts reports that he got help to buy the car from people at an Ottawa homeless mission.

Most bizarrely, Commissioner Paulson said Zehaf-Bibeau had intentions for the car, but "what those are, we aren't sharing". It is reasonable to assume this means something more than driving it, and given the context of Couture-Rouleau and more recently the Melbourne, Westminster and Barcelona attacks, means a plan to run people down.

But how does Paulson know anything about this?

Drills and Warnings

Probably the most troubling evidence of state complicity in the Ottawa event is the exercise the Canadian security state held shortly before the two attacks, and the so-called intelligence warnings distributed through October.

The exercise was reported on the day of the Ottawa attack. The CBC journalist Adrienne Arsenault explained that Canadian security agencies had run an exercise on maintaining command in their scripted scenario of an attack in Quebec, followed by an attack “in another city”, ending in an event involving fighters returned from Syria. This last didn’t happen, but Couture-Rouleau and Zehaf-Bibeau were readily linked by the media to events in Syria.

It was fair enough for the CBC’s Arsenault to say about the security agencies, “This precise scenario has been keeping them up at night for a while”. Incidentally, Zehaf-Bibeau was not a “copycat”, since he had been planning his attack throughout October, and nor was he connected with Couture-Rouleau.

As far as we know, the “intelligence warnings” began as early as October 8 when NBC publicly reported that would-be terrorists were discussing knife-and-gun attacks in Canada. (Note: Zehaf-Bibeau was carrying an unused knife.) The Privy Council Office issued a rare general warning on 17 October.

On the very day of the Ottawa shootings, after the news got out, Craig James, B.C. Legislature’s clerk, said in a press conference that he and a number of politicians in that province, including the Attorney General and Finance Minister, had received a warning, not specific to B.C., of a possibility of trouble.

Who Knew What?

And Gary Lenz, B.C. sergeant-at-arms, said the threat warnings were shared among those in charge of security at Canadian parliaments. So what did politicians in Ottawa know? Was Kevin Vickers, who has been presented simply as a quick-acting hero who killed Zehaf-Bibeau, anticipating trouble? He was the House of Commons sergeant-at-arms after all. If not, why not? Is it bursting too big a bubble to ask the question?

But equally, we should not lose sight of the fact that citizens don't find it hard to dismiss these patterns as random, because of the missing links. That majority needs to be advised that any investigator worth his salt would have raised questions about these coincidences.

The first questions, very simply, are: Was there a relationship between the exercise and the October events? And, what was the relation between the prior intelligence warnings and the October events?

Wouldn't You Know It, a Bill Is Tabled

The upshot of the attacks was that the passage of two laws strengthening the security state was made easier. C-51, the Anti-Terrorism Act of 2015, an omnibus law, allowed government bodies to keep and pass among themselves citizens' data, down to travel and tax affairs, and made provisions for the no-fly list. Another bill, C-44, which gave more powers to the Canadian Security Intelligence Service, was tabled a week after the attack.

Appendix J. Whom Do the FBI and Mueller Actually Work For? By Mary W Maxwell.

Bandstand at the Common near the corner of Tremont and Boylston Streets

On October 28, 2018 I attended a service at Boston Common in honor of people who died in a Synagogue shoot-out in a Pittsburgh synagogue. Politicians and clerics spoke; they all seemed to give the same speech, with the following themes:

1. We are heartbroken for the Pittsburgh congregation.
2. Although we are in despair today, let this give rise to a new hope for humanity.
3. People act out of hate.
4. Our forebears came to these shores for freedom and founded a City on a Hill.

If only Mary Maxwell had been at the podium! She could have grabbed the opportunity to say “We are here to show solidarity with the Pittsburgh Synagogue community, but we also want to ask publicly if something other than ‘hate’ may have caused the shoot-out. It is our duty to consider all who could be behind it.”

I have stated my belief that the Boston Marathon was carried out by the FBI. There is massive evidence that both the CIA and FBI work for some entity outside the US, e.g., World Government. The FBI is an unconstitutional body within the Department of Justice. Consider the former leader of the FBI, Robert Mueller. He needs to be in jail. The following is from the blog digwithin.net by the superb researcher Kevin A Ryan:

Mueller's History of Cover-Ups, by Kevin Ryan, digwithin.net
April 8, 2018.

Former FBI Director Robert Mueller has a long history of leading government investigations that were diversions or cover-ups. These include the investigation into the 1988 bombing of Pan Am Flight 103, the investigation into the terrorist financing Bank of Credit and Commerce International (BCCI), and the FBI investigations into the crimes of September 11th, 2001.

Mueller's talents were noticed early in his career at the Justice Department. As a U.S. Attorney in Boston during the mid-80s, he helped falsely convict four men for murders they didn't commit in order to protect a powerful FBI informant—mobster James “Whitey” Bulger.” According to the Boston Globe, “Mueller was also in that position while Whitey Bulger was helping the FBI cart off his criminal competitors even as he buried bodies in shallow graves along the Neponset.”

Mueller was then appointed as chief investigator of the 1988 bombing of Pan Am 103 in Scotland. The account Mueller produced was a flimsy story that accused a Libyan named Megrahi [re] a suitcase bomb that allegedly traveled unaccompanied through several airports. Mueller was covering up facts related to some of the victims of the bombing—a group of U.S. intelligence specialists [such as] Major Charles McKee.

McKee had gone to Beirut to find and rescue hostages and, while there, learned about CIA involvement in a drug smuggling operation run through an agency project called COREA. As TIME magazine reported, the likely explanation for the bombing, was that U.S. operatives “targeted Flight 103 in order to kill the hostage-rescue team.” This would prevent disclosure of what McKee's team had learned. That theory was supported by the fact that the CIA showed up immediately at the scene of the crash, took McKee's briefcase, and returned it empty.

Mueller's diversions led to his leadership of the Criminal Division at the U.S. Department of Justice, putting him in charge of investigations regarding BCCI. Mueller was simply brought in to accomplish the cover-up. The facts were that BCCI was used by the CIA... to fund terrorists and other criminal operatives. Reporter Chris Floyd wrote:

“When a few prosecutors finally began targeting BCCI, President Bush [senior] boldly moved in with a federal probe directed by Justice Department investigator Robert Mueller. The U.S. Senate later found that the probe had been unaccountably ‘botched’—witnesses went missing, CIA records got ‘lost,’...

Lower-ranking prosecutors told of heavy pressure from on high to ‘lay off.’ Mueller, of course, wound up as head of the FBI, appointed to the post in July 2001 – by George W. Bush.”

Yes, in the summer of 2001, when the new Bush Administration suspected it would soon need a cover-up, Mueller was brought in for the job. He also had some interesting ties to other 9/11 suspects like Rudy Giuliani, whose career paralleled Mueller’s closely during the Reagan and first Bush administrations.

The FBI began the whitewash of 9/11 immediately. Mueller himself lied repeatedly in the direct aftermath with respect to FBI knowledge of the accused hijackers. He claimed that the alleged hijackers left no paper trail, and suggested that they exercised “extraordinary secrecy.” Moreover, the evidence the accused men supposedly left behind was obvious and implausibly convenient for the FBI. He immediately seized control of the investigations at the World Trade Center, the Pentagon, and in Shanksville, PA where United Flight 93 was destroyed. Under Mueller, leaders of the Bureau went on to arrest and intimidate witnesses, destroy or withhold evidence.

Instead, Mueller celebrated some of the most egregious pre-9/11 failures of the FBI by giving those involved promotions, awards, and cash bonuses. Mueller’s FBI went on to “botch” the investigation into the October 2001 anthrax attacks. [It] provided the emotional impetus for Americans and Congress to accept the Patriot Act, which had been written prior to 9/11.

Appendix K. Christmas Terror in Berlin. Felicity Hingston's Review of Elias Davidsson's Der Gelbe Bus (The Yellow Bus). GumshoeNews.com. March 19, 2018.

A truck drove into some Christmas shoppers in Breitscheid Square, Berlin, on December 19, 2016. Despite hyped media coverage at the time, there are in fact few people prepared to discuss the event, and copious amounts of contradictions about what actually took place: basics like how many people were killed or injured and indeed whom, how fast the truck was travelling.

'Eye-witness' accounts vary greatly and several have not been verified. Mr Davidsson's attempts to do so were met with silence, complete lack of co-operation and indeed legal threats. Note: This book is written in German; as yet there is no English translation.

The Christmas Shopping Terrorist Event

The general depiction of events is vague at best: A 40-ton truck entered the Christmas Market pedestrian area from an initially disputed direction sometime around 8pm, at a speed somewhere between 40 and 80 km/h, braking (or not) and destroying 'several' stalls. There were up to 50 people injured (including psychologically) and some '12' killed.

The body of a man was found in the driver's cabin (though some initial reports claimed the cabin was empty), identified as the original driver of the truck, Pole Lukasz Urban. He had been shot, perhaps some hours before. Initial autopsy reports conflict as to whether he was still alive at the time of the 'event'.

Despite modern forensics there is still no confirmation of his time of death nor a final autopsy report to be found on the internet. Even with this uncertainty, the 'general voice' hails him as a hero who tried to wrest back control in his final minutes.

Efforts To Find The Terrorist?

The alleged perpetrator was ‘identified’ by fingerprints and documents found in the cabin and two phones (found somewhere). He had been under close police scrutiny as an illegal refugee and known danger to society, but surveillance of him was lifted just prior to the event. A foot pursuit by a brave bystander led in the direction of the Tiergarten, where the alleged perpetrator ‘gestured’ to a surveillance camera ‘in the typical manner of ISIS’, “Allahu Akbar”.

The pursued person managed to cross several borders until he was finally killed by Italian police at a border check some days later, where he allegedly pulled a gun on them. It was subsequently ‘established’ that he had recently been fast-radicalised and converted to extreme Islam.

There was also the widespread security camera failure and a dropping out of the emergency radio network, causing confusion and a lack of communication. That caused delays of some 50 minutes, I believe, for arrival by paramedics.

What about the Bus? This book “The Yellow Bus” (Der Gelbe Bus) highlights the presence of an articulated yellow BVG (Berlin Verkehrsbetriebe, i.e., the Berlin transit authority) bus, visible in several published images of the scene, standing some 20 m behind the resting place of the truck. According to one seemingly ‘privileged’ journalist’s video (JH’s), the bus arrived within minutes of the truck. It remained there until the truck was towed away the next morning, as can be seen in an RT Deutsch video. However, despite the prime position of this bus, no statement was taken from the driver, nor was any report published on the almost-guaranteed surveillance camera from the bus.

Why would such potential material evidence be omitted? There are also people in civilian clothing quietly standing around the bus. Surely such a dramatic incident would evoke a far less relaxed response. I find it strange that no information came from the bus (driver or camera) despite its prime vantage point. Was the bus prevented from continuing its regular route? Was it even on a regular route?

Clearly there was no impact on the bus from the truck. Was the bus, as Mr Davidsson intimates (in my view) transport for the ‘extras’ (aka crisis actors)? It must have had some role, and this would be logical for a false flag.

It does seem questionable that the bus turned up so ‘timely’ and that it remained there until the truck was towed away the next morning. I find it interesting that the ID of the bus would have been quite clear from the ‘dashcam’ video, but has this been further investigated? I believe not.

The Style of Davidsson’s Book

In detail, the author of this important book peels back the layers to raise such doubts about the official report, so that even a child could see the contradictions. Pages 219 through 342 contain eye-witness reports, listed alphabetically and sourced. Very few were willing to give Mr Davidsson more detail when he contacted them. Some threatened legal action, others were so traumatized they weren’t willing to re-visit the ‘attack’. Others seemed willing, then suddenly NOT. One thing stands out: the reports don't support each other well at all. Those that do, seem to even use the exact same words! He recounts the steering of the flow of information, the blatant cover-up and lack of explanation by the authorities. From all that, the reader must come to a firm conclusion that 'they' do not want a clear explanation to go public. They don't want us to understand what is taking place.

How Should We React?

Mr Davidsson provides comparison with many other terror attacks – leaving little room for us to question his assertion that a police state is underway and that international terrorism is the mechanism of fear-mongering by which the world leaders intend to implement a police state globally. The author highlights commonalities to various other 'incidents' that to date remain largely unexplained and questionable.

For me to suggest that we all need to 'wake up' may appear arrogant, but on reading this book I must urge everyone to pull their head from the sand and stop accepting without questioning. I draw particular attention to Mr Davidsson's stated hope (p12) "that information published here will encourage those people who, to date, have remained silent about the facts of the case"... to "relinquish their silence" and to contribute to the clarification of these facts. And further, "convey intelligence to those remaining democrats and freedom-lovers that could help in their resistance against wars and the insidious imposition of a police state".

Mr Davidsson has done an excellent exposé of the Berlin 'event' and I can only hope those 'silent to date' accept his invitation to contribute – be they facts, corrections or omissions – in order for the truth to emerge about all such 'events' AND to send the message to the global leaders-would-be-puppeteers that we are NOT THEIR PUPPETS.

Appendix L. Chancellor Merkel: A Time To Heal?
by Elias Davidsson. GumshoeNews.com. October 20, 2018.

Dear Chancellor Merkel,

I am writing to you regarding the fake terrorist attack that took place at a Christmas market in Berlin on 19 December 2016. As we both know, you were forced by dark forces that reside outside Germany to authorize and cover up this act of public deception. I guess that this decision was hard on you.

The facts of this particular case are meanwhile seeping into public awareness. More and more citizens suspect that the official account on the Berlin attacks are contrived and that your government is covering up the facts. Such suspicions do not only undermine your credibility and that of your government, but also of the civilian institutions who participated in this act of deception, including the medical profession, firefighters, emergency workers and the police.

When such institutions cannot anymore be trusted, the very rule of law is under threat. I doubt that this is your intention.

I therefore call upon you, Mrs. Merkel, to publicly acknowledge the dilemma you had to face before authorizing the above operation, reveal the identities of those who railroaded you to this decision and the nature of the pressure they used on you. By acknowledging these facts you can redeem the loss of confidence that you have experienced in recent months and place yourself at the service of the people.... Acknowledging these facts will make it harder on your enemies, internal and external, to harm you. Praying and hoping that your sense of propriety will prevail and that no one will harm you for having read and acted upon this letter,

I remain, respectfully, Elias Davidsson

Jahar Thanks His Lawyers and Apologizes:

THE COURT: All right, Mr. Tsarnaev.

THE DEFENDANT: Thank you, your Honor, for giving me an opportunity to speak. I would like to begin in the name of Allah, the exalted and glorious, the most gracious, the most merciful, “Allah” among the most beautiful names.

... I would like to first thank my attorneys, those who sit at this table, the table behind me, and many more behind the scenes. They have done much good for me, for my family. They made my life the last two years very easy. I cherish their company. They’re lovely companions.

I would like to thank those who took time out of their daily lives to come and testify on my behalf despite the pressure. I’d like to thank the jury for their service, and the Court. The Prophet Muhammad [said] if you are not merciful to Allah’s creation, Allah will not be merciful to you, so I’d like to now apologize to the victims, to the survivors.

After the bombing, which I am guilty of — if there’s any lingering doubt about that, let there be no more. I did do it along with my brother — I learned of some of the victims. I learned their names, their faces, their age. And throughout this trial more of those victims were given names, more of those victims had faces, and they had burdened souls.

Now, all those who got up on that witness stand and that podium related to us — to me — I was listening – the suffering that was and the hardship that still is, with strength and with patience and with dignity. You told us just how unbearable it was, how horrendous it was, this thing I put you through.

I also wish that four more people had a chance to get up there, but I took them from you. [Emphasis added]

UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE

Appellee Dzhokhar Tsarnaev v Appellant No. 16-6001

MOTION OF THREE CITIZENS OF THE UNITED STATES FOR LEAVE TO APPEAR AS FRIENDS OF THE COURT UNDER RULE 29(a) OF THE FEDERAL RULES OF APPELLATE PROCEDURE

The undersigned introduces himself by offering a short résumé of his career as appendix A, subject to further specification as may ultimately be required by this Court. The undersigned is a specialist in forensic science and medicine, and in British, American, and Canadian constitutional law and history, in both of which fields he has many publishing credits.

He has been permanently and generally admitted to the bar of five courts of record in the United States. Beyond his native Minnesota, he has practiced pro hac vice before twenty-eight state or federal courts of record in fifteen jurisdictions of the United States over the course of nearly fifty years. He is a member in good standing of the bar of the Minnesota Supreme Court (#3664X), and was there admitted on October 20, 1967.

A formal certificate can be made available on request. No ethics proceedings are pending against the undersigned. On September 26, 2017, upon due inquiry, the undersigned was advised by personnel in the clerk's office of this Court that he need not be a member of the bar of this Court to make this motion under Rule 29(a) of the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure in behalf of three citizens of the United States desiring to appear as friends of the court in the above-entitled matter. On October 4, 2017, the circuit executive's office instructed the undersigned to rely on the clerk's office. On October 5 and 10, 2017, the clerk's office confirmed that the admission of the undersigned to the bar of this Court is not necessary for this motion under Rule 29(a), and directed filing and service in paper without fee.

TO COUNSEL FOR THE UNITED STATES AND FOR THE APPELLANT, PLEASE TAKE NOTICE THAT THE UNDERSIGNED MAKES THE FOLLOWING MOTION BEFORE THIS HONORABLE COURT IN BEHALF OF THREE CITIZENS OF THE UNITED STATES, TO WIT:

COMES NOW the undersigned, and he makes the following motion, to wit: That James Fetzner, Ph. D., natural born citizen of the United States and emeritus professor of philosophy at the University of Minnesota Duluth; Mary Maxwell, Ph. D., LL. B., natural born citizen of the United States, previously working in Australia, now present in the United States; and Cesar Baruja, M. D., a naturalized citizen of the United States, born in Paraguay, and practicing medicine over the past thirty-seven years, be granted leave to appear as friends of the court in the above-entitled matter through the undersigned as their counsel, and that, if necessary for this purpose, the undersigned be admitted to the bar of this Court generally or pro hac vice, either sua sponte or on motion yet to be made.

Attached as appendix is an uncolored and unbound copy of a proposed submission on the merits, including an addendum of relevant papers from the record, to be submitted in proper format and number as ordered in due course.

This effort is funded by Elisabeth Ritter-Blaser, a philanthropist and German-speaking citizen of the Swiss Confederation, living in the City of Oberburg in the canton of Bern. Her interest is preventing wrongful convictions and executions in the United States and other countries. The undersigned has contributed nothing to the funding of this effort, but has prepared this motion. He will argue orally, but only if requested by this Court.

Dr. Fetzner, Dr. Maxwell, and Dr. Baruja have all studied and commented on the prosecution of Dzhokhar Tsarnaev. They all protest this prosecution as unfounded upon probable cause, and they verily believe, from their respective and detailed investigations of the facts in this case, and from the work of other eminent experts, including an internet-accessible report of Lorraine Day, M. D., who for many years served as chief of orthopedic surgery at the general hospital in San Francisco, that the prosecution of Mr. Tsarnaev is dishonorable to United States.

Aside from other anomalies not on this record, Dr. Fetzer, Dr. Maxwell, and Dr. Baruja maintain that, during the trial of Dzhokhar Tsarnaev, certain powerful exculpatory evidence on this record, grasped by many astute observers, and sufficient to warrant outright dismissal or acquittal, or an order granting a new trial, went unused and unnoticed by counsel on both sides, including the principal trial lawyer for Mr. Tsarnaev who loudly proclaimed his guilt in her opening statement and did not even ask for a verdict of not guilty during her final summation; that major news and entertainment media of the United States have abused the First Amendment by acting together to create false appearances of guilt on the part of Mr. Tsarnaev of grave capital crimes, and to inspire public hatred against him; that Mr. Tsarnaev was misled into making or otherwise has been said to have made false confessions unconfirmed by the corpus delicti; that the said exculpatory evidence was actually generated by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), and positively disproves essential facts of accusation in the indictment; and that the said exculpatory evidence is referenced and made part of this record by electronic order #1469 issued by the United States District Court for Massachusetts (No. 13-CR-10200-GAO), the same entered on June 17, 2015.

The said exculpatory evidence was never heard or considered by the jury, nor was it considered in sentencing. Dr. Fetzer, Dr. Maxwell, and Dr. Baruja note here that key papers referenced by the said electronic order #1469 have been conveniently reviewed in an internet-accessible report, dated August 17, 2015, by former secretary of the US Treasury Paul Craig Roberts.

Jack Graham, Minnesota Bar #3664X

Paul Craig Roberts, PhD

In a nutshell, the FBI crime lab determined from fragments at the scene of the explosions, and the indictment stated in paragraphs 6, 7, and 24 of the general allegations, applicable to all counts, that Dzhokhar was carrying a black backpack heavily laden with a large pressure-cooker bomb.

The FBI then identified as culprits two individuals by reference to a street video which included a still-frame photo showing that Dzhokhar carried a light-weight white backpack. The very evidence used by the FBI to identify the “Boston bombers” referenced in the indictment, excludes Dzhokhar as plainly as white is distinguished from black. And there are widely published photos of the scene of the explosions showing other individuals carrying black backpacks which perfectly match the projections of the FBI crime lab, but we are aware of no evidence that these individuals were ever investigated.

The lawyers on both sides must have known about these exculpatory facts, but played to the gallery as if the street video confirmed that Dzhokhar was guilty. In view of these facts, this Court should view and consider the evidence covered by electronic order #1469, then grant appropriate remedy, -- i. e., reversal with order for acquittal as a matter of law or reversal with order granting a new trial. Dr. Fetzer, Dr. Maxwell, and Dr. Baruja believe that allowance of a death sentence under these circumstances amounts to judicial murder in the sense illustrated in Powell v. Alabama, 287 U. S. 45 at 72-73 (1932). Such is their interest here. They submit as authority for their right to intervene and be heard as friends of the court the internet-accessible opinion of Judge T. S. Ellis III, published on February 27, 2006, in United States v. Steven J. Rosen and Keith Weissman, No. 1:05CR225-TSE, Document 228, on the docket of the United States District Court for Eastern Virginia. Pursuant to 28 United States Code, Section 1746, the undersigned swears, subject to the pains and penalties of perjury, that he has conducted himself and will conduct himself before this Court in an upright and proper manner, that he will support and has always supported the United States Constitution, and that all representations hereinabove are true to the best of his knowledge, information, and belief. This oath is made abroad, subject to the laws of the United States.

AFFIDAVIT OF MARET TSARNAEVA CONCERNING THE PROSECUTION OF DZHOKHAR TSARNAEV

Mindful that this affidavit may be filed or displayed as an offer of proof with her authorization in public proceedings contemplated by the laws of the United States of America, and in reliance upon Title 28 of the United States Code, Section 1746, Maret Tsarnaeva deposes and says:

I am the paternal aunt of Dzhokhar Tsarnaev who has been prosecuted before the United States District Court for Massachusetts upon indictment of a federal grand jury returned on June 27, 2013, for causing one of two explosions on Boylston Street in Boston on April 15, 2013. In the count for conspiracy, certain other overt acts of wrongdoing are mentioned.

As I understand the indictment, if Dzhokhar did not carry and detonate an improvised explosive device or pressure-cooker bomb as alleged, all thirty counts fail, although perhaps some lingering questions, about which I offer no comment here, might remain for resolution, subject to guarantees of due process of law, within the jurisdiction of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

I am currently living in Grozny, the capital of Chechnya which is a republic within the Russian Federation. My academic training included full-time studies in a five-year program of the Law Faculty at the Kyrgyz State University, and I also hold the degree of master of laws (LL. M.), with focus on securities laws, granted by the University of Manitoba while I lived in Canada. I am qualified to practice law in Kyrgyzstan. I am fluent in Russian, Chechen, and English, and am familiar with other languages. I am prepared to testify under oath in public proceedings in the United States, if my expenses are paid, and if my personal safety and right of return to my home in Chechnya are adequately assured in advance.

Aside from other anomalies and other aspects of the case on which I make no comment here, I am aware of several photo exhibits, upon which the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) relied, or of evidence which their crime laboratory has produced, and certain other reports or material. Together, these plainly show that Dzhokhar was not carrying a large, nylon, black backpack, including a white-rectangle marking at the top, and containing a heavy pressure-cooker bomb, shortly before explosions in Boston on April 15, 2013, as claimed by the FBI and as alleged in the indictment for both explosions.

On the contrary, these photo exhibits show unmistakably that Dzhokhar was carrying over his right shoulder a primarily white backpack which was light in weight, and was not bulging or sagging as would have been evident if it contained a heavy pressure-cooker bomb. The only reasonable conclusion is that Dzhokhar was not responsible for either of the explosions in question.

On or about June 20-21, 2013, during their first trip to Russia, which lasted about ten days more or less, Judy Clarke and William Fick, lawyers from the federal public defender's office in Boston, visited my brother Anzor Tsarnaev, and his wife Zubeidat, respectively the father and mother of Dzhokhar. The meeting was at the home of Dzhokhar's parents in Makhachka which is in the republic of Dagestan adjacent to the republic of Chechnya, and about three hours' drive from Grozny. My mother, my sister Malkan, and I were present at this meeting. Zubeidat speaks acceptable English. Mr. Fick is fluent in Russian. Laying aside other details of the conversation on June 20-21, 2013, I wish to note the following:

-- The lawyers from Boston strongly advised that Anzor and Zubeidat refrain from saying in public that Dzhokhar and his brother Tamerlan were not guilty. They warned that, if their advice were not followed, Dzhokhar's life in custody near Boston would be more difficult;

-- Mme Clarke and Mr. Fick also requested of Anzor and Zubeidat that they assist in influencing Dzhokhar to accept the legal representation of the federal public defender's office in Boston. Mr. Fick revealed that Dzhokhar was refusing the services of the federal public defender's office in Boston, and sending lawyers and staff away when they visited him in custody. In reaction to the suggestion of Mr. Fick, lively discussion followed;

-- As Dzhokhar's family, we expressed our concern that the federal public defender's office in Boston was untrustworthy, and might not defend Dzhokhar properly, since they were paid by the government of the United States which was prosecuting him, as many believe for political reasons. Dzhokhar's parents expressed willingness to engage independent counsel, since Dzhokhar did not trust his government-appointed lawyers. Mr. Fick reacted by saying that the government agents and lawyers would obstruct independent counsel;

-- I proposed that Dzhokhar's family hire independent counsel to work with the federal public defender's office in order to assure proper and effective representation of Dzhokhar. Mr. Fick replied that, if independent counsel were hired by the family, the federal public defender's office in Boston would withdraw;

-- Mr. Fick then assured Anzor and Zubeidat that the United States Department of Justice had allotted $5 million to Dzhokhar's defense, and that the federal public defender's office in Boston intended to defend Dzhokhar properly. Zubeidat then and there said little concerning assurances of Mr. Fick. But for my part, I never believed that the federal public defender's office in Boston ever intended to defend Dzhokhar as promised. And my impressions from what happened during the trial lead me to believe that the federal public defender's office in Boston did not defend Dzhokhar competently and ethically.

In any event, I am aware that, following the meeting on June 20-21, 2013, Mme Clarke and Mr. Fick continued to spend time with Anzor and Zubeidat, and eventually persuaded Zubeidat to sign a typed letter in Russian to Dzhokhar, urging him to cooperate wholeheartedly with the federal public defender's office in Boston. I am informed by my sister Malkan, that Zubeidat gave the letter to the public defenders, shortly before their departure from Russia on or about June 29, 2013, for delivery to Dzhokhar.

During subsequent trips of Mme Clarke and Mr. Fick to see Dzhokhar's parents in Makhachkala, the strategy for defending Dzhokhar was explained, as I learned from my sister Malkan. The public defender's office in Boston intended to contend at trial, as actually has happened since, that Tamerlan, now deceased, was the mastermind of the crime, and that Dzhokhar was merely following his big brother.

I was firmly opposed to this strategy as morally and legally wrong, because Dzhokhar is not guilty, as FBI-generated evidence shows. Some ill-feeling has since developed between myself and Dzhokhar's parents over their acquiescence.

On or about June 19, 2014, during their visit to Grozny over nearly two weeks, three staff members from the public defender's office in Boston visited my mother and sisters in Grozny. I am told that they also visited Dzhokhar's parents in Makhachkala.

The personnel visiting my mother and sisters in Grozny on or about June 19, 2014, included one Charlene, who introduced herself as an independent investigator, working in and with the federal public defender's office in Boston; another by the name of Jane, a social worker who claimed to have spoken with Dzhokhar; and a third, by the name of Olga, who was a Russian-English interpreter from New Jersey.

They did not leave business cards, but stayed at the main hotel in Grozny, hence I presume that their surnames can be ascertained. I was not present at the meeting in Grozny on or about June 19, 2014, but my sister Malkan, who was present, called me by telephone immediately after the meeting concluded. She revealed to me then the details of the conversation at the meeting. Malkan and I have since spoken about the visit on several occasions.

Malkan speaks Russian and Chechen and is willing to testify under oath in public proceedings in the United States through an interpreter in Russian, if her expenses are paid, and if her personal safety and right of return to her home in Chechnya are adequately assured in advance.

She relates, and has authorized me to state for her that, during the conversation on June 19, 2014, in Grozny, Charlene the independent investigator stated flatly that the federal public defender's office in Boston knew that Dzhokhar was not guilty as charged, and that their office was under enormous pressure from law enforcement agencies and high levels of the government of the United States not to resist conviction. This affidavit is executed outside of the United States, but the foregoing account is true to the best of my knowledge, information, and belief, and subject to the pains and penalties of perjury under the laws of the United States of America.

DOCUMENT 3. Spanish Translation, Aunt Maret's Affidavit

Translator is Montse Alarcón Flix. (The Spanish was not sent to court.) Original in English was first published by Paul Craig Roberts.

Los documentos argumentan que sobre la base de las evidencias proporcionadas por el FBI, no hay lugar para la imputación de Dzhokhar Tsarnaev. Las evidencias del FBI concluyen claramente que el artefacto estaba en una bolsa negra, pero las fotografías usadas para establecer la presencia de Dzhokhar en la Maratón le muestran llevando una bolsa blanca. Además, la bolsa no tiene la apariencia pesada y abultada que tendría una bolsa que contuviese una bomba.

Como los lectores saben, yo había sospechado del atentado de la maratón de Boston desde el principio. Parece obvio que ambos hermanos Tsarnaev sufrieron sendos intentos de asesinato en supuestos tiroteos con la policía, como los supuestos perpetradores en el asunto de Charlie Hebdo en París. Muertes convenientes en tiroteos son aceptadas como indicios de culpa y resuelven el problema de juzgar a inocentes chivos expiatorios.

En el caso de Dzhokhar, su culpabilidad no fue establecida mediante evidencias sino mediante acusaciones, por la traición de la abogada pública que el gobierno asignó a su defensa, Judy Clarke, quien proclamó la culpabilidad de Dzhokhar en la declaración de apertura de la “defensa” del caso, por una supuesta confesión, evidencia de la cual nunca ha sido proporcionada, escrita por Dzhokhar en una embarcación en el interior de la cual el malherido joven yacía moribundo hasta que fue descubierto por el dueño de la misma y hospitalizado en estado crítico.

Dzhokhar no fue convicto sobre la base de las evidencias. En mi interrogatorio a John Remington Graham, he concluido que a pesar de 48 años de activa experiencia en justicia penal, tanto en el papel de fiscal como en el de abogado defensor, le resultó extremadamente chocante la malversación legal del caso Tsarnaev. Como Graham se está acercando al final de su carrera, está deseoso de hablar claro, pero no ha podido encontrar un solo licenciado en el estado de Massachusetts que se prestase a respaldar su comparecencia ante el Juzgado del Distrito Federal de Boston.

Ello me dice que el miedo a las represalias ha extendido su alcance al sistema judicial y que la América que conocimos donde la ley protegía a la gente ya no existe.

Aquí está el Informe de Maret Tsarnaeva:

Tal como yo entiendo la acusación, si Dzhokhar no llevó ni detonó un artefacto explosivo improvisado o bomba en una olla a presión como se pretende, los treinta cargos fallan, aunque tal vez otras interrogantes persistan quedando pendientes de resolución, sobre las cuáles no ofrezco comentario aquí, y que deben ser sujetas a las garantías de un debido proceso judicial, dentro de la jurisdicción de la Commonwealth de Massachusetts.

Actualmente estoy viviendo en Grozny, la capital de Chechenia, que es una república de la Federación Rusa. Mi bagaje académico incluye estudios completos en un programa de cinco años de la Facultad de Leyes de la Universidad Estatal de Kirguistán, también poseo el master de leyes (LL.M), enfocado a leyes de seguridad, expedido por la Universidad de Manitoba cuando vivía en Canadá. Estoy cualificada para ejercer la abogacía en Kirguistán. Manejo con fluidez el Ruso, el Checheno y el Inglés y otras lenguas me son familiares. Estoy dispuesta a testificar bajo juramento en procesos públicos en los Estados Unidos, si mis gastos son cubiertos y si mi seguridad personal y el derecho a regresar a mi hogar en Chechenia son asegurados adecuadamente por adelantado.

Al margen de otras anomalías y otros aspectos del caso sobre los cuales no hago comentarios aquí, tengo conocimiento de varias fotos, en las cuales el Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) ha confiado como medio de prueba, o de evidencias que su laboratorio criminal ha producido, y algunas otras publicaciones de material. En conjunto, todo ello muestra claramente que Dzhokhar no llevaba una gran mochila de nylon negra con un rectángulo blanco marcado en la parte superior, y conteniendo una pesada bomba en una olla a presión, poco antes de las explosiones en Boston el 15 de Abril, 2013, como pretende el FBI y se contempla en la atribución de ambas explosiones.

Por el contrario, esas fotos muestran inequívocamente que Dzhokhar llevaba sobre su hombro derecho una mochila predominantemente blanca que era de peso ligero, y no se apreciaba abultada o hundida como habría sido evidente si esta hubiese contenido una pesada bomba en una olla a presión. La única conclusión razonable es que Dzhokhar no fue el responsable por ninguna de las dos explosiones en cuestión. Aproximadamente entre el 20 y el 21 de Junio de 2013, durante su primer viaje a Rusia, que duró unos diez días más o menos, Judy Clarke y William Fick, abogados de la oficina de defensores públicos de Boston, visitaron a mi hermano Anzor Tsarnaev y a su esposa Zubeidat, respectivamente el padre y la madre de Dzhokhar. El encuentro tuvo lugar en casa de los padres de Dzhokhar en Makhachka que se encuentra adyacente a la república de Chechenia, y a unas tres horas en coche de Grozny. Mi madre, mi hermana Malkan, y yo estuvimos presentes durante este encuentro. Zubeidat habla un inglés aceptable. El señor Fick habla Ruso con fluidez. Dejando a un lado otros detalles de la conversación el junio 20-21, deseo destacar lo siguiente:

- Los abogados de Boston advirtieron vehementemente a Anzor y Zubeidat que debían reprimirse de reivindicar en público que Dzhokhar y su hermano Tamerlan eran no culpables. Les avisaron de que, si su advertencia no era acatada, la vida de Dzhokhar en custodia cerca de Boston sería más difícil. La señora Clarke y el Señor Fick también requirieron de Anzor y Zubeidat que colaborasen

influenciando a Dzhokhar para aceptar la representación legal de la oficina federal de defensores públicos de Boston. El Señor Fick reveló que Dzhokhar estaba rehusando los servicios de la tal oficina y enviando de vuelta a sus abogados y personal cuando éstos le visitaban. En reacción a la sugerencia del Señor Fick, siguió una viva di-

--Como familia de Dzhokhar, expresamos nuestra preocupación por si la oficina de defensores públicos de Boston no era digna de confianza y no intentaba defender a Dzhokhar eficazmente, ya que eran pagados por el gobierno de los Estados Unidos que le estaba acusando por razones políticas, como muchos creen.

- Los padres de Dzhokhar expresaron su deseo de contratar consejo legal independiente ya que Dzhokhar no confiaba en los abogados que el gobierno le había asignado. El señor Fick reaccionó diciendo que los agentes y abogados del gobierno obstruirían la labor de un consejero legal independiente;
1. - Yo propuse que la familia de Dzhokhar contratase consejo legal independiente para trabajar con la oficina federal de defensores públicos para asegurar una adecuada y efectiva representación de Dzhokhar. El señor Fick respondió que, si era contratado consejo legal independiente por la familia, la oficina federal de defensores públicos de Boston abandonaría el caso.- El señor Fick entonces aseguró a Anzor y Zubeidat que el Departamento de Justicia de los Estados Unidos había asignado 5 millones de dólares a la defensa de Dzhokhar, y que la oficina federal de defensores públicos de Boston intentaría defender a Dzhokhar adecuadamente. Zubeidat entonces y allí dijo poca cosa con respecto a las afirmaciones del señor Fick. Pero por mi parteo nunca he creído que la oficina federal de defensores públicos de Boston intentase alguna vez defender a Dzhokhar como prometieron. Y mis impresiones a partir de lo que pasó durante el juicio me conducen a creer que la oficina federal de defensores públicos de Boston no ha defendido a Dzhokhar competente ni éticamente. En cualquier caso soy sabedora de que a continuación de esa entrevista en Junio 20-21 de 2013, la señora Clarke y el señor Fick continuaron pasando tiempo con Anzor y Zubeidat llegando a persuadir a Zubeidat para firmar una carta mecanografiada en Ruso para Dzhokhar, urgiéndole a cooperar de todo corazón con la oficina federal de defensores públicos de Boston. Fui informada por mi hermana Malkan, de que Zubeidat les dio la carta a los defensores públicos, poco antes de su partida desde Rusia aproximadamente el 29 de Junio de 2013, para que la entregasen a Dzhokhar.

- Durante viajes siguientes de la señora Clarke y el señor Fick para visitar al los padres de Dzhokhar en Makhachkala, la estrategia para defender a Dzhokhar fue explicada, según pude saber a través de mi hermana Malkan. La oficina pública de defensores de Boston pretendían contender durante el juicio, como realmente sucedió después, que Tamerlan, ahora fallecido, fue la mente criminal, y que Dzhokhar estaba simplemente siguiendo a su hermano mayor.

Yo me opuse firmemente a esta estrategia como moral y legalmente erróneas, puesto que Dzhokhar es no culpable, tal y como las evidencias generadas por el FBI muestran. Desde entonces se han enrarecido mis relaciones con los padres de Dzhokhar a causa de su aquiescencia. Aproximadamente el 19 de Junio de 2014, durante su visita a Grozny que duró unas dos semanas, tres miembros del personal de la oficina de defensores públicos de Boston visitaron a mi madre y hermanas en Grozny. Se me dijo que también visitaron a los padres de Dzhokhar en Makhachkala. El personal que visitó a mi madre y hermanas en Grozny alrededor del 19 de Junio de 2014, incluía una tal Charlene, que se presentó a sí misma como investigadora independiente, trabajando en y con la oficina de defensores públicos en Boston; otra que respondía al nombre de Jane, una trabajadora social que decía haber hablado con Dzhokhar; y una tercera, de nombre Olga, que era una intérprete de Ruso-Inglés de Nueva Jersey. No dejaron tarjeta de visita, pero se alojaron en el hotel principal de Grozny, de aquí presumo que sus apellidos pueden ser averiguados. Yo no estuve presente en el encuentro de Grozny sobre el 19 de Junio del 2014 pero mi hermana Malkan, que estuvo allí, me llamó por teléfono inmediatamente después de que el mismo concluyese. Ella me reveló entonces los detalles de la conversación durante la entrevista. Malkan y yo hemos hablado sobre la visita en varias ocasiones.

Malkan habla Ruso y Checheno y está dispuesta a testificar bajo juramento en procesos públicos en los Estados Unidos a través de intérprete ruso, si sus gastos son cubiertos y si su seguridad personal y el derecho a volver a su hogar en Chechenia son asegurados adecuadamente por adelantado. Ella explica, y me ha autorizado a declarar por ella que, durante la conversación el 19 de Junio del 2014, en Grozny, Charlene la investigadora independiente afirmó llanamente que la oficina federal de defensores públicos en Boston sabía que Dzhokhar era no culpable de todos los cargos, y que su oficina estaba bajo una enorme presión de las agencias de fuerzas del orden y altos cargos del gobierno de los Estados Unidos para no resistir la condena. Este informe ha sido ejecutado en el exterior de los Estados Unidos, pero la presente relato es cierto hasta donde llegan mi conocimiento, información y opinión y está sujeto a la pena de perjurio de acuerdo con las leyes de los Estados Unidos de América.

Entregado el día 17 de Abril de 2015,

DOCUMENT 4. Petition for a Writ of Error Coram Nobis

To the United States District Court for the District of Massachusetts and to the General Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, From a loyal daughter, Mary Maxwell, in Australia. February 29, 2016

This is a petition for a writ of coram nobis for Dzhokhar Tsarnaev.

The situation in regard to “the Marathon bombing” is killing us. When will it stop? I appeal to the Massachusetts government to stop it -- whoever can help, be it the court, the legislature, or governor.

Since at least 1970, persons acting apparently with authority’s connivance have been staging terrorism scenes in all parts of the world; for a while it was mostly in the Middle East and Ireland.

The Boston bombing was one such staged terrorism act.

Given that the population of Boston is exceptionally highly educated, that city was perhaps chosen so that the organizers of such acts could prove to their own (sad) satisfaction that all of the people can be fooled!

In fact the Boston bombing was done more than 12 years after 9-11, regarding which a substantial number of people had seen the light

In May, 2015, Maret Tsarnaeva sent an affidavit to Judge O’Toole, in a proper manner, pointing out that her family in Russia had been approached by US federal employees to ask that Dzhokhar’s parents tell him to plead guilty to the bombing. The reason given – it boggles the mind – was that there was pressure on them “from high up.”

Dzhamaly Maazovich, a first cousin of Dzhokhar’s (“Jahar’s”) late grandfather, also signed the following affidavit (not sent to the court):

“For two years, starting from June 2013 to April 2015, me personally and members of my family repeatedly talked at the meetings that took place during the visits of defense lawyers

[They]... had visited at the least, fourteen times.... For two years, our meetings and the patients of conversations were, it seemed to me, of a strange nature. Representatives of the defense team for Dzhokhar were collecting information about everything: our way of life, our lives, the origin of the Tsarnaev family tree, where we work, what contacts we have. They were interested in everything, except the facts proving the innocence of the Tsarnaev brothers, to which we had unsuccessfully tried to draw the attention of defense, because we were openly ignored. ... The lead defense lawyer Judy Clarke herself agreed, adding in the conversation, “we know it – they are innocent...”

I see it as impossible that Dzhokhar was the Marathon bomber, and believe his conviction should be vacated -- not sent to Appeals Court.

Please consider this letter to be a petition to the Court for a writ of error coram nobis. In the 1954 case of US v Morgan, the US Supreme Court ruled that this writ may be used to vacate a conviction and/or a sentence where justice calls for it. It must be directed at the court that adjudicated the case; it is not an appeal.

There are many common law writs; Congress confirmed their usage in the All Writs Act, codified at 18 USC 1651. The writ of habeas corpus is used when a prisoner calls out for justice; coram nobis can be used to vacate a ruling. A petition need be sent to the original court.

In US v Morgan, a man who had completed his sentence asked to have the ruling vacated, in 1954, as he had not made competent waiver of his right to counsel. The Federal District Court denied this coram nobis relief to Morgan, but the Appeals court allowed it and SCOTUS affirmed it. His conviction was set aside. In Korematsu, a man who had been convicted of disobeying the 1942 martial law in California, which ‘quarantined’ Japanese-Americans, claimed in 1984 that exculpatory evidence in the prosecutor’s file had been withheld from him. Judge Marilyn Patel of the US District Court heard his petition for writ of coram nobis. US Attorneys made no objection and she ruled to set aside his conviction.

In 2015, Mary W Maxwell, PhD, LLB (me) published Fraud Upon the Court, showing that when a court has been defrauded, such as when a judge acts dishonestly, the mechanism of coram nobis is appropriate. She cited the opinion of the US Supreme Court in Hazel-Atlas Glass Co. v Atwood (1944). Justice Jackson wrote for the majority:

“No fraud is more odious than an attempt to subvert the administration of justice. The court is unanimous in condemning the transaction disclosed by this record.... The resources of the law are ample to undo the wrong ... Remedies are available to purge recreant officers from the tribunals on whom the fraud was practiced. To nullify the judgment if the fraud procured it.... Such a proceeding is required by settled federal law.” [Emphasis added]

In Jahar Tsarnaev’s trial, prosecutors, defense attorneys and the judge all acted in a manner that defrauded the court. I cite five instances:

1. The FBI, openly on TV, asked the public not to look at any other pictures for evidence as to what happened at the Marathon. This is as blatant an instance of obstruction of justice as one could ever find. People tend to obey such authoritative persons in an “emergency.”
2. The judge, as mentioned, did not respond to a shocking affidavit from Maret Tsarnaev who reported that the defense team had announced to the accused that they knew he was innocent, yet coerced him to plead guilty, even threatening the Mother that her son could be harmed in jail. (That affidavit was published on the Internet by a former US sub-cabinet official, Paul Craig Roberts.)
3. Judge O’Toole met with the jurors as soon as they were empaneled and said to them “We’re now teammates.” He shook hands with them and recommended that they shake hands with one another. His talking to jurors is totally out of bounds – unheard of, really -- and his emotional appeal must have put pressure on them to please him.

4. Exculpatory evidence was suppressed by the prosecution. Dee McLachlan, editor of an Australian news website, who is a photographer, discovered by chance that Trial Exhibit 22 is in the form of a video, but with various still photos inserted.

Ms McLachlan noticed the oddity of the fact that the photo was presented as a square, while almost all photos nowadays are ‘portrait’ or ‘landscape,’ typically 480x800. The unusual framing of the original photograph seemed questionable.

That being so, she figured that this picture started out as portrait but then had its bottom portion cropped off. In fact the person who did it must have forgotten to erase the ‘halo-like’ white circle. Were we to see the full picture, with the halo as a complete circle, we would be seeing much more of Jahar’s body – see grey space in the photo below.

The likely reason for depriving the jury of seeing more of Jahar’s body is that it would furnish a high-resolution photo of his backpack, which, as many people are well aware, was a silvery-white color. As such, it would contradict the prosecutor’s claim that the backpack that contained the offending bomb was black.

Now placed "in the video."

5. As court-watcher in Canada, notes: in Motion 1101-1, the defense lawyer Judy Clarke ASKED THE JUDGE NOT TO SAY IN HIS INSTRUCTIONS TO THE JURY THAT JAHAR "HAS PLEADED NOT GUILTY TO ALL OF THE CHARGES."

Clarke's doing that clearly constitutes a fraud upon the court. I say she has committed a crime, per 18 USC 1503: "Whoever corruptly, ...endeavors to influence, intimidate, or impede any grand or petit juror, or officer in or of any court of the United States ...in the discharge of his duty, ...shall be punished."

Moreover, the judge proceeded to follow her recommendation! As a result, almost everyone, myself included, went away thinking Jahar had pleaded guilty. Surely the jurors were deceived.

Kindly do not reply by saying that I lack standing to petition for a writ of coram nobis. I most certainly do have standing as one of the millions of citizens affected by the stunning loss of rule of law.

May I remind everyone of these maxims of English law:

Impunitas semper ad deteriora invitata -- Impunity always invites to worse faults.

Lex est dictamen rationis-- Law is the dictate of reason.

Lex semper dabit remedium -- The law will always furnish a remedy.

Is it a stumbling block that it is a federal case? No, Massachusetts can have Jahar extradited now to be tried locally. (Please see my Youtube video "To Massachusetts Governor.")

Jahar can be tried for treason. He is a US citizen and the crime he is accused of was an attempt to harm people in a warlike manner. (But it seems to me that he is not guilty and that someone else is, as I describe in the postscript.)

I send this petition to the court but also to the legislature. To ask Judge O'Toole to be the judge of his own malfeasance is not logical. Is my approach unusual? Yes, but did I ever think I would live to see the day when a Boston court would behave all out of touch with law?

Your Excellency, I hear you ask "Doesn't Jahar have new attorneys?" Yes, but the appeal does not mention any of the frauds I have listed. Are they blind? You ask? Shouldn't Jahar sign this petition?" Ordinarily yes, but he seems helpless and in court he appeared drugged, presumably involuntarily.

Most people assume that the story as told by The Boston Globe, CNN, FBI officer Richard DesLauriers, and others, is true. I do not think we can reach most citizens; they seem brainwashed. So it is up to the few who can see what is going on, to set things right. Thus please give consideration to my request for a writ of coram nobis. It is the best and easiest way to put an end to this nightmare.

This petition for writ of error coram nobis, in regard to the conviction of Dzhokhar Tsarnaev, is hereby respectfully submitted. His case number is Criminal No 13-10200-GAO.

Yours sincerely,

Mary Maxwell, a Boston-born dual citizen of US and Australia

[Having received a Post Office receipt from Boston in March 2016, but never a reply from the court, I re-sent the Petition to both houses of the Massachusetts Legislature in May, 2017. No reply as of January, 2019.]

Matanov's lawyer, Edward Haydn, speaks to media at the Moakley

[Government]: Your Honor, Mr. Matanov poses a serious risk of flight, and no set of conditions will reasonably assure his appearance in court on these charges. He faces eight years on each of the three false statement charges; he faces 20 years of imprisonment on the obstruction charge; ...groundwork with telling various pieces of misinformation to civilians in the Braintree Police Department, and told federal authorities lies and changing stories over a variety of topics. The grand jury also found probable cause to believe that he hid evidence... and elicited the help of other people to do so.

He has friends and associates outside the United States. He maintains those ties by sending money -- significant sums of money over a long period. He sent money to 15 different people. And it went to people in six different countries, not just his home country of Kyrgyzstan, but also Egypt, Uzbekistan, Jordan, Turkey and Greece. The ability to go to people in those countries is also made easier by the fact that, Mr. Matanov has the ability to speak seven languages. We ask you to detain him. Delving into $ remittances to family for hints of bad motives!]:

Q. But the only thing he did wrong was sort of drive recklessly.
A..... during the surveillance operations, those were the were piquing the interest of the people that were the surveillance. Q.
Those records the prosecutor introduced, $71,385 that he transferred overseas. A. Correct. Q. All right. Would you agree that's over a four-year period? A. So close to it, yes, it's about $17,000 a year. Q. And you'd agree with me that there are reasons for using an alias sending money that have nothing to do with terrorism. A. Sure. Q. And the family members -- his family members received $56,590 over that four-year period. A. Yes. Q. And the FBI figured out his family members
-- anyone with the name "Matanov" that received money, correct? A. Yes. Q. But if he has a relative that just happens to have a different last name, you wouldn't have picked it up? A.
Again, that's logical....

BY MR. GARLAND: Is Mr. Matanov charged with lying every single time in every single sentence to the FBI and to other investigators? A. No, he is not. Q. Does the indictment also charge that Mr. Matanov did make various false statements -- that are not necessarily charged but that were alleged -- to Witness 1 and to others, as well as civilians, and to Detective Heslam? A. Yes. Q. And does it allege -- as well did the grand jury find probable cause to believe that during the various times that he was interviewed by the FBI, he told changing stories and various lies to the FBI during those interviews? A. Yes.

THE COURT: Thank you. Will the defendant please stand.

THE CLERK: Mr. Matanov, as to Count 2, making a fraudulent statement in a federal investigation involving international and domestic terrorism in violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 1001(a)(2), how do you plead, guilty or not guilty?

THE DEFENDANT: Not guilty. [All emphasis added]

[However, he later took a plea bargain, so got no trial. He did time, was deported to Uzbekistan, now lives in Dubai.]

Miraculously met George Maxwell, a Scottish Australian, so off she went to learn housewifery and get a PhD in Politics at the University of Adelaide. Mary sings of a happy marriage.

Widowed in 2000, she enrolled in law school. Got a notion for legislating, thus tried for Congress in 2006 and Senate in 2017. Alas, no room at the inn. (But she enjoys campaigning.)

Candidate Maxwell voting for herself in Montgomery, Alabama, 2017

Developed an urge for litigation and filed Maxwell v Bush in 2006 and Maxwell v Trump in 2017, war-powers cases. She has produced plays at the Adelaide Fringe Festival – five so far.

Ms Maxwell's greatest mentoring came from EO Wilson in evolutionary biology. Her most important book is Consider the Lilies: A Review of 18 Cures for Cancer and Their Legal Status.
